Eva S. Rice, Pioneer School Teacher Of Oregon, Passes

Eva Samantha Rice, 89, engaged in the school teaching profession in Oregon for more than 40 years, died at her home at Dillard early today.

The daughter of Harrison and Martha Ann Rice, who crossed the plains in 1853 to settle at Rice creek, she was born on the family donation land claim March 26, 1855. She engaged in teaching school, serving in Douglas county for a number of years and later being employed in the Portland schools. She retired in 1919 and since that time had made her home at Dillard.

She is the last of a family of nine children. Mrs. Rice was a sister of the late Mrs. W. C. Winston. A number of nieces and nephews survive.

Funeral services will be held at the chapel of the Roseburg Funeral home at 2 p. m. Friday, conducted by Dr. C. A. Edwards, with interment following in the Willis creek cemetery.

DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

A TRUE STORY OF PAGANINI

It was a cold wintry night and it was snowing. The streets were thronged with beleated buyers, for it was Christmas Eve. All bent on bringing joy to some one they loved. An old man stood on a street corner his aged wife stood near him holding a cup. The old man fidgeted away on his violin but there was no response from the throng. And the prospects for a Christmas feast seemed slim, and there were tears in their eyes, and their hearts were heavy. There came along a man richly clad in furs, with every look of comfort. He stepped up to the old man and said: "Let me see your instrument." And the old man handed it to him. He examined it carefully and said, "You have a fine violin, may I try it?" and he began to play. Instantly like a breath from heaven, he poured out his heart, and the music was like melted amethysts and pearls. People drew nearer, and the cup the aged wife held was filled with coins again and again. And the stranger handed the instrument back to the old man and left. "Who is he," murmured the people. None other than the famous Paganini.—Amen.
