OVERSEAS SERVICE FOR WAVES IS PREDICTED IN NEAR FUTURE

Overseas service for Waves is assured if the present proposed bill for permitting these members of the women's reserve of the navy is passed by congress, according to Chief W. E. Bell, of the Roseburg Navy Recruiting station, which handles Wave applications in this area. Observers in Washington, D. C., predict that congressional approval will be given.

The three main hurdles previously preventing assignment of Waves to overseas duty have been overcome, the proposal has been approved by the house naval affairs committee, the navy now has real use for Waves at overseas stations—an estimated 25,000 of them to start with—and the plan now has the popular approval of both Waves and women's groups.

Summer recess of the senate has caused a delay in consideration of the bill. It was under scrutiny by the senate naval affairs committee with every assurance of passing that group when the solons adjourned for the summer.

Every provision is made for the maximum of protection, healthful working and living conditions, and safety of Waves who will serve overseas in this measure. They will not be in areas where conditions are dangerous or critical.

Waves will have many new opportunities to travel and to enjoy the adventure of living in foreign lands when the Waves overseas bill is passed—all in addition to the travel and training opportunities now given these young women.

For the information of those young women who are interested in finding out about service in the Waves, Chief W. E. Bell will be at the Roseburg recruiting station in the Chamber of Commerce office on Friday and Saturday, July 21 and 22, to answer questions and to assist those who are interested in making application for enlistment.

Employment of 600 Mexicans Gets Approval

CORVALLIS, July 19—(AP)—Employment of 600 Mexican farmhands in industry during the mid-summer slack season was authorized today by the War Food administration and the War Manpower commission.

J. R. Beck, state supervisor of emergency farm labor, said the imported workers would not be needed on farms from the completion of the canning pea and cherry harvests until the fall harvest opens around August 20.

The Mexicans may be employed in forestry, food processing, grain warehouses and similar industrial jobs closely connected with agriculture, Beck said.

A total of 3700 Mexicans are now employed in the state, and an additional group of 900 are expected for the farm peak labor period, August 20-October 10.

Arizona Senator, 2 Congressmen Are Renominated

(By the Associated Press.) Senator Carl Hayden, who has represented Arizona in Washington throughout its 32 years of statehood, has cleared a major hurdle—democratic renomination—in seeking another six year term.

With the count of yesterday's primary election about half complete, Hayden had more than a two to one lead over his closest opponent, Joe Conway four times attorney general.

Two other western states, Wyoming and Montana held primaries yesterday, but in neither was a senatorial seat at stake.

Fred R. Fickett, former superior court judge, had no opposition for the republican senatorial nomination in Arizona normally a democratic state.

Gov. Sidney P. Osborn, democrat, was renominated for a fourth term and Arizona's two representatives, John R. Murdoch and Richard F. Harless won democratic renomination comfortably. Margaret Adams Rockwell and A. M. Ward had no opposition for the republican congressional nominations.

A race between two Union Pacific railroad conductors for the democratic nomination for Wyoming's one representative seat featured the primary in that state. Charles E. Norris of Laramie had a 10 to one lead over Clyde E. Winters of Cheyenne after half of the votes were counted. Republican incumbent Rep. Frank A. Barrett was unopposed.

In Montana, Gov. Sam C. Ford seemed assured of republican renomination and Supreme Court Justice Lief Erickson held a substantial lead over two opponents for the democratic gubernatorial nomination.

DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

There is a time for humility and a time for assertion. Not self-assertion but assertion of the truth and of our convictions. Paul was not afraid to say: "I know." It is always refreshing to hear that note of confidence in Christian witness. Let us note some things which we know as Christians. We know that God is faithful, is powerful and responsive to our prayers. We know that Christ lives and reigns. We know that the Holy Spirit casts out fear and instills power and love. We know that the word of God is also the word of life. We know that the grace of God is greater than our sins. We know that love is stronger than hate and that faith is stronger than doubt. We know that the disciplined life is bound to win. We know that the Lord gives a crown of righteousness to all who have fought a good fight and kept the faith. We know these things because we know Him and are persuaded that He is able to keep that which we have committed unto Him. We know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is. We know that all things work together for good to them that love God. To them that are called according to his purpose. Truly the Christian is well equipped with the promise of God. Amen.

Goods Knit By Red Cross Prove Boon Overseas

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE LIBERATOR STATION, England—Mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts of American fliers fighting the Germans from bases in Britain by knitting these sweaters, hoods, caps and gloves have prevented many a serious case of frostbite.

For the crews of Eighth air force heavy bombers operating from England take their huge Liberators and Fortresses to high altitudes where temperatures range far below zero. And the wool sweaters, hoods and gloves have prevented many a case of severe frostbite and physical damage often more severe than wounds received from anti-aircraft fire.

Testimony to the high value of the woolen clothing knitted for the Red Cross by women at home comes in a letter to Mr. Franklin Voyt of Roseburg, Oregon, American Red Cross field director of a B-24 Liberator heavy bomber group, commanded by Colonel Arthur J. Pierce of Montague, Mass.

The letter written following a survey by Captain Cecil W. Hoff of Stoddard Ave. San Bernardino, Calif., a flight surgeon of the same group, stresses "the tremendous value of this equipment, which is proven in the fact that each frost bite costs the individual involved at least two days of course, proportioned to the severity of the injury. The part played by these simple garments has been tremendous in the conservation of efficient man power among flying personnel."

Thanks Expressed Captain Hoff also points out that one group wearing Red Cross clothing over a period of a week suffered no cases of frostbite while a similar group without the woolen hoods, sweaters and scarves suffered 21 cases of frostbite.

Captain Hoff concluded "We wish to thank you for your fine work in supplying this equipment and regret that we cannot personally commend the mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts who have produced these valuable garments."

Mr. Voyt's group which has employed Red Cross clothing from the start of its European operations has suffered virtually no cases of frostbite.

This group recently received official commendation from Lieutenant General James H. Doolittle, commanding Eighth air force, for combat achievement on their first mission which was against Berlin. It was the longest initial assault ever flown by any group in the history of the European theater and one of the heaviest daylight bombardments of the German capital on record. Hugo fires raged in the city for days afterward.
