terrible job. Wherever we can use naval power to cut them off and leave them to starve, we're gaining immensely.

ONE other word about this Attapeu-Hollandia job that seems to have turned out so well. We leap-frogged around the Japs there EXACTLY as the Japs leap-frogged around the British down the Malay peninsula to Singapore.

GOOD news comes also from northeast India and Burma. Our glider-borne troops, operating in the rear of the Japs, are reported to have established a "wide defense block" squarely across the main north-and-south railroad that supplies the Japs operating in northern Burma and over the line in India.

It is beginning to look as if their effort to cut our China supply line may have failed.

BUT there's still nobody fighting in eastern China, where the Japs are making another effort to break the back of the Chinese before we can get there to help.

DEFINITE news of progress in our mighty battle to destroy the German air force comes from London, where the British air ministry and our U. S. strategic air forces issue a joint statement asserting that the assault upon the German aircraft industry is now reaching its CLIMACTIC phase in a BATTLE TO THE FINISH.

For three successive months, the statement continues, "the German fighter force has lost more planes than its plants could manufacture."

The battle will continue, the statement concludes, "until the Luftwaffe is cut off from virtually ALL replacement in its factories and is enfeebled in the remainder of its declining first-line strength."

THEN THE INVASION WILL COME. When it comes, the Germans will have only the planes they've HOARDED UP for it.

That is the program.

THE dispatches report a lull on virtually the whole Russian front. It might be the lull that will precede the storm of all storms.

Henry Cassidy, AP correspondent in Moscow, says the reds appear to be massing for a NEW campaign. The Germans have been reporting for several days that Russian reserves are pouring into eastern Poland. There has been significant silence as to what may be going on in Romania. The feeling is growing that the Russians are preparing the mighty new offensive in the east that will synchronize with our offensive in the west. Armageddon is nearing.

A FEW POLITICAL "IFS"

By Charles V. Stanton

THE national political picture is becoming steadily more complicated. Puzzling "ifs" are creeping into observations by on-the-scene scribes. A few months ago it was an accepted conclusion that President Roosevelt would seek and receive a fourth term, while republicans would be so badly divided they would not be able to make even a serious race.

President Roosevelt was seen as the only man in the democratic ranks to be considered as a nominee. Democrats were holding up to ridicule the large field of republican aspirants, with the declaration that the G. O. P. had no outstanding leader.

Republicans retorted that they had more than one man with ability to guide the nation, while the democrats were forced to rely upon a candidate who had refuted every principle upon which the party was formed.

Now conditions seem to be suddenly reversed. With Willie's withdrawal, republican strength seems to be rapidly centering in one man—Dewey. Campaigns for Bricker, MacArthur and Stassen seem as flames from spent and flickering candles competing with a powerful searchlight focusing on the governor of New York.

But while the republican forces are concentrating behind an assured leader, democratic ranks are showing indecision. Other candidate possibilities are being frankly mentioned, an act which a few months ago would have been considered lese-majeste.

Political observers are qualifying fourth term references with "if the president decides to run..." The president is reported to have confided to friends that he is getting "tired."

Then, the situation in Great Britain is not so encouraging. Prime Minister Churchill is not as all-powerful as he once was—and the British have no "don't change horses in the middle of the stream" philosophy in their plan of government.

Another "if" centers around the labor vote. There is no possibility for a fourth term unless the labor vote can be held intact. Labor dissatisfaction with the "Little Steel" formula, which seriously interferes with desired wage increases, is mounting dangerously.

Unrest is spreading. Labor leaders seem to be in a bargaining mood. If the president will take off the Little Steel handcuffs, labor will remain in the presidential camp, but, if he doesn't the accumulated dissatisfaction may be expressed in votes for the opposition. The New Deal has proclaimed the Little Steel formula to be vital in the fight against inflation.

The public probably would not react favorably to a shift in policy, which would place the welfare of the New Deal against the declared welfare of the community. Having stressed essentiality of wage controls, the New Deal could hardly deny legitimacy of its own child.

President Roosevelt is not apt to take a chance on being beaten in November. The "ifs" now so frequently written into capital news indicate recognition of the tides of popular opinion running against the administration.

If the strength of this flood continues away from the New Deal, the president may tell the world, instead of only his friends, that he is "too tired."

The political picture for the next few months should contain some interesting highlights, with world events contributing the background for the central figures.

Have a Coca-Cola = You're invited to our house

... or how to make sailors feel at home. Homes, these days, are often playing host to our fighting men and their friendly allies. There's one sure greeting that will put them all at ease. It's Have a "Coke". To an old friend, Coca-Cola from your own refrigerator says Welcome back. To a newcomer, it says Stranger, you belong. At home, in camp, and overseas, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—has become the symbol of American friendliness the world over.
