wounded German beast in his own den. He praises the allied bombings, the supply of allied war materials and the allied campaign in ITALY

He advises the Romanians, the Finns, the Hungarians and the Bulgarians to OVERTHROW their governments and "shed the nazi yoke."

ZVESTIA, official Russian newspaper, says the lull on the Russian front will end soon and a new offensive will burst on the Germans "with the force of a hurricane."

A thousand U. S. planes—500 heavy bombers, 500 escorting fighters—hit German installations in northern France. It is our air force's 14th attack in 15 days and the 17th consecutive day of the allied pre-invasion air offensive.

The RAF hits a big German AMMUNITION DUMP near Paris. (If you'll glance at your map, you'll be impressed by the spiderweb of railroads centering at Paris. German supplies to their fighters on the Atlantic wall must move largely by rail.)

GENERAL DOOLITTLE announces that in April the U. S. 8th air force (based in Britain) destroyed 1300 Nazi fighters—800 hundred of them shot out of the air in combat and 500 wrecked on the ground.

This, he says, amounted to substantially more than the entire German aircraft production for the month. In April, Doolittle adds, the 8th air force lost 359 bombers and 144 fighters.

(NOTE that Doolittle gives the figures ONLY for the German planes destroyed by the Americans. The implication is that our 8th air force itself destroyed more planes in April than the entire German aircraft industry could replace and that the planes destroyed by the British are therefore clear profit.

THESE straws in the wind don't mean necessarily that the invasion is a matter of hours or days. But they DO add to the tension in the air.

IN the south Pacific, there is only the regular and CONTINUING air warfare.

In northern Burma an all-American TANK UNIT goes into action for the first time. Stillwell is now only 45 miles north of all-important Myitkyina. With Myitkyina taken and HELD, we'll be in position to push through the Ledo road to a connection with the old Burma road and thus re-establish land communication with China.

DON'T KICK YOURSELF

By Charles V. Stanton

THE day after the primary election held May 20, 1932, a good many Douglas county republicans were going around delivering themselves husky, mental kicks-in-the-pants. But a mental booting is not as effective as the physical variety and is more easily forgotten.

We recall that date in 1932 to your minds because history might repeat itself and it is in your province to keep yourself out of the pants-kicking category.

Congressman Willis C. Hawley was up for renomination and was opposed by James W. Mott. Mr. Hawley had performed an outstanding service on behalf of Douglas county. He had made a firm stand in the congressional halls to fight off those who were endeavoring to wrest from the county the site for the home and hospital to be constructed by the U. S. Veterans administration. In so doing, he had incurred the ill will of the city of Eugene and other communities seeking to gain the institution. Mr. Hawley stuck by his pledge to the county in the face of this opposition and fought not only neighboring states but even some of the communities in his own state and district. He waged a successful fight and the site at Roseburg was selected.

Douglas county showed its appreciation, after a fashion. Mr. Hawley received almost a unanimous vote in this county. He polled 3,528 votes, as compared with 449 for Mott and 971 for the three opposition candidates combined. Although 9366 republican voters were registered in Douglas county for that primary election in 1932, only 4,553 voted.

Congressman Hawley was defeated by only 138 votes in the district. Had 139 of the 4813 republicans, who did not go to the polls on that election day, performed their duty as good citizens, casting their votes for Hawley, he would have been nominated and elected and Douglas county would have paid its political debt. But those few people who failed to vote caused one of the county's best friends to lose his job and lost for him his reward for the brilliant, determined fight he made in the county's behalf.

That same situation might be true next May 19. Our own Guy Cordon is a candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator. He is opposed by a man who has high standing in the state of Oregon; a man who served as governor of the state and who is above average calibre for the office he seeks.

Ex-Governor Charles Sprague is a man who would make a good United States senator for the state of Oregon. But between Sprague and Cordon it is not a question of simply selecting a good man for both are good; rather it is the matter of selecting the better man, and that is why, we believe, those who know both men intimately agree that Guy Cordon is in a position to render the greater service.

Cordon is thoroughly versed in the needs of Oregon. Furthermore, he has the advantage of being thoroughly familiar with congressional procedure, coupled with close personal contact over a long period of years with the late Senator McNary. We can think of no talent Sprague has for the office that Cordon cannot show as well. To his advantage are the qualifications of being on the job, familiarity with routine and a wide acquaintanceship in high places in Washington. He needs spend no time as a neophyte. Another important factor in his favor is in the matter of personality.

For some reason, we have grown to expect a certain amount of a quality called showmanship in a United States senator. He must be a good mixer. Sprague was beaten for reelection as governor simply because he lacked those personal qualities. His defeat was not due to any lack of statesmanlike administration. Cordon has both of those qualities, coupled with all other necessary and desirable attributes for political office.

On the other hand, Sprague possesses one essential for vote-getting that Cordon lacks—he is better known. We would not hesitate a moment to predict Cordon's nomination if he were known throughout the state as well as the former governor.

That is where you Douglas county voters have an opportunity to avoid that mental kick-in-the-pants. If the election should happen to be close, you will never forgive yourself for not working harder in Cordon's behalf.

You have friends in all parts of the state. Write them today. Tell them about Cordon and urge their support. And, above all else, don't let Cordon fail because you, as a republican voter, were too indifferent to go to the polls and cast a ballot.

Regional Loggers' Conference Dated

EUGENE, May 3—(special)—Roseburg and Douglas county loggers will be especially interested in the sixth annual Willamette Valley Logging conference which will be held in Eugene at the Osburn hotel on May 20, believes Vic Torrey, Marshfield, conference president.

Merman Aydelott, logging superintendent for the Roseburg Co. Imphal. Their supplies are dwindling, and they have to hit now OR ELSE—

A lot of Jap "face" is at stake in northeastern India. The little yellow men CAN'T quit there now.

THE news from northern China isn't so good. The Japs breach the Chinese defenses in narrow, mountainous Hula pass west of Chenghsien. They're now reported 50 miles SOUTH of Chenghsien along the railroad that leads ultimately to Canton, on the China sea, nearly 600 miles distant.

They're probably getting ready for the landing we've said we're going to make on the China coast.

Lumber company, will have an important part of the program, and will lead a panel discussion on the new 'secret weapon' of the loggers. "This new 'secret weapon' is designed to keep loggers out of jail, and save trucks and logging equipment," states H. J. Cox, secretary, in the invitation which has been extended to all western Oregon "bark eaters and timber beasts". It will be an all-day session with first panel discussions starting at 10:30, Mr. Cox points out. All loggers in western Oregon are urged to attend.

Log Price Control in Part of West Abolished

WASHINGTON, May 3—(AP)—Sales of logs throughout the western half of the United States, except in Oregon, Washington and several Montana counties, will be exempt from price control beginning May 8, OPA announced.

The order said shipments from these exempted areas were so infrequent and of such small volume, that it resulted in work "disproportionate to the importance of the actual price controls being effected."

Beavers Again up In Second Place

(By the Associated Press) Pitcher Frank Tincup of the Seattle Rainiers struck out four times in a row in last night's Coast league baseball game with the San Diego Padres but his team mates collected 8 hits off Frank Dasso for a 5 to 0 victory. Tincup allowed only two hits to the Padres.

Portland climbed back into second place in the Coast league standings with a 3 to 1 win over Sacramento as the San Francisco Seals managed to stop a late inning Los Angeles rally and win, 11 to 2.

The Hollywood stars scored all of their runs in the eighth inning after two were out, to beat Oakland, 4 to 2.

Washington News From an Inside View Argument, Sentiment, Comment

By HARRIS ELLSWORTH Congressman, Fourth Oregon District

WASHINGTON, April 29—In an otherwise quiet week the Roosevelt seizure of Montgomery Ward in Chicago, and the removal of the head of the firm (unarmed) by fighting troops of the United States army created a mighty big stir in Capitol Hill. Both the U. S. senate and the house of representatives moved immediately toward official investigations. It is interesting to note that congressional wrath over the president's action has been displayed by both democrats and republicans. Only two ultra-faithful new dealers on the house rules committee refused to vote to report out an investigation resolution to the floor of the house.

Principal reason for vigorous objection to the seizure of Ward's is that the store is in no sense a war plant. It is a store engaged in the distribution of merchandise to civilians. There have been several speeches on the floor which laid emphasis upon the disconcerting effect this government action has upon our own morale on the eve of our greatest military venture—and how much comfort and encouragement it must be giving the enemy as he waits for our troops to invade the continent.

There have been two outstanding blunders this week of more or less world-wide importance: (1) The army seizure of Wards, and (2) General Patton's foolish statement about who is to rule the world.

Floor sessions this week in both senate and house have not been important, hence only sparsely attended. Meanwhile this lull in activity has given the various legislative committees time in which to complete hearings on numerous important bills. People who visit Washington and observe the proceedings of congress from the galleries are generally disappointed in what

Monday of this week the ways and means committee reported out a simplified tax bill. The essential features of the bill as reported have been widely published. According to a notice I received this morning, the new tax bill will be up for action on the floor Wednesday of the coming week. Copies of this bill and copies of the committee report are available. I shall be glad to send either or both to anyone who so requests.

Lt. McClintock Gets Top Post At Training Station

Lieutenant James A. McClintock, U. S. navy reserve, has been appointed executive officer of the naval training station at Villanova college, Villanova, Pa., according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McClintock, Roseburg.

Lieutenant McClintock graduated from Roseburg high school with the class of 1921, matriculated at Willamette university, Salem, where he was graduated with a B. A. degree in psychology in 1927. He attended Drew Theological seminary in Madison, N. J., where he was awarded a B. D. degree in 1930, and continued study at New York university, where he secured his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees in philosophy and religion in 1934. An additional year and a half of studying psychology at Columbia university and University of Oregon completed his graduate work.

He was a faculty member at Brother's college, Drew, university, from 1930 until 1943, and is at present on leave of absence from his duties as professor of psychology and director of personnel at that institution.

Prior to receiving his commission in the navy, April 21, 1943, he was engaged in research for the federal government in the fields of civilian morale and psychology, a subject on which he has written and lectured extensively.

He was trained by the navy at Columbia university for special work in the V-12 department, and served until recently as educational liaison officer at Pennsylvania State college.

Jobs for Vets Up To Business, Club Told by Kinnear

Business, not government, should take the responsibility of providing jobs for men returning from military service, Harry Kinnear, sawmill operator at Hileyd, told members of the Roseburg Kiwanis club at the regular Tuesday luncheon meeting.

Mr. Kinnear spoke on the life and character of Alexander Hamilton, whom he described not as a politician or statesman, but America's first real business man and greatest financier. Hamilton, he said, had predicted many of the dangers of a democracy and that the country had been experiencing in recent years the conditions when he had outlined. The United States, Kinnear declared, should get back to the principles of sound finance which Hamilton had advocated, and business should be given an opportunity to operate on a successful basis. The man returning from military service, the speaker said, will demand employment in private industry and not governmental relief.
