planes never got close enough to strafe and batter.

HERE is still fierce fighting at Arnhem.

Some time in the night, the Germans crossed over to the SOUTH BANK, but were pushed hack. Retiring, they DESTROY-ED the NORTHERN AP PROACHES to the bridge thus indicating that they still hold it intact.

The fact that they haven't destroyed it suggests that they still want to use it for counter-attacks against us -such as the apparently abortive one last night. They'll destroy the bridge as soon as they come to regard it as a liability rather than an asset that is to say, whenever they think we have strength enough to push over it. We're still pushing the Germans hard clear down to Switzer land presumably to keep the Germans from shifting reinforcements to the north.

THE Russians, already holding most of the most of the passes out of Poland on the north and probal OVER the Hungarian border the south and southeast, open strong propaganda drive to duce the Hungarians to surrend -pointing out that it still is too late and that Romania v well treated when she gave he self up.

glance at the map gives a fi A idea of present Russian sti togy. The reds are systematical cutting off ALL the German he territory to the east and souther and moving up to the Germ borders probably aiming to a there before winter. We're ready to the German border the west and HOPE to have t mazis driven out of Italy by win-

BACK FROM VACATION

By Charles V. Stanton

LERE we are back from a week's vacation. Vacations apn parently were invented because they make a person so glad to get back on the job. We know that people in essential occupations are urged not to take vacations, but we quickly learned our job is not essential. Far from it! It's hard on a guy's ego to leave what he thinks is a key desk in an establishment like ours and then come home and learn that everything went smoothly, that efficiency was not impaired in the least, and, in fact, few people even realized he had been absent.

Vacations certainly show the fallacy of the indispensability argument; just like sticking your finger in a pail of water, pulling it out quickly and looking for the hole.

Of course, whenever we go on a vacation, we go fishing. Just why we couldn't be like some of those people who can sit around all day at a cozy bridge table, or just relax on a cushion and really rest, we can't understand. Or why couldn't we have a hobby such as making shadow pictures on the wall, or collecting buttons and things? But instead of taking things easy and enjoying a hobby with a mental build up we MUST go fishing.

We left a nice, warm, comfortable home, where we could park the carcass in an easy chair under a reading lamp, and beside the radio, and paid enough in meeting a week's rent to buy the cold, damp, underfurnished beach cabin where we spent the week.

Having squeezed the A tickets to get to our destination, and being dubious about getting home, we were prevented from touring the numerous fishing haunts where we were wont to spread our fancy lures in past seasons. But it was an easy walk to the boathouse where we could procure various assortments of craft, each apparently designed for the sole purpose of breaking a guy's back in the shortest possible time.

Having had previous experience with coast climate, we donned our long-handled underwear only to encounter one of the hottest days of the year, with calm water, a clear sky and a blistering sun. So the next day we dressed lightly, and the wind started to blow off the North pole. And the third day it rained-and we mean rained!

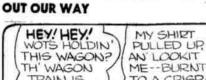

It was ludierous to see the fish try to jump. It was raining so hard that when they leaped they would just keep swimming on up out of sight. We read of an airplane crash and are positive it resulted from a collision with a mudcat taking a sun bath on a top cloud.

We speak of mudeats because that was about all we could catch. There were plenty of fish. Salmon could be seen jumping everywhere. They frolicked around the boat, cavorting with the utmost abandon. They leaped hither and yon-ahead, behind and on each side-but would they hit a spinner? No, they would not!

We have as fancy an assortment of fishing hardware as one could ask. We carry around a tackle box filled to the brim with gadgets presumably irresistible to denizens of the bring deep. But could we get them to look at our delectable offerings? We could not! One husky specimen did take a sample. He wrestled it around a little while, then disgustedly spat it out and flipped his tail in disdain. We caught one young and foolish little one and, as we stood by with our prize, we watched a commercial fisherman unloading a ton and a half of glistening, fat salmon he had picked out of his nets.

So, after a week, we brought our sunburned, sore and aching body back to the easy chair and the radio and have 7:00-State settled down again for the daily grind-thank Goodness!

By SUSAN Please consult the radio section or the listings of all political political of for the listings of all pointed speeches, because lots of them are coming up through the bal-ance of the week. As a matter of fact there will probably be lots are coming up through the bar ance of the week. As a matter of fact there will probably be lots of them between now and elec-tion day, and we just can't seem to get them all straightened out in our mind. So-to avoid any ap-pearance of partisanship, when in truth it would only be further proof of our absent-mindedness, we are ignoring all political speeches from here on in ex-cept for the presidential candi-dates.
