In the Day's News

left, he says, could be handled by only ONE of our many task forces.

AT the same time, the Japs launched an air attack on the co-operating British fleet, in the southern Ryukyus, apparently damaging the battleship King George V.

OUR naval authorities guess that the Japs might have been trying a double play whose chief purpose may have been getting their shrinking fleet out of the dangerous inland sea, with the secondary purpose of taking a hit-and-run swipe at our naval forces around Okinawa. All the enemy vessels engaged were FAST, so they could run away speedily after hitting.

THERE is an interesting little mystery in the Pacific news. The Japs flew about 20 big, slow, OBSOLETE bombers into the fight—sluggish "Marys," not seen since the early days of the war—arousing the suspicion on our part that they may be getting dangerously short of planes. We shot 12 of the 20 in no time flat.

ON Okinawa, heavier resistance is developing as we near Naha. We're still finding very few Japs in our push northward from the island's center.

WE pulled a freak assault the other day, taking Lucena, in southern Luzon, with PULDLE-JUMPER observation planes which we flew into Lucena's two airfields. Our men piled out of the little grasshoppers and took the town.

WE'VE bombed the Hong Kong area for the third straight day dropping 164 tons—not much in Europe, but a fair day's bombing in the Pacific.

Three hundred of our Superforts, ESCORTED BY FIGHTERS FROM IWO, hit Tokyo again.

SUZUKI seems to have cobbled together a new Jap cabinet. He appointed himself foreign minister and Greater East Asia minister (he's already premier). The jobs he gave himself are the ones that would be involved in future PEACE moves.

He kept the former navy minister (who has now been given three bad lickings by our fleet) and named an airman war minister. Both his navy and war ministers are said to have the blessing of the Jap war clique.

THERE is still nothing much new in the European situation. We're killing and capturing Germans at a great rate—especially capturing them. We took 156,723 prisoners in the first five days of April. The Germans aren't as good as the Japs at dying to the last man, as Hitler orders them to do.

THE British are 12 miles from Bremen and 60 from Hamburg. The Canadians are within a dozen miles of cutting off all of western Holland. We're over the Weser in the south, but haven't yet reached the Elbe.

The Germans are still talking about our alleged airborne landing at Eisleben, within 90 miles of Berlin, but our side has nothing to say. The censorship is still pretty tight.

It is probable that we have been outrunning our supplies and have to wait for them to catch up.

THERE is bitter house-to-house fighting in Vienna, but Moscow dispatches indicate that the Russians think they have the situation there well in hand. Moscow says that if the Germans don't get out of the city soon they'll be surrounded.

The Germans say the Russians are ALREADY 30 MILES WEST OF VIENNA, following main line railroads and highways up the Danube. That, if true, is extremely interesting, indicating that the reds are pushing right on up the Danube valley to cut the Germans off from the Hitler hideout in the southern mountains.

The flurry in Italy doesn't amount to much—yet.

A NEW decree has been issued by Hitler, ordering nazi party leaders to give up their local political jobs. London interprets the decree as a scheme to enable the nazi leaders to get out, leaving the non-nazis holding the bag—also as the foundation for a propaganda claim in the future that it was the German civilians who surrendered shamefully while the nazis carried on the holy war single-handed.

HOW PAPER TRAVELS

By Charles V. Stanton

A little sidelight on how paper gets around in this war is given by Mrs. H. S. Cheek, Melrose Rt., Roseburg, who reports receiving a pair of wooden shoes, sent from Belgium by her son, Hillburn L. Cheek, a technical sergeant with the 8th air force, who, incidentally, was recently awarded the second oakleaf cluster for his Air Medal. The shoes were shipped to Mrs. Cheek in a cardboard box, which previously had been used to send a gift to a soldier from San Antonio, Texas. The sabots were wrapped in paper originally used by a friend in Portland, Ore., in sending a gift to Sergeant Cheek.

A cardboard box from San Antonio, a piece of wrapping paper from Portland, a pair of wooden shoes from Belgium all reached a common place upon a battlefield in Europe and journeyed together to Roseburg. Soon, we expect, the box and the wrapping paper will again be on their way, either to convey a gift to the soldier or as materials of war, through contribution to the waste paper drive.

This newspaper you now hold in your hands, we hope, soon will either be a part of a protective band around a bomb, a part of a casing for an artillery shell, or serving as a part of a box of the type used in protecting blood plasma, medical supplies, food rations, etc., during shipment.

If we all realized that it would be impossible to wage modern war for more than a few hours without paper, we would not be forced to plead for cooperation in waste paper salvage efforts.

Paper can be used over and over again. Like the box and piece of wrapping paper, which already have crossed the Atlantic ocean twice, paper can be converted into many forms and uses and can make many trips to and from the front.

Boys and girls of Roseburg High school will be engaged Thursday and Friday in a city-wide paper collection drive. School officials have requested cooperation of every resident.

You are asked to bundle magazines, newspapers and cardboard separately. Most of all, you are asked to tie bundles so they will withstand rough handling. They will be tossed into the trucks. They will be transported to a loading station where they will be passed out of the trucks and loaded into freight cars. Collectors cannot be expected to handle each bundle gently. They will be working at high speed to get the drive over with as soon as possible. So please be sure that every bundle is tightly tied with stout cord. If you pack loose paper into cardboard cartons, it should be pressed down tightly. Use only strong cartons that will not break open. Have them securely bound.

All paper for collection should be put on front porches exposed to view from the street and should be in place by 9 a. m. Thursday. Trucks will not retrace their routes.

Douglas county has been very laggard in its participation in salvage campaigns. We stand near the bottom of the list in per capita shipments of paper and tin. We do not believe this is because of any unwillingness on the part of our people to cooperate. The fault lies in lack of manpower and organization and instruction, difficulties of transportation and storage, etc.

In many localities organizations have now been formed, receiving stations constructed, transportation schedules arranged, so that systematic, orderly collections are made at regular intervals. This is the ideal system. But we have not been able to organize Douglas county's large area as a whole on this basis. Our collections have been largely hit-or-miss, depending principally upon the labor of boys and girls in our schools.

This makes it all the more imperative that we give our fullest all-out support to these periodic drives.

Farmers to Get More AAA Lime to Build Soil

Contracts have been approved with four limestone plants for a maximum supply of 93,000 tons of lime to be delivered at the rate of 8,700 tons monthly for distribution to Oregon farmers under the 1945 conservation materials program, the state AAA committee has announced.

This is the largest potential supply of limestone available for several years, points out John Shepherd of Scio, member of the state committee. Last year approximately 25,000 tons of lime was applied to Oregon farmlands under the program.

Limestone is distributed through county AAA committees as conservation materials in lieu of payments earned under the conservation practice program. The rate of payment is based on 80 per cent of the cost of bulk lime delivered to the farm, and in most counties will be $5 a ton. Transportation costs from the plant to the farm are paid by the farmer.

In western Siberia the fat of sacred animals is rubbed carefully onto the brow and limbs of a diseased person because it is believed to possess magical powers.

DIAL-LOG

By SUSAN

Most of our attention is directed toward tomorrow night, which, after being in the doldrums for some time, has suddenly taken a new lease on life and is currently producing some of the best entertainment of the week. Stealing the spotlight for tomorrow night is the premiere of a new dramatic series, written by Arch Oboler and producing an original drama each Wednesday night at 9:30. Tonight's production is "Strange Morning", a prophetic play dealing with the collapse of Germany. We might add that Mr. Oboler has a reputation second to none as a writer and you are sure of top-drawer entertainment each Wednesday night at 9:30. Brownstone Theatre at 6:30 presents "If I Were King", a Broadway hit of the early 1900s. Our old favorite, Main Line, at 8 and the new Fresh Up Time at 8:30. We just got in on a short snatch of the premiere last week, but the studio audience seemed to be suffering from a more or less mild case of hysteria, so we would judge that the show was uproariously funny. However, all of these shows are scheduled for tomorrow night. For tonight look for Music You Remember at 6:30, A Date With Annaloris at 8:15, Recital Hall of the Air at 8:30 and Ships of War at 8:45; so don't wait until tomorrow night to tune 1490. You'll miss a lot of good entertainment if you do.

Coos Bay Coal to Supply Klamath Falls Barracks

COOS BAY, Ore., April 9.—(AP)—Coast Fuel corporation has been awarded a contract for 27,300 tons of Coos bay coal for the marine barracks at Klamath Falls.

Delivery will begin from the firm's southport mine near here June 20.

Zinc Clears Trees Of "Little Leaf"

Methods of applying zinc for the prevention and control of so-called "little leaf" are described in a revision of a former extension circular now issued as circular No. 454. The recommendations made in the circular by O. T. McWhorter, extension horticulturist, are the results of extensive experiments carried on principally in Wasco county, where little leaf has occurred in cherry, peach, apricot, prune, pear, and apple orchards.

The zinc may be applied to trees as a spray about 30 days after leaves appear, or, preferably, by driving zinc tacks into the trunks of the trees, except in the case of very young or aged trees. Use of the zinc tacks or zinc-coated shingle nails is preferred over the spraying method as the effect lasts for several years. Spraying must be done annually.

Where foliage spray is used, a combination zinc and boron solution has been found more effective than a plain zinc sulphate spray, although there is danger of foliage burn if rains occur soon after the application.

New Bees Received by Rice Creek Apiarist

Seventeen packages of three-band Italian bees were received here Monday by C. L. Gibson, of the Marlee ranch located on Rice creek, near Dillard. The bees were purchased at Yuba City, Calif., and will bring Mr. Gibson's total to 35 stands. The 17 packages contained approximately 255,000 bees.

Conferences Replacing Oregon P.-T. A. Congress

The Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers is holding a series of conferences throughout Oregon during April to replace the annual state convention, cancelled because of wartime transportation restrictions. Election of officers is being conducted by mail. Douglas county members are invited to attend the conference at Ashland, April 17, or the meeting at Eugene, April 19. Prominent speakers will be presented at each program. Mrs. J. M. Bartley, Roseburg, who has completed a term as county council president for Douglas county, is a member of the state board of managers.

Farm Census Staff to Meet at Eugene Friday

SALEM, Ore., April 10—(AP)—Supervisors of the Oregon agricultural census will meet Friday at the Eugene hotel, Eugene, to discuss problems of completing the census, which is taken every 10 years, John A. Kallak, area supervisor of the bureau of the census, said today.

Carl Nyman, livestock statistician for the bureau, will tell the supervisors how to enumerate livestock.

Kallak said he hopes to have the census completed by May 1. It began January 1.
