lost. One went down in enemy action—its tail hit by a Jap fighter (either out of control or deliberate suicide attack). It crashed in the sea east of Japan and apparently none of its crew got out.

The other failed to return. Two life rafts, bearing survivors of its crew, were picked up.

One B-29 came down at Saipan with only two of its four engines working. Several landed with only three engines going. Others landed at Guam, 150 miles to the south.

"I THINK," he says, "we caught the Jap flat-footed, but for reasons beyond my understanding. I imagine there will be a slight shift in the fighter command at Tokyo today."

He concludes:

"By and large, we can only be pleased with the mission as a whole. It wasn't perfect, not as good as we expected. It is a mistake to assume an attitude of overconfidence. Nevertheless, I am sure we can take care of ourselves and do a good job."

THIS is the point to keep in mind:

This raid on Tokyo is only the BEGINNING. The bombing of Japan's industrial heart will go on and on and on—like the bombing of Germany, which began so long ago and has been continued so relentlessly. It will become INCREASINGLY effective, as we LEARN NEW LESSONS from each raid.

The weight of this attack was directed at a big Jap plane factory. Hitherto we've been destroying Jap planes in action. Now we're beginning to destroy the nests in which they are hatched.

MOST of the Jap radio talk is the usual propaganda bunk. This sentence from a Tokyo broadcast, however, is significant:

"SAFETY DEVICES found on B-29s that have been shot down by us illustrate the COWARDICE of American aviators."

They ALSO illustrate the fundamental differences in the Jap mind and the American mind. The Jap idea is to DIE USELESSLY if you can't die usefully—to DIE, in any event. Our idea is to WASTE NO LIVES—to make the Jap do the useless dying.

As a result of these differences, Jap casualties in the Philippines, at the latest report, are EIGHT TIMES ours.

When the Jap is finally beaten, his wierd, sub-human mind will be largely responsible.

THERE is little change in the European fighting as this is written.

The big battle is still in the Aachen-Cologne area. The fighting there is unbelievably bitter. There are reports of German units fighting to the last man "who falls dead among the bodies of his comrades."

Keep in mind that the Germans are fighting with their BACKS TO A RIVER, whose bridges will probably be destroyed by our bombers. Why are they fighting so desperately IN FRONT of the Rhine?

Only the Germans know, but one naturally suspects that their defenses behind the Rhine may not be as strong as we have been led to believe.

THE French are cleaning up the German 19th army in the far south. The Germans thus trapped west of the Rhine are getting across to the east bank as best they can with insufficient bridges.

THE Russians take Hatvan and Miskolc in Hungary — two more stepping-stones toward Budapest. They're apparently starting in determinedly to wipe up the 300,000 Germans supposed to be trapped in Latvia.

That's a lot of Germans in the Russian rear. Obviously it wouldn't be wise to leave them there.

WE'RE inclined to wonder why the Russians don't his East Prussia harder. This East Prussia country is a maze of marshes and lakes. The Russians, accepted as the world's most efficient WINTER fighters, may be waiting for the final freeze-up that will make the going easier in such country.

When the Stars and Stripes fly over the White House, from sunrise to sunset, it indicates the President is in Washington.

WHY BUY WAR BONDS?

By Charles V. Stanton

THE Sixth War Loan campaign is making slow progress. Just at a time when we should be exhibiting great enthusiasm because of decisive victories being won by our fighting men overseas, we are letting a spirit of complacency and domestic differences enter into our war effort.

If our fighting forces were in dire straits, and there was in evidence a possibility of defeat, we would be throwing our dollars into the war effort without reserve. But because victory is assured and, in the opinion of many, is not too distant, we are slacking off, not only in financial support but also in production of supplies and material.

Our proverbial over-optimism is at work. Because we are making rapid progress everywhere on the fighting fronts, we are weakening on the home front, instead of tossing every possible resource into the effort to land the knockout punch as quickly as possble.

Never have we heard as many excuses for not buying war bonds as are being offered in the current drive.

Some people are still sulking over election results.

A man who in the past has invested large sums in war bonds recently was overheard to say that he wouldn't buy another bond.

"Let those people who voted for the New Deal buy the bonds," he said. "If they want that kind of a government, let them support it.'

We disagree most earnestly with that kind of thinking. We certainly do not like the New Deal. We did the best we could in our own small way to defeat it. We took great personal pride in election returns from Douglas county, where it was shown very emphatically that the New Deal is in disfavor.

But this is a country of majority rule, even if we do have the feeling that part of the majority was voting selfishly. Certainly the minority showing was sufficient to indicate that, in spite of handicaps of corrupt politics, radical influences, organized efforts by selfish "gimme" interests, and other factors contributing to the majority victory, there is an almost equal division of sentiment as to governmental policy. The existence of such a large and positive minority assures utmost caution by the administration in future conduct.

It is worth something to be able to say "No." There are few countries in the world today where a man can walk into an election booth and mark his ballot in the negative. Certainly it is worth the price of a good many war bonds just to have that privilege.

Regardless of whether we favor the policies of the administration, our responsibility remains unchanged.

The war will not stop because we fail to buy bonds. We have contracted supplies and equipment for a long time in the future. Our production machinery can turn out only a certain amount of goods in a given time. We already have apportioned money to buy war supplies faster than our factories can produce. We can go right ahead buying materials of war and meet the cost by direct taxation. The individual taxpayer must pay the bill in the long run.

By purchasing war bonds we secure first mortgage securities on our own individual debt. We provide ourselves with a backlog of purchasing power to assure postwar prosperity. We defend ourselves against inflation.

More important, we indicate to our enemies a determination to back the war effort to the limit. They have only one reason today for continuing to fight in the face of certain defeat. They are simply postponing final settlement in the hope we will grow tired of warfare and will accept compromise terms, rather than inflict total and crushing defeat. Our complacency in the current war bond drive will be interpreted by enemy propaganda agencies as a trend toward a willingness to compromise. We know that is not the truth, but our enemies, who do not know the American people and their tendency toward optimism and complacency and who think, because they have been so informed by propagandists, that we are suffering the same kind of war misery they are feeling, will be encouraged to prolong the war to a bitter end in the belief our resolve is weakening.

The most decisive psychological defeat that could be inflicted upon our enemies would be an overwhelming and enthusiastic response to the Sixth War loan campaign.

DIAL-LOG

Wednesday night is looking up — in fact it's a tasty dish, seasoned just to our liking with a bit of this, a bit of that and topped with the return of "Wings Over the West Coast," which was one of our favorite service shows when we used to carry it—and we're mighty happy to be able to bring it to you again. Wednesday night will always be a bright spot in the week for you now because that's the first night we get a rebroadcast of your favorite commentator, Fulton Lewis, Jr. Remember—10 o'clock is the new time, immediately following Wings Over the West Coast . . . 9:30 is the listening time for that one. Of course, it's Cisco Kid at 6:30, Lowell Thomas with the news of the day at 7:15, Hi-ho Silver at 7:30, Main Line at 8:00 (these stories get better week by week) and Bulldog Drummond at 8:30.

However, it isn't necessary to wait until tomorrow night to hear a lot of good music and some fine shows. Tuesday night, too, has a lot to offer, beginning with Music You Remember at 6:30. Lovers of good organ music will find this twice-weekly program, presented by Esther Geddes, one of their favorite listening times. "Something for the Girls" at 7:30 tonight brings you the Sammy Kaye Serenade. Good stuff here. Annaloris at 8:15 will produce a program of piano music, with cute, light-as-a-feather script, to entertain you for fifteen minutes. Then there's Freedom of Opportunity at 8:30 and Count of Monte Cristo at 10. Sign off time at 10:30.

Senator Cordon Obtains Home in National Capital

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—(AP)—Senator Guy Cordon, republican, Oregon, who has lived in a hotel room for several months, will have most of his family with him when he begins his new term in January.

The Cordon family will occupy a house at 2457 39th place, N. W., which is being vacated by W. D. B. Dodson, representative of the Portland chamber of commerce. In his new home, which Cordon says is "pretty small, but will do," he will have Mrs. Cordon, their two daughters, Mrs. Caroline Crouch and Mrs. Margaret Ann Laurance; their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Allen Cordon, and her 5-year-old son.

All the boys are in service.

"They're in too dangerous spots right now," Cordon told a reporter. "I want their families here with Mrs. Cordon and me."

Crouch is a bombardier overseas, Laurance is a P-38 pilot in Italy and Lt. Allen Cordon is with the air forces in Italy.

Cigaret Shortage Reason Still in Mystery Stage

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—(AP)—Little smoke but a lot of fire was fanned up on capitol hill today in the search for the missing cigarets.

Senate investigators of the cigaret shortage pursued what Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) called the same rumors "as those heard by every cigaret smoker."

And Chairman Flannagan (D.-Va.) called his house agriculture committee together to explode "untrue propaganda * * * that the shortage stems back to a shortage in leaf tobacco."

No cigaret smoker himself, Ferguson said his interest is "to see if the shortage has been caused by black market, excessive storage or for other reasons."

"People have been led to believe that they can't buy cigarets because a large percentage of manufacture is going to troops overseas," Ferguson continued. "Then they learn that at many points the soldiers can't get cigarets or have to pay black market prices.

"There probably are a number of explanations for the shortage, including increased consumption here and abroad.

"But, until we find out what the causes are, it will be difficult to find a remedy."

President Eric Calamia of the national Retail Tobacco Merchants association said at Kansas City yesterday that the shortage will be even worse in the next three months than it has been in the last two.

Sergeant Elmer Sutton Of Days Creek Promoted

HEADQUARTERS, 13TH AAF, Southwest Pacific—The promotion of Staff Sergeant Elmer R. Sutton of Days Creek, Oregon, to technical sergeant was announced recently by 13th AAF headquarters.

Sergeant Sutton is a crew chief with a B-25 bombardment unit now hitting the Japs from new advanced bases on Dutch New Guinea. Formerly stationed in the Solomon islands, where its parent medium bombardment group was credited with the destruction of the Jap "Pearl Harbor" of Rabaul, New Britain, the unit has now moved forward to hit them in the Celebes and Halmaheras.

Sergeant Sutton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sutton, live at Days Creek. A graduate of Days Creek high school, he enlisted in April, 1941, and has been overseas since March, 1943.

Spooks to Frolic At Indian Theater

By L. K. P.

Woe be unto the weak-hearted, for many uncanny things will take place at midnight, Wednesday, November 29, when the Indian theatre presents Francisco, the master mystic in his midnight spook frolic.

Presenting only one performance in Roseburg, he promises a carnival fo fun with the unusual eerieness usually happening right under the noses of the audience. Every device and intrigue ever employed to send creepy feelings up and down one's spine will be brought into play in the exciting one-hour performance.

Francisco, who is now on his ninth nation-wide tour, will bring to the Indian stage a whole bag full of new tricks as well as some of the familiar ones with which he frightened audiences here last year. The entirety promises to be one of the most spooky performances yet witnessed.

To add to the eerieness of the stage show, the Indian Theatre will offer a special "Scarey" film attraction.

Buy bonds till it hurts!

6th WAR LOAN

THE young man in this picture obviously is an extreme example. Our Government certainly does not expect any of us to go that far in restricting our buying—even to put the 6th War Loan over the top.

But our fighting forces certainly will feel that their sacrifices are appreciated if we deny ourselves some things and put the money into extra War Bonds instead.

Remember, War Bonds pay off at maturity at the rate of $4 for every $3 invested. Try to buy at least one extra $100 Bond while this 6th War Loan Drive is on.
