Sticks Are 'Secret Weapon'

Something as simple as a bundle of sticks turns out to be a "secret weapon" of war. The four-ton bundle of chestnut palings, called a "fascine," seen on tank in photo above, is used to level off anti-tank ditches or streams which hold up tank's advance. The tank pictured is one of the hitherto secret "AVRES," whose novel mortars cracked the Atlantic Wall and are now blasting the Siegfried Line forts.
