New Model Cars To Be Possible Soon After War

WASHINGTON, July 15—(AP)—When automobiles can be made again, the industry will be free to make new models rather than return to the 1942 models, vice chairman R. L. Boulware of the war production board said today.

The industry probably will be allowed to aim at a starting rate of 2,150,000 cars a year, about half of 1941 output, Boulware told reporters following a meeting on reconversion planning with the automobile industry advisory committee.

Boulware stated also that in WPB's opinion "it would be utterly hopeless to think" that the industry could start production lines rolling simultaneously. A simultaneous start had been advocated by the industry, in order to give no maker an advantage in the postwar market.

The new WPB order permitting every industry to build experimental models of planned postwar products, effective July 22, will rule out the possibility of any government requirement that all producers go back to their 1942 models, Boulware said.

However, automobile executives at the meeting reported little expectation that the first postwar cars would be substantially different from last year's made, Boulware added.

"This mainly because the companies almost unanimously report a shortage of technical help, including draftsmen, designers, engineers, and tool and die makers, who now are still deeply engaged in war work," the official said.

The industry spokesman asserted that war work still would come first in their plants, and that this would hinder any extensive designing of new models.

To be presented at an afternoon session of the group was WPB's "blue order" plan, under which manufacturers would be authorized to place orders for deferred delivery of materials and parts which would be needed later on.

Woman Sentenced on Child Stealing Charge

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 15—(AP)—Mrs. Helen McDermott Kruger, 23, of Vancouver, Wash., today was sentenced by Superior Judge Gordon Thompson to Tohachapi prison for women for not stealing charge.

The judge passed sentence after Mrs. Kruger, who had pleaded guilty, withdrew her application for probation at a hearing today. She told the court she wished to be sentenced to the California state prison for women in the hope that the "men's jail" which caused her troubles might be cured there.

REGARDING MOSQUITOES

By Charles V. Stanton

WE have observed in recent days an unusually large number of mosquitoes in and around our home. We cannot remember any previous year in which this particular type of pest has been sufficiently numerous to prey upon our nerves and epidermis.

It might not be so disturbing if it were not for their nocturnal habits. About the time we settle down for a good night's sleep they start making use of our bed as a practice flying field.

If all the blood we've given up to the mosquitoes could have been contributed to the Red Cross, there would be no further appeals for donors. In fact, we're seriously at work on a problem of crossing the blamed things with cormorants, with rings around their necks, and training them to gather and deliver blood to the Red Cross, and thus save the expense of plasma stations and mobile units.

There is another thing about mosquitoes to which we object and that is their off-key singing. We admit our education in music did not take as well as our vaccination. We had our share of "or else—" piano practice; innumerable scales to the ticking of a monotonous metronome, exercises and tuneless "pieces."

We have always associated mosquitoes with picnics and fishing trips. There, we expect them. But to have them attack in the dead of night and in the peace and security of your own home, even invading the privacy of the bedroom creates a serious and menacing problem.

But perhaps our complaint stems from ignorance. It seems our mosquitoes really are picayune by comparison, for, as we told our troubles to Frank Jenkins, editor of the Klamath Falls Herald and News and president of the Southern Oregon Publishing company, who has been doing a swell job pinch-hitting on the News-Review telegraph desk this week, he gave us an old-fashioned horse laugh.

Since the naval training station was established at Klamath Falls, he reports, the mosquitoes in that part of the country have been teaching the fledgling pilots new tactics in formation flying. And when we told him that none of our mosquitoes were larger than good-sized shepherd dogs, he laughed in derision and told us of the sleepy-eyed grease monkey who, by mistake, serviced a Klamath county mosquito instead of a bomber and was viciously attacked and sent to the hospital with critical wounds because he filled it up with 80 instead of 100-octane gas.

ed today he was opposed to Henry Wallace as vice-presidential candidate.

"But," he added in a speech before the Willamette democratic society, "I am obligated to vote for him at Chicago by the pledge I took when I became candidate for delegate."

Other delegates, speaking at the same meeting, said they did not consider themselves bound to support Wallace. No vice-presidential candidate appeared on Oregon preferential primary ballot, but Wallace received the greatest number of write-in votes.

OUT OUR WAY

Wild Spree in 9th Puts Seals Back On Top

(By the Associated Press) San Francisco's persistent Seals found themselves back in first place in the Pacific coast baseball league today thanks to a wild ninth-inning scoring spree accompanied by loud Portland protests against an umpire's verdict.

The Seals, in and out of the lead since April, broke up a 3-5 tie in the ninth at Portland last night with a four-run rally off three hits and two Beaver errors.

Empire Bill Doran's ruling that Henry Steinbacher was safe at first on an attempted Portland double play with two away caused such a wall of protest, including a barrage of pop bottles, that the game was delayed 10 minutes.

Oakland bowed out of the top spot on the loss to San Diego despite the four-hit pitching of 17-year-old Marty Martinez, who was jerked in the ninth inning of his initial mound job for the Gais.

Los Angeles moved up a notch into third place by blanking Sacramento, 2-0, on southpaw Ray Prim's neat one-hitter. Outfielder Frank Kelleher smashed a homer with bases loaded in the first inning to give Hollywood a 4-2 win over Seattle. The loss dropped Seattle to fourth.
