G. I. JOE'S UNCLE ELMER

By Charles V. Stanton

WHENEVER we see a man wearing the American Legion emblem we think of our Uncle Pete. He was really a great-uncle, a Civil war veteran.

Uncle Pete knew where the best wild strawberries were to be found on the sunny slope of the hillside. He knew where the deer would be hiding in canyon thickets. He knew how to adjust a kite so it would sail higher and pull harder. He knew how to groove a top and grind the peg so it would spin long and walk its way out of the ring. He could charm away warts with a piece of string.

When we cut our finger with our first jackknife, Uncle Pete took time to show us how a knife should be handled. When, on one bright, frosty Christmas morning a .22-rifle, bearing our name, hung on the glittering tree, it was Uncle Pete who took our education in hand and who punished carelessness in handling or care of the weapon by removing it from our custody for a period commensurate with the seriousness of the offense.

Uncle Pete was not a preacher nor a schoolmaster, but from him we learned much in patience and tolerance and honesty, and if we have failed as an apt pupil it was not from any negligence of his.

Every boy, we believe, should have an uncle interested in his welfare.

We are glad that the boys who will soon be returning from overseas will have such an uncle, for G. I. Joe has his Uncle Elmer—The American Legion.

Uncle Elmer has been around and knows the ropes. Uncle Elmer has not always been in good repute. He has been called some hard names. He has been dubbed a treasury-raider, a war-monger, and a dissolute character.

He has been kicked out of some of the best places, including the national capital.

Uncle Elmer has been a tolerant sort of a cuss. He told the folks what should be done to keep out of trouble, but when they wouldn't heed his advice, he didn't stir up much of a fuss. Now he wishes he had been a little more industrious about insisting upon protection and maybe have used a little cussing and prodding, but he never was much of a hand for politics.

But people have come to realize that Uncle Elmer knew what he was talking about. Now they seek his advice, and wish they had taken him a little more seriously when he tried to teach them years ago the lessons he had learned by hard experience.

Uncle Elmer already is looking after the welfare of his young nephew. In fact, he stomped into the corridors of congress with a bill of rights for G. I. Joe and, despite his dislike of meddling into politics too freely, fixed things up so that Nephew Joe is not apt to be out on the street peddling apples, as Uncle Elmer had to do for a while when he came back from the war he didn't get to finish.

G. I. Joe may experience some tough days when he comes home. He is going to find things have changed since he put on his uniform and went away. He may discover readjustment to civilian life to be a good deal harder than he had anticipated. But he will find Uncle Elmer ready with a helping hand, with a word of advice, and a readiness to fight harder for his nephew than he ever fought for himself.

There will be those who think shuffling old Uncle Elmer and stalwart, clear-eyed Nephew Joe are an incongruous pair.

There doubtless will be some who will harshly criticize Uncle Elmer and G. I. Joe when the two get around to telling the nation what ought to be done. There probably will be those, sneaking out from hiding, who will insist that the brass knuckles, the "hoss" pistols and the blackjacks, which Uncle Elmer always maintained should be kept polished up, ought to be thrown away as not being dignified.

But when Uncle Elmer and his young nephew go arm-in-arm we can be sure of security. Men who have shed their blood to save a country are not apt to destroy that for which they fought. They have a comradeship born of blood and sacrifice and from a depth of common experience know the paths to be followed to continuing peace.

Diplomas Given Class of Eleven At Bible Academy

The Canyonville Bible academy graduated a class of eleven students Friday, May 28, the class being the largest in the school's history. The exercises were conducted in the chapel auditorium before a large audience. The seniors, dressed in caps and gowns, marched to the platform between rows of junior class members holding lighted candles and Bibles. The commencement address was given by Evangelist Jennie O'Brien. Violin and vocal selections were included on the program.

Rev. A. M. Shaffer, president, presented the diplomas, and student awards were made by Robert Shaffer, secretary. Award winners were: Citizenship and scholastic, Elizabeth Oeltjenbruns; chapel attendance, Dorothy Carlson; duty work, Betty Bokma; school spirit, Charles Pratt; Bible I, Dorothy Carlson 1st, Lester Hixon, 2nd; Bible II, Bill Freeman, 1st, Viola Lake, 2nd.

The valedictory address was given by Elizabeth Oeltjenbruns, and the salutatory address by Viola Lake. Roberta Pratt was class historian. Members of the graduating class were Charles Pratt, Elizabeth Oeltjenbruns, Roberta Pratt, Viola Lake, Walter Scott, Bill Freeman, Jane Zimmerman, Raymond Ellis, Bob Little, Maxine Bramlet, Merlin Miller.

Mosquitoes Threaten Malaria in Portland

PORTLAND, June 3—(AP)—Warning that malaria-type mosquitoes have been found in this area and that they may spread the disease by biting infected war veterans from the South Pacific, Portland health authorities urged city commissioners to take precautionary measures.

Gas cartridges are being used in New York state as ammunition against crop-destroying woodchucks.

DIAL LOG

BY SUSAN.

There's a baseball game on Hookey Hall Sunday morning—at least that's what the publicity says. The game is called for 10:30 of course. Then there's the Mysterious Traveler at 2:30—good fare for the who-dun-it fans because they always have a tricky, surprise ending. Roosty of the AAF at 3—we love Roosty—in fact he's the feminine portion of the staff's pin-up boy down here. However, we received a picture of Curley Bradley, who will play Tom Mix on the new serial starting on Monday, and now our allegiance to Roosty is wavering. There's another mystery show beginning Sunday evening at 6, replacing the Mexico City Symphony. This one is the Adventures of Leonidas Witherall, and Walter Hampden plays the lead. Yes, the same Walter Hampden who plays Shakespeare. California Melodies moves up to the 6:30 spot, which also pleases us, Boys' Town at 7:30, a new musical program at 8, with Russel Bennett conducting the orchestra and chorus, and concert and opera stars appearing as guest artists. Jack Benny, of course, at 8:30 and Human Adventure at 9:30, to round out a full day's entertainment. And don't forget—Monday afternoon at 5:30 is Tom Mix's first appearance on KRRR—so be listenin' in, kids.

Wardens to Head Bond Drive in West Roseburg

Civilian defense air raid wardens will again assume responsibility for war bond sales in West Roseburg, H. D. Palmer, chief warden, announced today. The wardens will serve all of the territory from the Oak street bridge to the top of the Lookingglass hill road.

Wardens to conduct sales in that area include Howard Cluver, Albert Stingley, Joe Wikoff, Earl Henry, James Byrd, W. D. Gildersleeve, Ernest Patterson, Mrs. A. E. Bert, A. E. Bert, T. W. Delaney and H. D. Palmer. Cooperation of all wardens is urged by Mr. Palmer, who reports that the assigned quota is larger than heretofore.

Federal Agency Seeking Crawler Tractors

PORTLAND, June 3—(AP)—Crawler tractors are sought by the War Production board. Edward L. Kropp, chief of the board's construction machinery division, said military demands have caused a shortage of the tractors for use in mining, lumbering and other industries. The machines will be purchased, rented or, if necessary, requisitioned, he said.
