REVENUE FROM FISHING

By Charles V. Stanton

If the general public could only be educated to understand the value of fish for sports purposes, as compared with those taken commercially, there would be an immediate end to net fishing. Such is the opinion of sportsmen making up the North Umpqua Rod and Gun club, as expressed at a meeting recently held at Idleyld.

The opinion is one in which we fully concur. Being greatly interested in sports fishing, we believe we speak somewhat as an expert on this subject of cost. We are not alleging any ability to speak as expert on fishing. Please don't misunderstand.

But when it comes to determination of what it costs us to catch a fish from the river as compared to the expense of buying one from the market, we can qualify—and how! Not that we have any statistics. We would be scared to death to face the facts. By the time we count the cost of equipment, money spent on travel, rent on cabins and boats, operating an outboard motor, etc., etc., and when we divide this by the pounds of fish taken by the practice known as "angling,"—Brother, it costs plenty!

But a commercial fisherman goes out with a net, catches a few salmon—and they have been very few in recent years—and delivers them to a cannery or peddler and gets from 6 to 8 cents per pound, on an average.

Thus a medium sized chinook salmon might bring $2 or $2.50 to the commercial fisherman, while a sports fisherman would put anywhere from $5 to $25 into general circulation, depending on whether he was home folks or tourist, to get a fish of comparable size on his line, and half the time he would lose the brute before he could bring him to gaff.

There is no use reciting statistics on the importance of the tourist dollar. We all know the tourist crop is the most profitable we can cultivate. There is nothing that will attract tourists like a good fishing stream. But a tourist will not linger long on a stream, no matter how beautiful, unless it contains fish.

The North Umpqua river is dependent upon ocean-run salmon and steelheads to maintain good fishing. Each run of large fish is followed by sea-going trout. Nearly all of our species of fish are migratory. When salmon runs are large, there is an accompanying abundance of cutthroat trout.

Immediately following the conclusion of the war there will be a new era of tourist travel. The Pacific coast will be thronged with people who have become travel hungry. Their war time savings will give them ample funds to spend. If we can assure them good fishing, they will spend their money in Douglas county. If the river is barren of fish, they will go elsewhere.

We can't expect good sports fishing as long as we permit a cork to remain in the mouth of the river in the form of nets.

Many attempts have been made to halt commercial fishing on the Umpqua and make it a strictly sports stream. These efforts have been defeated by commercial interests. But indications are that some of those who have been vigorously opposed to elimination of net fishing are beginning to realize the superior recreational and sports value of the river.

The money we have spent on trips to Murphy's landing, Winchester Bay, Umpqua beach, and other points on the lower river would amount to a considerable lump sum. No better sports fishing is to be found than is obtainable in the lower Umpqua and on beautiful Smith river in season. The same men who are now making a meager pittance from commercial fishing in the lower river could multiply their income many times by development of accommodations and services for sports fishermen. Some are beginning to realize this fact.

As claimed by the North Umpqua sportsmen, it is a matter of education. But education is a slow process, particularly when moneyed interests have a financial stake in preserving old methods. We only hope it is possible to develop an awareness of our opportunity in time to take advantage of the golden era that will follow conclusion of the war.

Lt. Plinn Laurance Begins Air Combat Service in Italy

15TH AAF IN ITALY Second Lieutenant Plinn A. Laurance, 22, of 1118 South Washington Ave., Whittier, Calif., has arrived overseas at this 15th air force fighter base in Italy to begin his combat career as a P-38 Lightning pilot against the axis.

Lt. Laurance's young wife resides at 504 East Lane, Roseburg, Oregon. Graduate of Roseburg Senior high school, Roseburg, and a fullerton junior college, Fullerton, Calif., Laurance deserted the class room for the air force July 18, 1942, enlisting at Los Angeles, Calif., as a private. He later took flight training and won his wings and commission Jan. 7, 1944, at Williams Field, Chandler, Ariz.

Laurance will fly with the top scoring fighter group in the Mediterranean area. Commanded by Lt. Col. William P. Litton, Shaw, Miss., this unit is credited with the destruction of over 540 enemy aircraft in aerial conflict, and is one of the veteran groups in this theater, having entered combat December 23, 1942, in the early stages of the African campaign.

While the treasury declined official comment, it was learned that the division recently refused to permit a shipment of some $2,000,000 from New Orleans, and that no further shipments would be allowed pending some change in the diplomatic situation.

Argentina had been withdrawing gold from this country for several months. Withdrawals reached a total somewhere between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000. Some persons thought the halt of gold shipments might possibly be the freezing of all Argentine funds in this country.

The freezing of Argentine funds has been under consideration for months, with action expected at almost any time. The failure of the government to take this drastic step presumably has resulted from the state department's desire to try to work out some understanding with the Argentine government.

Temperance societies were originated by Henry Calhoun, who as secretary of War in 1818 prohibited alcohol altogether in the U. S. army.

U. S. Clamps Down On Argentine Gold

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—The treasury's foreign funds control division has halted the withdrawal of Argentine gold from the United States.

Peaks Climbed by Douglas Scouts

CAMP LUCKY BOY—Twenty-nine Boy Scouts and leaders from this Boy Scout summer camp climbed the 10,037-foot Middle Sister last Wednesday, with Robert Lemon and Elmer McBeck, Eugene Oldmans, as guides.

Among those to reach the top of the high peak were Duane Cheek, Bill Matthews and George Shrum of Roseburg; Lloyd Holgate of Sutherlin, Dick Bonebrake of Melrose, and Eugene Andrews of Yoncalla.

The climb was the third to be held from this Boy Scout camp, and the group was the second to reach the top. The party left Camp Lucky Boy Tuesday, staying at Sunshine shelter Tuesday night and starting the climb at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning.

More fortunate than the second group from the camp who attempted the climb two weeks ago and was stopped by heavy clouds, this party viewed a most major peak, including Mt. Washington, Three Fingers Jack, Mt. Jefferson, Mt. Hood, Mt. Adams, Mt. St. Helens, Broken Top mountain and Diamond Peak.

The Middle Sister trips at this year's scout camp were a part of an intensive hiking program, which also included trips to Gold Hill and Buck mountain.

Word has been received by Mrs. Hedwig Watzig of Roseburg that her son, First Sgt. F. E. Watzig, has been transferred from Italy to Africa and is now acting as a flight chief.

Mrs. Grace Fiekens, Umpqua, has received word that her son, Bill Van Keaton, has arrived safely in England, where he will be stationed at an army base.

Floyd L. Andrus and Wilbur R. Thomas, both of Roseburg, were with paratroopers who floated in to France for the first attack on the enemy on continental Europe. Sgt. Andrus and PFC Thomas are with the 82nd airborne division. They were landed near Chef du Pont, where they met machinegun fire before they hit the ground. For 34 hours the men were in constant combat and held two strong German divisions from reaching the beaches to reinforce troops opposing the landing on the Normandy coast.

Pat Jannelli, a member of Roseburg high school's football team last season, and who also has had baseball experience, is serving as manager of an undeveloped baseball team composed of boys in the army sponsored training reserve program at Montana State college. Jannelli enlisted in the air corps reserve following graduation from high school with the class of 1944.

DIAL LOG We humbly and apologetically sit down to write Dial Log today, knowing you are probably thinking we don't know what we're talking about anyhow since after all the big buildup and enthusiasm you got no "Clisco Kid" last night. Sorry, but it's just one of those things over which we in this "jittery" industry have no control—a last-minute change we didn't have a chance to tell you about. But here's one thing we're almost positive about—Double or Nothing tonight at 6:30 and Name That Song at 8:30. Dad Williams, come, says there's nothing like songs—that songs are the greatest common denominator in America. To which we respond with a fervent "Amen." Saturday's schedule brings its usual good variety—news, drama and music with service forces shows Hello Mom at 9:30, Navy Bulletin Board at 2, and Halls of Montezuma, Hawaii Calls, American Eagle in Britain and Flying High between 3 and 5. Music for Remembrance at 5:15, fifteen minutes devoted to the best in music with Robert Stanley's orchestra. There's a one-time replacement for Chicago Theatre of the Air at 6: You'll hear the first hour of the annual Chicago Music Festival broadcast from Chicago's Soldier Field and this year dedicated to the men and women fighting for victory. Among the features of the program will be a trombone choir, a mass accordion and concert band and a little children's choir. Here's something else that sounds especially interesting—the Chicago All-Girl Piano orchestra. It consists of nineteen girls at twelve pianos and they'll play two selections. Lone Ranger fans will please note the addition of Red Ryder at 7:30 to Saturday night's programs. We hear tell he's mighty good. Downbeat Derby at 8 reminds us—have you sent in your record selection yet? We've always intended to but being the world's greatest procrastinator has prevented it so far. Nevertheless we urge you to do so of course. This is just a brief touch on programs for Saturday. Plenty of good ones left which we've not sufficient room to mention. Don't miss any of them. Dial 1490 and stay right there throughout the day and night!

NON-SQUEAK CHALK NEW YORK—Squeak of chalk on slate blackboards is due to be as outmoded as McGuffey's reader in New York schools. A glass surface on which a specially designed dustless chalk will be noiseless is one of the new types of boards being considered in a reconditioning program for schools here.

Portland-Vancouver Area Population Gain Heavy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—(AP)—The population of the Portland-Vancouver area of Oregon and Washington increased 159,275 to a total of 660,583 from April 1940 to May 1944. Immigrants during the period totaled 222,134.

The census bureau announced the figures based on a sample census, one of ten taken in congested areas of the country. It predicted that after the war the desire of reunited families and of families now doubling up in living quarters would provide a sizable backlog of demand for houses built during the war and for new construction.

The survey took in Portland city, Multnomah county, Washington county and Clackamas county, Oregon, and Clark county, Washington.
