In Service on Roseburg Streets

Described by George Frew, city street superintendent, as "the slickest rig I've ever seen," a "Guttersnipe" pick-up street sweeper, pictured above, was placed in service by the Roseburg street department today. Purchased from the city's street equipment reserve fund, the sweeper was bought after inspections of various types. Shipped to Portland by the manufacturer, the Municipal Supply Co., South Bend, Ind., the machine was demonstrated by the distributors, Nelson Equipment Co., Portland, at Portland, Salem, Albany and Corvallis while en route to Roseburg.

The machine is built to sweep along gutters, after pavements have been flushed. A whirling brush cleans dirt from the curbs and a pick-up brush deposits all sweepings in a three-fourths cubic yard hopper. A front spray prevents dust from the sweeping operation. The machine has only one wheel in the rear, giving it a very short turning radius. All controls are hydraulically operated from the driver's compartment, making it possible for one man to do the work formerly requiring three employees.

The speed at which sweeping can be conducted will permit cleaning of from 15 to 20 miles daily out of the approximately 60 miles of paved gutters to be covered.

The street department, Superintendent Frew reports, has been badly handicapped by the labor shortage, and the new machine will permit a much more efficient job of cleaning, at the same time preventing dust damage in the business area.
