rising of the curtain for the last act of the play."

Broadcasting from Moscow, a soviet commentator says: "The red army is ready for fresh battles—ready to pursue the enemy from the east and deliver the coup de grace in his own lair in conjunction with the Anglo-American armies."

WITH the battle of Armageddon just around the corner, with uncounted hundreds of thousands of men living their last days on earth as they await its opening, with EVERYTHING WE PRIZE ON EARTH at stake when the fateful dice begin to roll, the foremen's union in Detroit, our greatest single workshop of war, went ON STRIKE. (There were 3300 striking foremen and because of their KEY stoppage of work 50,000 men were made idle.)

GENERAL ARNOLD, head of our air forces, testifying before the War Labor board in Washington, says:

"The Detroit foremen's strike is one of the most serious setbacks the air force has had since its inception. If continued, it might enable the German air force to RECOVER just when it is reeling under our blows . . . . . It might cause us to change our time-table for destruction of critical industries in Germany and might cost the lives of bombing crews through lack of fighter plane protection."

He adds:

"We of the military forces are not interested in the relative merits of the dispute, but it is inconceivable from our point of view how you can have strikes which stop war production on materials which are so essential they may EVEN STOP OPERATIONS in connection with the bombings in Germany."

THIS troubled, messed-up, never-too-admirable home front of ours! How are we who have stayed at home and given none too good an account of our stewardship to face our fighting sons when they come back.

(Those of them who DO come back.)

THE Chinese continue to cover themselves with glory (and death) in Yunnan and Honan provinces.

The 20,000 of them who crossed the Salween in Yunnan are still pushing westward, climbing high mountain ridges and plunging down into the alternate deep canyons, in a heroic effort to link up with General Stilwell and make possible the opening of a new Burma road that will enable us to get in heavy equipment to enable the Chinese to fight their way down to the coast of the China sea to join the forces our navy will attempt to push through to save China as a fighting ground from which we can finally move to destroy Japan.

In Honan, still fighting with not much more than their bare hands, they have pushed back and

OUR DUTY TO G. I. JOE

By Charles V. Stanton

The nation's responsibility to the returning soldier does not end with payment of a bonus and provision for a job, Major General G. B. Chisholm, director general of Canada's medical services, told the American Psychiatric association at a meeting in Philadelphia this week. The General's theory, we believe, is deserving of most serious thought and studied action, but will require reversal from many current trends.

> "For some years," the General said, "the soldier will have been accustomed to regarding himself as important, as a great asset to his country and highly valued by his associates. This was not true of a very large number of young men immediately preceding this war.
> "The most damaging thing that could happen to the returned soldier and to the community would be for him to find himself not wanted and not regarded as a valuable asset to his community.
> "To give him money or even to provide him with a stop-gap job will fall far short of these requirements. In order for him to become a useful citizen it is very necessary that his own individual value to the community should obviously remain very high. This will require very careful planning and serious implementation."

The General warned that if these demands are not met the soldiers will withdraw into groups and feel themselves in conflict with civilians. Particularly, he declared, these returning soldiers will demand certain ideals, which will require civilians to show "unselfish devotion to the good of the group, willing self-sacrifice and the ability to be dependent on, and not to take advantage of one's own people."

General Chisholm, in other words, is telling us that the returning soldier expects to play on the home team and that he expects teamwork on the part of players. He is not to be content with a spectator status, nor will he be satisfied with a team that fumbles the ball and misses its signals. If the home team can't play ball, he'll organize his own team—a team that has been trained in teamwork and coordination of effort.

The soldier has been thoroughly indoctrinated in obedience to discipline, accustomed to a form of life in which existence itself depends upon every man performing his duty to the best of his ability, and in which self-sacrifice, even to the death, is a responsibility to be assumed for the sake of the whole. It is going to be difficult for him to adjust himself to a condition in which pressure groups contend for special privilege, in which class distinction has been encouraged for political gain and in which racial and social prejudice exist.

It must be remembered that many of the men now in military service have never known normal civilian existence. Thousands upon thousands reached legal majority in the days of the Great Depression. Unable to find employment in private industry, forced to depend upon support from parents or other relatives, or provided with leaf-raking relief jobs, they struggled against abnormal conditions until called into military training. It must be hard for such men to thoroughly understand the strikes, wage disputes and demands prevalent in the country today. Others, who entered service at later dates, more familiar with the high wages of the war emergency, will feel keenly the sacrifices they are called upon to make in dropping to G. I. wage levels. The absence of "unselfish devotion to the good of the group" is most patently evident in this country today. A great many changes will be essential in civilian thought and action if the ideals of the returning soldiers as stressed by General Chisholm are to be met.

RETAKEN sections of the Peiping-Hankow railroad from the Japs.

With all that may be wrong with China, no one can help admiring the fighting Chinese.

THERE'S a new tale.

Our planes based in the Aleutians are beginning to smash up the Jap fishing fleets operating in the waters north of the Kurile islands. The Japs are fish eaters, and the purpose of this move is to cut down their supply of fish.

Bedridden Farmer, Wife Perish When Home Burns

MEDFORD, Ore., May 19—(AP)—Edmond Peile, 69, bedridden farmer, burned to death in his hime near Shads Cove yesterday, and his wife, Lottie, 70, was trapped in the flames and died trying to rescue him.

Mrs. Peile was apparently milking when the fire broke out, and rushed into the house to help her husband who had been in bed since a recent stroke.

DIAL LOG

BY SUSAN.

Don't forget that tonight's the night you'll be getting the last minute hot-off-the-wire election returns via 1490. We'll start broadcasting as soon as the precinct returns begin to come in, so keep tuned to KRNR all evening. As a matter of fact, election or no—you'd still want to be listening in because it's Double or Nothing night at 6:30 and this week they are helping to celebrate the one-hundredth anniversary of Morse code. They'll be broadcasting from Baltimore and, as an interesting sidelight on the program, you might like to know that the engineer who will put the show on the air is the great grandson of Samuel Morse. The quiz will open with the same message, "What God Hath Wrought," which Morse first telegraphed 100 years ago and which went over the B. & O. railroad lines from Baltimore to Washington. Guest of honor will be Lelia Morse, descendant of the inventor, who will be given a bouquet of 100 red roses.

For the rest of the evening there's Eye Witness News at 8; Name That Song at 8:30 and election returns sprinkled here and there—as they come in and as we can break programs to give them to you. After the usual sign-off time of 10 o'clock, we'll be bringing you mostly returns until the various races are decided or at least, until midnight. So stay with us—it's going to be lots of fun—if your candidate wins.

Hitler Line In Italy Offers Hard Job, Stimson Says

WASHINGTON, May 18—(AP)—Secretary of War Stimson said today that the allies in Italy are now beginning to come in contact with the outposts of the heavily fortified Adolf Hitler line and cautioned that the next step of the campaign will be "exceedingly difficult."

Even behind that line, Stimson said, mountains flank the routes to the north.

Stimson said, in summarizing the situation, that "we do not wish to make claims in advance" of attainments but added that the "tangible" results of the campaign to date do not need advertising.

Discussing the general fighting in the southeast Asia theater Stimson commented that there is "now at least the possiblity" of linking the Burma and Ledo roads together to open a new avenue of supply and military aid to China.

Fund for Farm Census Approved by Senate

WASHINGTON, May 18—(AP)—Funds for a nation-wide farm census next year were added by the senate yesterday before it passed the $242,716,700 state, justice and commerce departments appropriation bill for 1945.

The once-every-5-years census is required by statute, but the $7,250,000 fund for the project had been held up pending a budget bureau study to determine whether it was practicable during wartime.

The census bureau has said the count would utilize women, students and others not engaged in essential war work.

Mott's Bill Asks Plane Landings Along Highways

WASHINGTON, May 18—(AP)—Aircraft landing and takeoff strips adjacent to highways could be constructed with funds appropriated for federal road building projects under legislation introduced by Representative Mott of Oregon.

His proposal was among amendments suggested to a $4,000,000,000 postwar highway building bill being considered by the roads committee.

Oregon Farmers to Get Limited Rotonone Dust

WASHINGTON, May 18—(AP)—A limited amount of rotonone dust will be released to Oregon farmers to use against flea beetles this year, Sen. Guy Cordon (R.-Ore.) said he was advised by the War Food administration. It is urgently needed by Deschutes county farmers, the senator said.

Price Support for Lighter Hogs Is Extended by WFA

Temporary emergency extension of the War Food administration's price-support program to include good to choice butcher hogs weighing 180 to 200 pounds became effective May 15. This makes the range for the support program from 180 to 270 pounds at $13.75 per hundred-weight, Chicago basis, with appropriate differentials at other markets.

WFA emphasizes to producers that the support program applies only to these weights and to good to choice butcher hogs—not to lower grades. Many hogs that have been coming to market at the 180-to-200 pound weights are unfinished and of too low grade to come under the support program.

While extension of the price support to lighter weight hogs will benefit all markets, it will be particularly welcome news in many western areas where it is normal practice to market at the lighter weights. Hog producers can give considerable relief to the tight feed situation by finishing their hogs at lighter weights and marketing them when finished. The support on lighter hogs will aid producers in cooperating with WFA's request that hogs be marketed at weights below 240 pounds.

E OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Guess we're pretty lucky in our town, Judge, that we don't have the youth problem you read about in other places."

"Don't know as you can call it lucky, Harold... we saw it coming with the war and we did something about it before it hit us. We gave our 'teen age youngsters the recreational facilities they needed and really wanted. Those familiar with this wartime problem know that young folks go to places they shouldn't only when the proper places are not provided for them. Young people always want to be with others of their own age... want their own type of entertainment. Town after town has found out that once these simple wants are met, the problem is well on its way to being licked."

"Guess I didn't really know how far-sighted our town really is, Judge. If we hadn't looked ahead we wouldn't have had anybody or anything to blame but ourselves, would we?"
