Join the Russians... Warsaw is said to be almost as completely destroyed as was Stalingrad.

To us outsiders, who know only what little we are told by the insiders, there seems to be a great deal that doesn't meet the eye in connection with this Polish patriot uprising in Warsaw.

We can't help feeling that the Russians haven't fought as hard as they might have fought to relieve them. Since no one doubts for even a moment the fighting prowess of the Russian armies, the thought naturally occurs to us that there may be political reasons back of what has happened.

THIS General Bor who led the Warsaw uprising takes his orders from the Polish government-in-exile in London. A price has been placed on his head by both the Germans and the soviet-supported Polish national liberation committee whose headquarters are in Moscow.

Moscow has no use for the Polish government-in-exile in London. Instead, it is backing the Polish faction (national liberation committee) that holds forth in Russia.

Russia's more or less vague explanation of what has happened in Warsaw is that the Poles there REVOLTED TOO SOON, and so it was impossible to rescue them from the fate they had brought upon themselves by acting prematurely.

AS was suggested here yesterday, political considerations become mixed with military considerations as wars near their inevitable end and the victors begin to look forward to the post war future and the national advantages to be gained in the settlement.

It is hard to escape at least the suspicion that these political considerations may have been back of what has happened to the Poles who fought too soon in Warsaw.

For our own good, we Americans must remember that Europe is being REDIVIDED into NEW spheres of influence. To think otherwise, we would have to disregard EVERY lesson of history.

This process is a part of the political warfare that matches side by side with the military warfare.

ALLIED troops are reported to have landed on Crete. The Germans are apparently getting out of Greece and the Aegean is hands of which Crete is one) as rapidly as possible.

It is fairly well accepted that in the REDIVISION of Europe Greece will be included in the British sphere of influence.

THE Pacific is still quiet except for our day in and day out destruction of Jap ships and planes. It is announced in San Francisco that our highest navy officers, including Admiral King from Washington and Nimitz from Pearl Harbor have just concluded a conference on Jap war strategy with Navy Secretary

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK

By Charles V. Stanton

THIS week of Oct. 1 to 8 is being observed as National Newspaper Week. The purpose is to inform the public of the importance of the press to America's continued freedom.

It has been belatedly recognized that control of the press in foreign countries assisted in making the current war possible. Had there been no limitation upon freedom to gather and report the news from all parts of the world, people would have been forewarned of the growing menace of war and popular opinion doubtless would have forced preventative measures.

But in several European nations the press was controlled and items of news emanating from those nations were censored by propaganda agencies which permitted nothing to escape which would allow the world at large to know the extent of preparations for war or of the plans for imposing force upon weaker countries.

Because this condition existed, and has been recognized as one of the factors permitting conditions contributory to war to come into existence, it is now being demanded that there be no limitation placed upon the right of one nation to freely gather news in another nation. There is general insistence that a clause to this effect be included in any peace treaty or agreement among powers following conclusion of the current war.

A free press throughout the world will be one of the greatest safeguards for continued and permanent peace.

But here in our own land there are forces which would, if they could, prevent free dissemination of news.

Newspapers throughout the United States adopted a voluntary code of censorship at the beginning of this war. A plan was worked out between the press and the military services to provide the greatest possible security in matters of information which might be of value to the enemy. The newspapers of the country accepted this code voluntarily and without duress. The code was adopted for purposes of military security but has been too often used for political expediency and for controlled propaganda from agencies not affiliated with the armed services.

As long as there is freedom of the press there will be expression of differences of opinion. As long as differences of opinion may be freely expressed freedom can be preserved. Freedom ends where a controlled press begins.

Today the press of this country is performing a magnificent job. Facilities for transmission of news have made remarkable advancement. Pictures may be flashed across oceans from the battlefields to be reprinted within the space of a comparatively few minutes upon the front pages of our newspapers. By cable and by radio, trained writers report events transpiring in the most distant areas.

But the advancement of science only serves as an instrument to make more efficient the work of men and women who still must gather and report the news. The human element remains the primary means of news collection. Casualties among representatives of the press have been extremely heavy. Our war correspondents keep pace with the troops and sometimes are in advance of the fighting forces, although they go unarmed. They share danger and privation with the fighting men, all for the purpose that you may have the news quickly and as accurately as is humanly possible.

Into the newspaper you hold in your hands has gone the labor of thousands of people. For the few cents this particular issue has cost you have had the services of men and women in every country of the world—countless numbers of persons who have gathered the news from innumerable sources, those who have written the items, those who have transmitted it by any number of methods, the editors and rewrite men who have prepared it in various bureaus, the great throng of men and women who handle machines or which keep in repair the mechanical processes of news collection and dissemination, the typesetters, printers, and other craftsmen required in the task of placing the news in your hands.

The few pennies your paper costs serve to employ a great army of men and women who are so dedicated to their task that they willingly assume dangers and great sacrifices to be of service to you. And through their unselfish devotion they provide for you your greatest safeguard to your continued freedom. They are deserving of your resolve that freedom of the press must never be curtailed.

Forrestal, that MIGHT mean that the lid is about to be broken. Chungking says the Japs are starting an invasion of Fukien province (Fuechow principal city) Fukien province is just back of the Jap island of Formosa.

ON the home political front, Governor Warren of California says in Chicago:

"The New Deal giving them all the credit for being liberal at the outset, has gone to pieces like the wonderful one-hoss shay. There is no dominating principle that holds the New Deal together at this time."

"The season is TOO MUCH POWER retained TOO LONG. Too much power retained too long corrupts men's minds. History is quite plain on that point."

THE fourth term campaign to RETAIN POWER LONGER is based upon the solid, politically frozen South, which CANNOT vote for a republican; upon the three million federal office holders (Stricker, in a speech the other night, said it is a New Deal axiom that every individual added to the federal payroll is equivalent to FOUR additional votes for the New Deal) and upon the type of selfish PERSONAL interest that says in answer

DIAL LOG

We've just finished listening to the first of the World Series—and we're limp! The last half of the ninth practically finished us off and we've come to the conclusion that ball players earn their money—WOW! And so on to Thursday—and by the time this reaches print, we will have suffered with them through the second of the Series. But since today is Thursday, you can be soothed with Music You Remember at 6:30, then there is President Roosevelt's speech at 7 and Senator Cordon's homecoming speech at 8:30—this one to be broadcast over the state. It isn't often that we have the opportunity to originate a state-wide broadcast and the engineering staff is having a wonderful time being technical, while we stand by in open-mouthed admiration of their knowledge of what the gadgets are for. Ten o'clock will bring you the San Francisco Opera broadcast of La Boheme, Lucia Albanese, Francesco Valentino (you've heard them before because we used to have a Treasury Hour of Song program on which both appeared, frequently) and Charles Kullman sing the leads.

Friday morning there's Lanny and Ginger at 8:55—and we still haven't heard them—and World Series at 11:45. As a matter of fact Friday is quite a day for the boys who take their sports seriously since a fight is billed for Friday night. In the meantime our theme song is still "Take Me Out to the Ball Game!"

Words That Roll Off Your Tongue

Ed Hodges and the doctor were holding forth about how words only mean something when you think about them; and that a lot of words seem to lose their meaning just because they're used too glibly.

As the doctor put it, "They roll off your tongue without going through your mind. Take tolerance for instance... some of the people who use it most understand it least."

From where I sit, it looks like the doctor is right. But tolerance is mighty easy to understand.

Cool Spell Halts Surge Of Infantile Paralysis

PORTLAND, Oct. 5.—(AP)—The late-summer surge of infantile paralysis is waning, the state health officer said today. Dr. Frederick D. Stricker, reporting only 13 new cases in the state last week—compared with 29 a year ago—said he expected a steady drop in the disease from now until March. Infantile paralysis—though no one knows why—decreases in frequency with the onset of cool weather.
