Warsaw Regime Must Be Recognized, Stalin Says

(By the Associated Press)
Breaking his silence on the Polish issue Premier Stalin of Russia today said the first condition for solution of the question was the recognition of the present Warsaw provisional Polish government as the "basic core" of a future Polish government of national unity.

He also declared that any future Polish government must pursue a friendly policy with Russia and not follow the policy of the "gordon sanitaire" against the soviet union.

Stalin dismissed as having "no connection" with the Polish issue the arrest by the Russians of 16 leaders of the Polish underground and said that the statement of the Polish government in London that the arrested men were invited to Russia was not true.
