In the Day's News

ped-together copy wobbles along for a few weeks and then flops. But in these days it is different.

OKLAHOMA, which was something new and different and is still sold out months in advance to people who want to see it so much they are willing to wait, remains the No. 1 target of the get-rich-quick imitators.

The current copy is a piece called "On the Town." It must have caught most of the critics just after they'd had a substantial raise and were in a rosy mood.

It might go over in a big way in a high school, Little Theatre, for it has a huge cast and of course all the players' families would have to go and applaud.

A NEW star is rising in the New York theatrical sky. It is "Harvey," and its smash hit is an old trouper who petered out after a career in vaudeville and the movies but has come back in a blaze of glory.

Frank Faye is the talk of the town—and the surrounding country.

Just try to get in! You're told with a superior smile that if you will place your order it might be possible to get something about six months hence.

"HARVEY" is something new again.

It revolves around a mythical rabbit, with whom Frank Faye, in a state of considerable inebriation, communes. His communings, those who have seen it say, leave you in stitches.

That's the big error of "Harvey" imitators in the near future. It is a safe guess that a few months hence the stages of the theatres hereabouts will be more or less crammed with mythical rabbits, or other animals, with G'd-up actors communing with them all over the place.

The Byrnes curfew is anything but popular in New York, where the entertainment industry in big stuff. It doesn't bother the theatres, whose curtains normally fall around 11 o'clock anyway.

V-E DAY'S "HAIR SHIRT"

By Charles V. Stanton

While the general public is reveling in good news from the various battle fronts, authorities in Washington are apprehensive and are busily patching up "hair shirts" to keep Americans mindful of the duties that remain to be performed.

Prior to election time, the American public was led to believe that the war in Europe was just about over. While the reaction was favorable politically, it was disastrous to war production.

Now that there is no election to worry about, the nation is being conditioned to accept victory in Europe with reservation.

"Work-or-else" legislation is being handily kicked around by congress to keep workers on the production line after Germany falls. OPA is tightening up on foods, rents, the general price structure, etc., as a means of creating public recognition that much fighting still lies ahead.

Many of these activities doubtless are planned to forestall a possible wave of over-optimism which it is feared will follow Germany's capitulation.

Here on the Pacific coast, where our interests are in the Pacific, as well as in Europe, there is apt to be less over-optimism than in the more populous eastern states, which have been chiefly concerned with whipping Germany, while looking upon the war with Japan as a sideshow.

There is every reason to believe that major warfare in Europe cannot continue much longer. There may never be a formal surrender. But current news from the front would indicate that the final, crushing assault is in the making.

V-E day will bring great elation throughout the United States, but no matter how we may rejoice over the conclusion of the struggle in Europe, we must realize that a bitter war is still in progress in the Pacific. The fight for Iwo Jima proves that we must continue to take heavy losses in digging the Japs out of their rat holes on hundreds of Pacific islands, as well as on their own mainland, before our boys can come home to enjoy days of peace.

If tightening of rationing, imposition of new restrictions, curfews, elimination of horse racing, manpower legislation, etc., are the only ideas our leaders can conceive to keep essential workers on the job and maintain public appreciation of the task still ahead, then such activities are, in our opinion, fully justified.

The harder we work at home, the quicker the Jap will be destroyed and forced into surrender. Consequently we must make V-E day, which may come soon now, a day of dedication to the task ahead rather than an orgy of jubilation.

The pathetic return of war casualties from the Pacific, the torn, mutilated bodies of men from combat zones and the emaciated men and women from Jap horror camps, should serve to strengthen our resolution to hasten the day of victory in the Pacific.

We are glad that steps have been taken throughout the country to curb an excess of emotion on V-E day; that we are looking upon it as a day of prayer, thanksgiving and dedication. If we need "hair shirts" to keep us conscious of our responsibility, then let us wear them without complaint.

Kiser, Ross Will Lead Off in Mat Bouts Tomorrow

Two of the star performers of last week's wrestling show, Jack Kiser and Tony Ross, have been signed to meet in the opening mat match on Don Owen's weekly wrestling show at the armory here Saturday night.

Kiser will not risk his Pacific coast light-heavyweight championship, but he will be taking a chance of coming out of the engagement still in good physical condition. Ross, beaten last week when Referee Elton Owen disqualified him for using his fists, carried both Owen and Kiser that he had better be given a free hand or there would be plenty of fireworks.

Ross had some trouble with Owen last week and the former southeastern middleweight boxing champion was challenged to a fight by Owen, a former University of Oregon intramural mitt champion and football halfback. He did offer to wrestle Owen, and such a meeting might develop further during the Kiser-Ross skirmish.

Coupled with the main event between Walter "Sneeze" Achlu and George Wagner, Douglas county grappling addicts will likely be treated to one of the most hectic and entertaining shows of the season.

Achlu, who became a local favorite here two weeks ago, will have the support of fans in his meeting with the hated "Gorgeous George." Although Wagner goes in for satin dressing gowns, permanents and fisticuffs (a rare combination), he is also considered one of the best light heavyweights in the world and is so ranked by the National Wrestling association.

Wagner has warned Achlu against the possible use of jujitsu. But with a possible match against the "Grey Mask" for the winner, Achlu is almost certain to resort to his Oriental tactics. This will not be the first meeting between the two grapplers.

Speaker at Lions Club Skeptical of Enduring Peace

W. G. Paul was guest speaker at the Roseburg Lions club dinner meeting at the Rainbow last night. After being introduced by Entertainment Chairman Ivan Pickens, Mr. Paul discussed future world peace.

Mr. Paul, who has traveled extensively in Japan, expressed regret that such a beautiful country as Japan was being destroyed, and pointed out that an army of occupation in Japan after hostilities ceased would cause the death of thirty million people by starvation because the country, without industrial activity, could not support its population.

Mr. Paul suggested that from 25 to 30 million people from Japan should be transported to New Guinea or Borneo, after the war.

Pointing out that the doctrine of force has ever prevailed in world history, Mr. Paul stated that in his opinion, there was little hope for a lasting world peace.

Acting President Roy Sunderland announced that next week the following members would occupy the chairs: President, Forrest C. Losee; vice president, Dr. W. Bruce Tuck; lion tamer, Harold Hickerson; tail-twister, E. A. Nicholson, and entertainment chairman, Dr. Alton E. Dalros.

Carl Felker and Fred Scherner, who are leaving for military service, sang a departing song for club members.

Spencer W. Yates of Portland and R. R. Rian of Medford were guests of the club.

Divorce Granted Mrs. Spreckles; Neglect Alleged

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—(AP)—Mary Lavinia Spreckles, former dancer, was granted a divorce yesterday after testifying that her husband, John D. Spreckles III, heir to a sugar fortune, spent $100,000 on race horses in three months but refused her sufficient money to live on.

Asked if she received anything from the $100,000, Mrs. Spreckles replied: "A mink coat." When she went to Spokane for a reunion with her husband, who was on furlough from a nearby navy base, she discovered him in an automobile in company with another woman, she testified.

Spreckles, a heavy burier in the Philippines, and his wife have reached a property settlement providing her monthly alimony of $206 for 10 years and division of community property, by which she is to receive approximately $100,000. Spreckles is heir to two trust funds totaling $2,000,000.

The Spreckles were married in Woodland, Wash., Oct. 27, 1937, and separated last July 8. Spreckles previously was divorced from his first wife, Roxana.

Distributors of Beer Granted State License

A wholesale beer distribution license was granted by the State Liquor Control commission at its session in Portland Wednesday to the Easton Distributing company, which will operate in the Roseburg area. A 30-day suspension of license was imposed by the commission upon Buck's Anchorage, Reedsport, for alleged sale of beer to a minor.

BY SUSAN Every day when we sit down with the intention of getting this bit of chatter out of the typewriter in jig time, it turns out to be 1:30 and to us that means Tommy Harris Time. However, since this is Friday night and our favorite daytime show won't be on again until Monday, maybe we'd better concentrate on Double or Nothing at 6:30. That show remains tops among all of the quiz shows on the air. If
