Whiz Kid

Kids love to take gadgets, such as alarm clocks, apart, but here's one who puts things back together. Jack Butler, 11-year-old Chicago "Whiz Kid," is shown re-assembling the 500-odd parts of an aircraft carburetor at the Bendix Aviation Corp., a job he completed in 90 minutes. His only guide is an "exploded photographic view," showing the component parts, and Jackle, working regularly after school, serves as "guinea pig" to test value of photos.
