The Yoncalla Eagles racked up their fifth straight baseball victory Friday, defeating Elkton 18 to 10 in a game played on the Yoncalla diamond. It was Yoncalla's second win over Elkton, the first game having been very close with a score of 3 to 2.

In Friday's game Yoncalla got off to a flying start with two runs in the first inning, six in the second and eight in the fourth to put the game on ice for pitcher Rychard. Elkton secured only five hits off Rychard, while Yoncalla collected 12 hits off the delivery of Smith, pitching for Elkton.

Yoncalla's Eugene Merk led the batters in individual hitting, lacing out two doubles, a triple and a homer in five times at bat.

Reedsport Plans Suit to Quiet Property Titles

REEDSPORT — The city of Reedsport is preparing to enter suit in the circuit court to quiet title to all lots owned and acquired by the city and will also include all properties privately owned, where the title is not clear, if the owner wishes to act with the city in this matter, providing, of course, that such property owners finance their share of the costs.

For a number of years past a cloud has been hanging over most of the vacant property in this city, making sales and building a matter of slow progress. So the council has decided it is better to bring this matter to a termination and make the property available for purchase and building.

Nazi Prisoners In U. S. Still Subject To American Laws

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP) German prisoners of war in the United States were notified today that the reich had surrendered unconditionally.

The War department distributed proclamations for posting on all bulletin boards in the POW camps which now hold 343,000 Germans.

The text of the department proclamation:

"The organized resistance of the German armed forces has ceased. The national socialist government of Germany no longer exists. The allied occupying authorities exercise all power in Germany. Members of the German armed forces are released from any obligation entered into with a government which no longer exists.

"As prisoners of war, you continue to be subject to American laws and regulations and must obey the orders of persons placed over you. Correct soldierly conduct is expected of you at all times."

The department reiterated its policy as laid down by the Geneva convention to repatriate all enemy prisoners of war as soon as feasible. In the meantime, the prisoners will continue to be used to alleviate manpower shortages in industry and agriculture.

"Prisoners will not be allowed to compete with free labor," the statement said, "and as such labor becomes available prisoners will be withdrawn from private contract work."

V-E Day Proclaimed By President Truman

paid to rid the world of Hitler and his evil band," he said. "Let us not forget, my fellow Americans, the sorrow and the heartbreak which today abide in the homes of so many of our neighbors — neighbors whose most priceless possession has been rendered as a sacrifice to redeem our liberty.

"We can repay the debt which we owe to our God, to our dead and to our children only by work—by ceaseless devotion to the responsibilities which lie ahead of us. If I could give you a single watchword for the coming months, that word is — work, work, work.

"We must work to finish the war. Our victory is but half-won. The West is free, but the East is still in bondage to the treacherous tyranny of the Japanese. When the last Japanese division has surrendered unconditionally, then only will our fighting job be done.

Hard Task Still Ahead

"We must work to bind up the wounds of a suffering world—to build an abiding peace, a peace rooted in justice and in law. We can build such a peace only by hard, toilsome, painstaking work—by understanding and working with our allies in peace as we have in war.

"The job ahead is no less important, no less urgent, no less difficult than the task which now happily is done.

"I call upon every American to stick to his post until the last battle is won. Until that day, let no man abandon his post or slacken his efforts.

"This is a solemn but a glorious hour," he declared. "General Eisenhower informs me that the forces of Germany have surrendered to the united nations. The flags of freedom fly over all Europe.

"For this victory we join in offering our thanks to the providence which has guided and sustained us through the dark days of adversity."

Jap Slavery Not Aim

Thus was brought to a close the European phase of the titanic struggle which cost American armed forces 132,000 lives and more than 550,000 other casualties in three years, four months and seven days of fighting against the axis in the European and Mediterranean theaters.

Mr. Truman gave, at a news conference, his assurance that unconditional surrender "does not mean the extermination or enslavement of the Japanese people."

It means for them, he said, the end of the war, the termination of the influence of military leaders "who have brought Japan to the present brink of disaster."

World Peace Want

Taking cognizance of the efforts to work out an international peace organization at San Francisco, the president declared it must be "a peace rooted in justice and in law" and continued:

He said the United States was facing a situation along with the rest of the world out of which could come a just peace. He said that either the united nations could set up the organization and go the whole way or go the wrong way and spoil the whole thing.

The Germans once called us soft and weak, he said, and he wondered what the Germans think about that now.

The president added: "I only wish that Franklin D. Roosevelt had lived to witness this day."

No Celebration Staged

The formal V-E news came to Washington on a rainswept morning. Radios blared it from corner drugstores and government offices and newspaper headlines shouted it. But the thousands of federal workers in the capital went to their jobs as usual.

There were no signs of celebration on the wet streets, but downtown churches and theaters opened their doors to receive small crowds. Flags drooped at half-mast throughout the capital, in tribute to the late President Roosevelt who led his country to this hour.

For the first time in war years, spotlights were to be turned on for one night only tonight on Washington monument, the capitol dome and other loved shrines of the American people.

Congratulations Sent

He told Eisenhower that in recognition "of the unconditional and abject surrender of the nazi barbarians" he wanted the general to accept "the fervent congratulations and appreciation of myself and of the American people," and added:

"All of us owe to you and to your men of many nations a debt beyond appraisal for their high contribution to the conquest of nazism."

To Churchill, he expressed his appreciation for Britain's "heroic army, navy and air forces" and added, "with warm affection, we hail our comrades-in-arms across the Atlantic."

To Marshal Stalin:

"You have demonstrated in all your campaigns what it is possible to accomplish when a free people under superlative leadership and unfailing courage rise against the forces of barbarism."

In his message to General de Gaulle, the president said it was an appropriate time to send America's congratulations to the people of France "on their permanent liberation from the oppression they have endured with high courage for so long."

Drunk Fined $15

Lee Cox, charged with intoxication, paid a fine of $15 after pleading guilty before the Roseburg city court, A. J. Geddes, city recorder, stated today.

Returns Home From Hospital—Roscoe Marsters of Roseburg returned to his home today from Mercy hospital, where he has been the past 10 days.

How S·P is seeking new industry for your community

We thought you would be interested in knowing what Southern Pacific is doing to encourage the location of new industries in your community and other communities along our lines.

We have just conducted an extensive advertising campaign in national magazines and eastern newspapers, telling about the industrial opportunities in the West and offering help to executives who wanted specific information about locating plants or branch plants in this territory.

Southern Pacific is certainly not forgetting its first job, which is to help end the war as quickly as possible.

But we are also thinking of the future. We are thinking of the million new people, the vast new industries, the rich natural resources of this area.

We know that many eastern companies are planning postwar manufacturing and distribution facilities in new territories.

We have consistently sought to develop manufacturing along our lines, for new industries are a major source of traffic. For this purpose we have long maintained an industrial department. And this is the reason Southern Pacific makes freight rates that make it possible for the industries we serve to assemble raw materials and market finished products.

As one of the forces that helped develop America west of the Mississippi, Southern Pacific continues its efforts to bring even greater prosperity to its territory, knowing that such prosperity will benefit our railroad, too.
