Former Oakland Couple Marry

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Mallory

Miss Florence Allis became the bride of James S. Mallory Monday evening, November 20 at the parsonage of the First Methodist church in Eugene. Rev. L. L. Griffith read the ring service in the presence of Mrs. R. D. Hanon, of Klamath Falls, and Mrs. R. L. Burke, of Eugene.

The bride was lovely in a navy blue afternoon dress, fashioned with pencil skirt and lace ruffle up the left side rosetted at the waist, where she wore a corsage of white carnations and pink rosebuds. Her hat was a navy blue sailor with veil, pearl and gold sequin trimmed, and she wore black suede pumps. Her accessories were a pearl choker, matching earrings and elbow length black gloves trimmed with gold sequins.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Mallory were graduated from Oakland, Ore., high school, and the latter was also graduated from Southern Oregon College of Education and taught school in Douglas county until a year and a half ago, when she went to Eugene to become employed as a clerical waitress at the Durkee restaurant. Mr. Mallory is a printer first class in the United States navy and has been in the South Pacific for the last 28 months. He left December 6 for Washington D. C., to attend photolithography school and was accompanied as far as St. Paul, Minn., by his wife. After a brief visit there with relatives, she will return to Eugene for the duration.
