R. H. S. Will Face Springfield Five In League Debut

The Roseburg High school Indians will play their first league basketball game of the season Friday night, meeting the Springfield Millers at the senior high gymnasium at 8 o'clock. A preliminary game will start at 7 p. m.

Although the Indians have yet to turn in their first victory of the season in five starts, team followers are expecting a good record for the season. Marked improvement has been shown in every game while possibilities for a very strong team have been rumored. Who attended the East-West football game at San Francisco during the holiday week. The Indians made a contest out of each game on their trip into Coos county, and were beaten only because of unsteadiness. None of the games counted in league standings, but were played principally for experience.

Strength of the Springfield team has not been learned, but the Millers usually are formidable opponents in any sport and the Indians are not discounting the ability of the visiting team. Spectators, however, will be assured of an interesting and exciting game from start to finish.

We promised you lots of good entertainment for the new year... and Wednesday comes along very obligingly with the usual good shows to make good on our boast. Tonight it's Cisco Kid at 6:30, the Lone Ranger at 7:30, Main Line at 8 o'clock and the new show, "The Feeling is Mutual," at 9:15. As we told you last week, "Wings Over the West Coast" has changed both its time and its title. You will be hearing it now at 9:30 on Thursday evening and, since it's going coast-to-coast on its broadcast, it has changed its title to "Wings Over the Nation". There's good entertainment all day for you on Thursday, but we'll put our special O. K. on the morning portion when you hear the Paula Stone-Phil Brito show, plus Jane Cowl and Open House.

You'll be glad to learn that the County Agent is back with you on Thursday mornings and the Four-H club will have the same 7:15 spot on Tuesday mornings. On Saturdays we'll have some special transcriptions with the latest dope on farm methods. Mr. Parker and Bud Chandler, who besides being chief engineer is a practical farmer, both programs are good, informative programs. Other new shows will be coming along during the next few weeks, so keep the radio humming; so you won't miss any of them.

NEED FOR CONFIDENCE

By Charles V. Stanton

WE have been hearing and reading a great deal of complaint lately from the "man on the street." The OPA is being assailed for its cancellation of ration stamps. The blackout of news which followed the German breakthrough on the western front is not popular. The kind of talk heard on the street and the ideas expressed in letters to editors indicate weakened confidence in the government.

The integrity of a government should be such that its people may rely upon its words and actions with implicit confidence. But public confidence cannot be built upon a foundation of half-truths, hidden facts, propaganda and deception.

We have criticized the OPA so often some people might form the opinion we are opposed to price control and rationing. But the contrary is true. We believe the OPA, on the whole, is doing a swell job, a necessary job. We believe that the majority of OPA workers, both paid and volunteer, are doing their best to give everyone an even break.

But about every so often the OPA comes up with some act, such as its recent ration stamp cancellation, which arouses public anger and resentment. Women, who had counted upon the OPA's veracity when it listed their stamps as being good "indefinitely," are genuinely irked by cancellation without warning.

People who had held that relaxation in rationing was an election move are now saying, "I told you so."

The OPA needs public approval and cooperation to secure greatest efficiency in its program. It devotes a great deal of energy to "educating the public." But its work on education can be quickly undone by some thoughtless stroke.

Those ration stamps, so carefully guarded by the housewife, grow to be precious. Their destruction is equivalent, from a sentimental point of view, to tossing a handful of dollar bills into the fire.

Having no reason to doubt OPA declarations of shortages, we can only accept the statement that food shortages made tighter regulations essential. But the OPA would do well in the future, to give more thought in advance to public reaction when some drastic step is planned. Cooperation involves mutual assistance from two or more agencies, it cannot be one-sided.

As to propaganda in the news, censorship and news blackouts, many angles are to be considered.

We can understand why the high command withheld news in the early phases of the German thrust. Anyone who has ever been around the scene of an accident or a fire knows the problem involved. The curious get in the way of investigating officers, the fire department, and equipment. Nearly everyone asks foolish questions. Spectators are in total disagreement concerning facts. Time is required to collect all essential information, appraise damage or losses. All data must be marshalled and compiled before a true picture can be presented.

scale, in all military actions, with military security an added factor. We believe these reasons, rather than an attempt by the high command to shield its errors from public view, as some commentators so glibly contend, were behind the news blackout.

But we have every right to expect that when the facts have been compiled they should be truthfully reported and without reservation, except as military security necessitates. The American people know full well they have not always been told all the truth. Many people listen to enemy propaganda only because they distrust the news we are given by our own government.

These things are not as they should be. We have a right to expect our government to give us all news and information which can be released without aiding the enemy. We have a right to expect that news to be truthful and uncolored, the bitter with the sweet. We have a right to expect fair and honest treatment from the hands of those in whom authority is placed—not manipulation for political purposes, as, for instance, the contrast between the treatment given the Montgomery Ward company and Petrolle, the music czar.

New Type Culverts Being Installed in Forests

The Umpqua National forest service has received pressure treated wood stave culverts, V. V. Harpham, supervisor of the North Umpqua National forest service stated today, which will be used on the Cow Creek watershed in the Umpqua National forest.

Some of this culvert, 60 inches in diameter, will be installed to replace what is now known as the Newman bridge on a forest road on upper Cow creek, Mr. Harpham said.

This size of culvert is some of the largest installed on Douglas county roads and, as a forest service policy, Mr. Harpham stated, large culverts are being installed now in lieu of bridges when it becomes necessary to replace the bridges as it makes a more permanent job.
