Polio Fund Upped By Donation From Minnesota Woman

Douglas county's mile of dimes for the polio fund, was extended a few more inches today with money sent from St. Cloud, Minn., by Mrs. Carrie E. Marston, for many years a News-Review community reporter at Fair Oaks.

"I received the Roseburg News-Review this morning and read where you people were laying a mile of dimes on the sidewalks of Roseburg," Mrs. Marston wrote in a letter to Mayor W. F. Harris. "I wish to help with the mile of dimes," she said, "by sending my donation to you instead of sending it to the president."

"My home is in Douglas county, near Oakland, and I am very proud that the people of Roseburg and surrounding country are doing so much to fight paralysis. At present I am living here in this large city of St. Cloud, Minn., but have not heard of them doing as much as you people are doing out there."

After two years of unsuccessful land campaigns to capture Jap-held Akayab, biggest port on Burma's west coast, the British, with the largest combined operations force ever launched against the Asiatic continent, took the town without a shot being fired. The Japs had been in possession of this island-port gives Allies a harbor capable of accommodating 8000-ton ships and air bases whose easy-bombing are includes the great Jap strongholds of Mandalay and Rangoon, and the only escape routes out of the latter port. Operations from Akayab will complement southward drives of British, Chinese and U. S. forces toward Mandalay and Lashio.
