other places, they smacked a rocket bomb at a mental factory away up on the Baltic.

THE Russians are nearing the Bug river. It will be interesting to see what happens when they get there. The Bug is the line the Germans in Poland are supposed to have been falling back to.

FROM AP Correspondent Gilmore in Moscow comes this possibly significant dispatch: "There is every reason to believe in Moscow today that the red army is READY to hurl the greatest offensive in Russia's three years of war against the staggering Germans. It may throw the whole front (from Romania to Finland) into violent activity."

The reason this dispatch may be significant is that it passed the Russian censorship.

IN Italy, our men are reported to have forced a bridgehead over the Arno river (the next German line in Italy). We've nearly outflanked the important Italian port of Livorno (maybe Leghorn on your map).

Don't wholly ignore the Italian fighting. Italy is ANOTHER place to kill Germans.

WATCH Guam. It's the present Pacific hot spot.

In addition to our bombers, our battleships, cruisers and destroyers move in to bombard its defenses. (Our warships can move in so close because the Japs are short of air power there.) This is the 13th straight day it has been pounded.

Guam is important because it is ANOTHER Jap strong point in the screen of islands defending the Philippines, the China coast and Japan itself.

THERE has been some kind of shake-up in the Jap army and navy.

Saipan's loss was a hard jolt. Somebody has to be spanked. One guesses Tojo has arranged a public spanking.

That is probably all it amounts to.

TOJO says (for home consumption): "Japan has come to face an UNPRECEDENTEDLY great crisis."

That is the TRUTH. But again don't jump to conclusions.

Tojo tells the Japs they are hard up against it because he knows that will make them FIGHT HARDER.

THIS is rather good: Tojo says he is "moved by great trepidation by the thought that deep anxiety has been caused the Mikado."

He is moved to greater trepidation by the thought that HE, Tojo, might get caught in a blight of the slowly tightening line.

THE home front war at Chicago is cut and dried as to the presidency, but the boys are being made to feel that they have a little freedom in the choice of vice-president. FDR says in a letter he'd like to have Wallace, but won't be too tough about it.

His exact words are: "I like him and respect him and he is my personal friend. I personally would vote for him if I were a delegate. At the same time, I do not wish to appear in any way as dictating to the convention."

"Obviously, the convention must do the deciding."

WHAT if the convention had decided on BYRD?

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline tooth-act powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (detracts breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

EASE DIAPER RASH
 Soothe and cool diaper rash, also often help prevent it, by sprinkling baby after every change with MESSANA. This soothing, cooling, medicated powder cools out stinging and itching. A favorite for over 40 years. Contains ingredients often used by specialists to relieve these messes. Large supply costs little. Get Messana.

PICKING ON THE OLD MAN

By Charles V. Stanton

A RECENT copy of Life magazine says that Roosevelt has campaigned against Hoover three times. From the sound of the democratic nominating convention, he is preparing to make his fourth campaign against the old man.

The New Deal smear artists have succeeded in painting Herbert Hoover in lurid colors, and have even added horns, tails and hoofs, upon occasion. He became the first victim of the New Deal refinements of the ancient political art, and the party in power is keeping the picture freshened up. The New Dealers have made Hoover the symbol of republicanism and each campaign has been waged on the same program upon which the current administration rose to power. Now the old canvas is being dusted off in the convention hall. The party lithographers are smearing on fresh color. Speaker after speaker refers to the days of 1931. They shudder at the depression and the bread lines. They point with pride to the heroic measures invoked by President Roosevelt in successfully preventing wholesale starvation, while carefully skirting the waste of taxpayer money and the fact that there was little rise in private employment until the country was on the verge of war.

Herbert Hoover had the misfortune to be president at a time in the nation's history when no man could have averted the economic catastrophe that had been generating for many years. It is our personal opinion that had Hoover remained in office we would have recovered from the depression much more quickly than we did and without all the waste and extravagance which featured the New Deal. But that is beside the point.

The thought we have in mind is that it is taking unfair advantage of an old man to pick on him four times in a row. The democratic convention is at work at the job again and seems to have improved with practice.

But we doubt very much if, despite the convention's attempt to revive the 1932 issues, they will be able to confine their campaign this time to Herbert Hoover. There is a younger and more aggressive opponent in the race. The smear artists are not overlooking this fact.

In a "Suggestion for Editorial Comment," contained in a weekly clip sheet, the democratic national committee asks: "And to whom would the Roosevelt haters entrust with that charge?" (The construction of that sentence is theirs, don't blame us.) "A young man, whose sole claim to eminence was as a successful county attorney, who was elevated by a political accident to a governorship, the routine of which office he has hardly had time to master. Mr. Dewey may be a genius, to whom experience is unnecessary, statecraft an inspiration, and national and international wisdom a natal gift—but what evidence do they offer of such precocity?"

We might answer that question with another, which is a standard form of argument. Our question: What experience did Roosevelt have before he became president?

If our histories are correct, he was a small-time politician, who, in return for favors, was rewarded with a position as assistant secretary of the navy under Woodrow Wilson. After going down to defeat as a running mate with Al Smith, he became a vice-president of an insurance company. In the convention of 1932 he was nominated for president as a compromise candidate between the Smith and McAdoo factions.

As governor of New York his principal achievement was running the state into debt to the tune of around $75 million, but he proved his genius in spending other people's money much more brilliantly after being elected president, where he could work with billions instead of millions.

It would appear that Dewey's background is somewhat superior to Roosevelt's.

But, regardless of that, we rather anticipate the youthful Dewey will force the campaign to center around himself rather than permitting rebashing of the old Herbert Hoover campaign. We doubt if the New Deal will be as successful this time as in the past in selecting the field upon which to do battle.

Cigarette Makers Told To Cut Tobacco Buying

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—Cigarette manufacturers yesterday were ordered by the War Food administration to restrict their purchases of 1944 crop flue cured tobacco to 74 per cent of the quantity used by them for manufacturing purposes in the year ending June 30.

A WFA spokesman said, however, there probably would be little if any cut in the cigarette supply for the nation during the next year compared with the past year.

Fred Assenheimer of Gardiner Passes Away

Fred Assenheimer, aged about 75 years, one of Gardiner's "first citizens," died Wednesday in a Eugene hospital.

Born in Germany, Assenheimer came to Oregon in 1890 and engaged in farming on Smith river. He assisted in organizing the Reedsport bank in 1914 and was a director of that institution continuously. He was manager of the Gardiner hotel for many years and helped promote the first power plant at Gardiner and the first cannery in the lower Umpqua district.

His death followed injuries suffered in a fall at his home several days ago.

U. S. to Build 110 B-29s in July, Solon Asserts

HOUSTON, Tex., July 20—(AP)—Rep. Albert Thomas, (D-Tex.) yesterday asserted in an address before the Houston Lions club that the United States will build 110 giant B-29 Superfortresses during July.

"We have 85 aircraft carriers now," Thomas said, "and there have been 34 carriers leased to our allies."

Superfortresses recently bombed the Japanese mainland.

on lightweight turkeys, were announced by the OPA.

The new prices, effective today, apply to all turkeys marketed from July through October. OPA said, however, that the increases would have virtually no effect on the consuming public use.

because the armed forces would get most of the turkeys marketed from now until October.

The increases were ordered to insure early marketing and processing of birds needed by the army for domestic and overseas use.
