

Shortage of Men Offers Slim Hope To Yearning Girls

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The census bureau came out today with some husband-hunting figures as disconcerting to the thoughtful bobby sox girl as a migraine headache to a hungry woodpecker.

There are only about 1,700,000 unmarried men between the ages of 20 and 34 years in civilian life today and—grab a firm brace on your hope chest—some 4,000,000 unmarried women in the same age group.

That is only 425-thousandths of a man apiece, if all the women have matrimony on their minds, and the population predictors have no reason to suspect that many of them don't.

For the first time in history, this erstwhile he-man republic has a feminine majority. Married and single, civilian and soldier, the bureau estimates there are 600,000 more women over 21 than there are men.

The bureau figures the war boom in marriages is about over, until the boys come home. Then, if the trend of World War I repeats itself, look for a sharp spurt in the orange blossom and bridal veil trade. The marriage rate of 10.5 per thousand in 1939 marched up to 13.1 in 1942, but slumped to 11.8 last year.

The bureau's latest figures show the median age of bridegrooms was 24.8 years, of brides 21.8. Statistically, that means that when Johnny comes marching home he's apt to fall for the little babe down the street rather than one of his former high school classmates.

Best Prospects in West
For girls who want to do something constructive about getting a husband, the charts point toward the west rather than the east, and to the small towns rather than the cities.

For girls really fearful of withering on the matrimonial vine, there's always Alaska, where the men outnumber the women 145.7 to 100.
