ting in will be a mark of PRESTIGE. Those who make the grade will be able to say to their friends with elaborate and carefully rehearsed nonchalance: "Oh, I just happened to be in Washington at the time, and so-and-so asked me if I wouldn't like to go."

If well done, that will be very effective, conveying in a restrained and modest sort of way the idea that the speaker is a person of really worthwhile importance who just mustn't be overlooked when matters of this sort are afoot.

Hence the pressure this morning on everyone who might conceivably be able to wangle an admission—especially members of congress. (It is rumored around that several senators and representatives, knowing that they had constituents in town and foreseeing what would happen, took to the brush and haven't been heard from since.)

A minor affairs of state that occur within the sacred precincts of the Capitol building, it isn't too difficult to beat the game. A congressman, for example, will take a constituent in tow, stroll up to the door and when the sergeant-at-arms is looking the other way will drift casually past as if, with his mind engaged with the larger interests of the nation, he had forgotten entirely to pause for identification. Or the constituent may be given a hasty and mumbled introduction as Mr. Whosis, "a former member who is entitled to the privilege of the house."

After all, sergeant-at-arms and other attendants are not unaware of the terrific heat of the spots that members of congress are placed on by visiting constituents, and besides they owe their jobs to them. So, on ordinary occasions, they are not averse to letting senators and representatives get away with minor murder of this sort.

It isn't too hard to understand why any senator or representative you may happen to glimpse around here this morning will probably be wearing a harassed and hunted expression and will take to his heels if he sees you first.

TO visiting members of the Fourth Estate, there comes naturally the thought of the press gallery. Isn't that what press galleries are for? Well, not this time. Here are the statistics: The press gallery of the house of representatives has seating accommodations for a little short of 100 persons, and it might be that as many as two or three dozen might on occasion be crowded into the remaining standing room. But there are somewhat more than FIVE HUN-

FORD TO BUILD NEW MILL

By Charles V. Stanton

Kenneth Ford has been granted priorities to construct a new sawmill at Dillard, and is preparing to set up a plant which will have a daily capacity of 75,000 board feet. He already has made a start toward placing the mill in operation, as the site has been graded and a log pond partially constructed. Buildings will be erected and machinery installed within the next 60 to 90 days, according to present plans, thus forging another link in Douglas county's rapidly lengthening chain of industrial expansion.

Ken Ford is entitled to a pat on the back for the part he has played in the county's development. His Roseburg Lumber company mill was the first large-scale enterprise of its kind in the Roseburg area. During depression days the mill's payroll was an important factor in keeping a large number of people from acute suffering. Ford somehow managed to keep struggling along, and, when times improved, added to his plant and increased production. Since the start of the war he has made an excellent record in supplying lumber for war needs.

But, in spite of the great amount of time he is required to give to his business, he nevertheless, takes an active part in civic affairs. It was largely through his efforts that the civic center and swimming pool fund campaign was recently initiated, raising approximately $20,000 to be set aside for postwar use. The campaign is planned as a continuing affair. It is proposed to increase the fund by many thousands of dollars during the current year, and to continue additions from year to year, through private subscriptions, until enough money is on hand to construct an adequate swimming pool, public auditorium and other civic center and recreational facilities.

Ken Ford is not only accomplishing an excellent work by developing his own business, with resultant benefit to the community, but is showing good citizenship in his work as a member of a civic club and as a chamber of commerce director, working for the general welfare of the entire area.

City Carriers Setting Good Record

Considering the number of papers the News-Review delivers each night by city carriers, and the relatively small number of "kicks" received, the News-Review is very proud of the record being made by its carrier boys. Many of these youngsters are so small that their loads weigh almost as much as they do when they start out on their routes, but, rain or shine, they make their rounds, night after night, and miss relatively few front porches.

These youngsters are confronted daily with numerous changes in address, new subscribers, stops, etc., so that their respective deliveries are seldom the same two days in a row. Because of the paper shortage they cannot be permitted many "extras" and, as a result, can't make many mistakes.

Since the war started it has been necessary to use much younger carriers than in normal times. The younger boys are more susceptible to the usual childhood diseases, thus requiring greater use of "substitutes."

But all-in-all these conscientious youngsters are doing a swell job in our opinion.

Occasionally a subscriber fails to receive his paper. The News-Review has provided for this contingency by supplying a "kick" boy. Instructions for calling this boy are printed nearly every day, but we find that the News-Review disappears quickly from most homes, so subscribers often fail to have on hand a back issue with which to locate the telephone number to be called.

We also find that many subscribers fail to note the instructions to call the "kick" boy between the hours of 6:45 and 7 p. m. It is necessary that we maintain the 7 p. m. limit for otherwise he would be receiving calls at all times of night and would have no free time for himself. He is active in Scouting, athletics and school activities, so we must arrange his deliveries to permit him to participate in the various organizations to which he belongs.

So, should you be one of the few subscribers who may be missed by a regular or substitute carrier, please give us your cooperation by calling the "kick" boy within the specified time. And it might be well if you would clip the directions out of the paper and paste them in some handy spot for future reference.

FSA Agents Dated for Visit in Roseburg

Mr. Victor B. Kuhlman, FSA supervisor, and Mrs. Genevieve P. Nettleton, associate supervisor, will be in Roseburg Thursday, March 8. Anyone wishing to contact the supervisor may do so between the hours of 10 a. m. and 5 p. m. at the Production Credit association office in the Medical Arts building.

THERE'S a rather good one, supposed to be of English origin, going the rounds of Washington. It deals with an alleged cartoon picturing Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill disembarking from U. S. and British warships at Malta. Over on the horizon is Stalin, yelling loudly: "Hey, you fellows; I said YALTA, not Malta."

Red Cross Notes

By Mrs. E. H. Strange OPEN HOUSE—On the evening of March 19 the Red Cross is holding open house from 7:30 until 9 at their new quarters in the Roseburg armory. The Malvina Hoffman award will be given out for the first time in Douglas county. Those who merit this award have given at least 75 hours of intensive service to the public, through the Red Cross.

PRISONERS OF WAR—Camps in Japan are usually located in densely populated areas or near industrial plants, docks and other possible military objectives. Very little heating is provided, even in the coldest weather, owing to the fuel shortage. There is electricity for light and water is supplied. Clothes worn by prisoners at the time of their capture are about all they have. Some additional clothing has been available from supplies sent on the two exchange trips of the Gripsholm and in a few cases Japanese authorities have provided essentials. All prisoners of war, except sick personnel, are required to work. Prisoners work in mechanical industrial factories, roads, airfields, docks and mines. Canteens are maintained where possible at which fruits, spices, sauces, biscuits and toilet articles can be bought. Profits are used for buying sports equipment and other recreational materials. However, according to the report, canteens are not heavily stocked.

CLASSES—Home nursing, first aid and nutrition classes will come up in the near future. Notice will be given. Gen MacArthur says: "The Red Cross has helped the American soldier in his hour of danger, it has sustained him in his hour of pain, and it has comforted him in his hour of death."

GIVE—The Red Cross drive is on. Give to some sick, wounded or dying American boy today. Books for the Armed Forces—"Try to Stop Me," by Bennett Cerf; a collection of stories, mostly humorous. Several laughs on every page, not just one laugh. "Camp Follower," by Barbara Klaw; the story of the soldiers wife, following her husband from camp to camp. Anyone engaged or married to a service man will enjoy this wife's travel. "Alfred Aho," by Foster Humpherville, cartoon editor, Colliers. There is a Liberator bomber overseas named Alfred and it's crew has adopted the sensitive, simple minded gob as mascot. This book contains all the choicest Alfred gags. Alfred, the lovely mariner with the mentality of a child and a heart of pure platinum. "The Sad Sack," by Sgt. George Baker with an introduction by Sgt. Marion Hargrove; 115 cartoons from the pages of Vaul magazine. Cartoons of Sad Sack, the hapless little Joe who always gets it in the end. The butt of every corporal and every top kick.

"I prophesy for Hitler—or his double—a double trouble. When his double double crosses him, he'll double-cross his double, and his gang won't hang together, but will double-cross each other, and hang as individuals... and that'll suit me, brother."
