

Robot Casualties in 3 Weeks More Than 10,000

(Continued from page 1) RAF had hit the Pas-De-Calais area again last night. In addition to the 8,000 hospitalized, Churchill said, many others went home after receiving first aid treatment.

More than 10,000 of the casualties were in London. Churchill called it a "very remarkable fact" that a "very large proportion" of the 2,750 bombs discharged from the French coast up to last midnight "either failed to cross the channel or have been shot down and destroyed by various methods."

These methods, he said, included "a great deployment of batteries, aircraft and balloons which have been very rapidly placed."

The prime minister disclosed that a special committee with "a Wash and pour boiling water over tomatoes; slip off the skins and grind the fruit. Add the salt and grated lemon rind. Measure exactly 3 1/2 cups of this mixture (add water to fill out last cup, if necessary) into a large kettle. Add the M.C.P. Pectin, stir well and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. NOW, add the sugar (which has been previously measured), mix well and bring to a full rolling boil. BOIL EXACTLY 4 MINUTES. Remove from fire, let boil subside, and skim by rans for 5 minutes. great number of scientists and engineers" at its disposal had been set up to advise on "offensive and defensive" methods. The flying bombs have killed more Britons in southern England than were killed in the first 15 days of the battle of Normandy, Churchill said. Although he announced that London was on a blitz basis, with casualty lists to be announced monthly, Churchill emphasized that military operations in France came first.

"I do not want there to be any misunderstanding about it," he said. "We shall not allow the battle operations in Normandy or the attacks we are making against special targets in Germany to suffer."

Churchill said that in addition to children, non-essential civilians would be encouraged to leave London but that all others must remain at their posts.

Tossing aside a hypothetical suggestion that parliament move away from London, Churchill growled: "Here we began the war and here we will see it ended."

Retaliation Dealt

"If it had not been for the bombing operations in France and Germany, the bombardment of London would no doubt have started perhaps six months earlier and on a very much heavier scale," Churchill told commons.

The prime minister said the British intelligence got its first information early in 1943 that the Germans were developing a long range weapon for the bombardment of London and that counter measures were studied immediately.

The bomber command sent its full strength against rocket bomb installations in Germany last August, Churchill said. "Very great damage was done to the enemy," he continued, "and a number of key German scientists including the head scientist who all were dwelling together in a so-called strength-through-joy establishment were killed."

Allied Aid Praised

Churchill was cheered when he said: "I must say a word about our American friends and the allies in London, from the highest official to the ordinary soldier whom one meets. They have in every way made common cause with us and have been forthcoming as helpers with assistance of every kind. No one can visit a bomb site where an explosion has recently taken place but see how very quickly they are upon the scene and give a helping hand to anyone in distress."

"The same is true of the great headquarters under General Eisenhower where they are conducting this great battle (in Normandy) and where, apart from that, every conceivable assistance is given our forces and aid services."

The German radio reacted promptly, saying that "Churchill made no attempt to minimize the effects of the flying bomb." It asserted that "Churchill defended himself against charges that the British government had almost completely prevented discussion of the effects of V-1 (robot bomb) and that counter measures were insufficient."

Air Force Strikes Heavily

Around 1,000 U. S. bombers struck northwest Germany, the robot launching sites and enemy air bases in France today and 300 others kept chopping at railroads leading to the Normandy front. For almost the first time since the invasion, German fighters appeared in force over the battles in Normandy and 62 were shot down yesterday and early today. The allies lost 29.

Germany possibly was under coordinated attack from Italy and England, for radio Berlin asserted that other American bombers and fighters were approaching southern Germany and Austria.

Squadrons of Mosquitos bombed a synthetic oil plant in the Ruhr near Gelsenkirchen, leaving it wreathed in smoke two miles high. Other industrial targets were hit in western Germany and four Nazi ships creeping down the coast toward the Frisian Islands, felt the crash of RAF Wellington bombs.

Jap Fleet Not Ignored

At Saipan, which is 3,800 miles nearer Nimitz' China coast goal than he was at Pearl Harbor a year ago, Nimitz conceded the fighting had been tougher than expected.

"Our troops have the situation well in hand and I think our forces will push on rapidly to the (northeastern) end of the island," Nimitz said, at a diminishing rate in casualties.

Despite Japan's carrier and other warship losses June 19 in the Philippines sea, the enemy navy merits such consideration that "We take into account the estimated capability of the Jap fleet in every move we make," Nimitz cautioned.

That observation heightened interest in naval task force thrusts into the Volcano and Bonin islands to within less than 700 miles of Tokyo. "I believe we are approaching the peak of our efficiency in handling ships and planes," said Nimitz, whose fleet units have put ashore and guarded the Saipan invaders without losing a single warship so far.

Nimitz' attention was directed to the current drive of the Japanese to set up a railroad-linked defense zone all along the China coast.

"If anything, that would make us go faster (across the Pacific) if that were possible," he said.

NEW YORK, July 6—(AP)—The Tokyo radio said today that a force of United States cruisers had shelled Tinian and Guam islands yesterday and that two other islands in the Marianas—Rota and Pagan—had been attacked by American planes.

Tokyo radio quoted a Japanese imperial headquarters communique as saying five Japanese ships and 30 planes had been destroyed by the U. S. naval task force which thrust into the Bonin and Volcano islands to within some 500 miles of the Japanese homeland on July 3.

The Japanese asserted they had downed 74 American planes, while an official U. S. statement said six were lost.

Mauled Nazis Mopped Up Other soviet troops mopping up the Minsk region proceeded with the liquidation of battered remnants of the German 12th and 27th corps and the 35th tank corps.

Molodeczno, the latest major point to fall to the sweeping Russian offensive, was one of the mainstays of the Germans' 60-mile Vileika-Nevezh line, and a junction of the Minsk Vilno and Polotsk-Lida railroads.

The way now appeared open for a simultaneous advance by the 1st and 2nd Belorussian armies and the First Baltic army into Lithuania and Latvia.

There was no confirmation in Moscow of a German report that the vital communications center of Kowel, 215 miles southwest of Minsk, had been evacuated by Nazi troops. (Reuters quoted the Moscow radio as saying German souter-attacks were reported west of Molodeczno, but declaring "the red army, however, is sweeping the Germans away in its drive to the west.") ward the Gorin river and Pinsk. Military observers in Moscow saw in this new activity through the difficult marshes a challenge to Hitler's whole central position and, if coupled with the southern White Russian offensive, believed it should carry straight to Brest Litovsk and Warsaw.
