PACIFIC HIGHWAY WINS

By Charles Y. Stanton
The attempt by State Highway Commissioner Arthur Schupp of Klamath Falls to win the inter-regional designation for the highway which serves his home town has failed.

We must commend our good friend "Mac" Epley, editor of the Klamath Falls Herald and News, and immediate past president of the Klamath Falls chamber of commerce, for the excellent presentation made on behalf of Route 97, both through his newspaper and, personally, before the highway commission.

The feuding from opposite sides of the Cascade range certainly has had one effect (though we wouldn't go so far as to say it was arranged by the disputants). It has concentrated public and perhaps commission attention on both southern Oregon highways and blacked out the needs of other major routes.

It is true that the battle has stirred into new life the Pacific Highway association, which has been in a more or less dormant stage for several recent years. It also renewed energies of the Oregon Coast Highway association, which saw in the Klamath Falls proposal a most serious threat to its own interests.

But instead of blacking out needs of other major routes, as feared by The Oregonian, we believe the controversy will serve to concentrate greater interests in all main routes.

It is certain that the fight has brought to public attention, far more than before, the need for improvement of the Columbia highway. We also have a better understanding of the need for improvements on the Willamette highway.

The fact that the state highway commission has heard extensive briefs, containing vast amounts of data regarding traffic volume, transportation costs, freight potentialities, operating expenses, etc., has given the members of that commission a better understanding of southern Oregon highway needs, both east and west of the Cascades and along the coast.

Much of the data contained in these briefs also bears upon conditions prevailing along the Columbia highway and other main routes within the state.

There is some evidence of an attempt by "neutral" newspapers to belittle the importance of the designation of inter-regional highways. It is true that the primary difference in standards is a pavement width of 26 instead of 24 feet, and shoulders of 15 instead of 10 feet.

But the fact remains that the inter-regional route probably will get earlier federal aid and also will be more widely advertised. Designation of Route 99, therefore, should result in earlier reconstruction of the Pacific highway and a greater amount of tourist traffic.

Government Meat Contract Awarded Zell Packing Co.

Zell Packing company has been awarded a duration plus one year government meat contract. It was announced today by Ralph Egger, manager of Zell's market on Winchester street.

The new slaughterhouse will be complete in every detail with new stock scales, new corrals, city water supply, 90-cubic storage capacity under refrigeration, new disposal system, new feed lots and a hog delimiting machine.

Zell's market is being remodelled with the shop being extended and improved and a complete sausage kitchen set up, he reported.

A food storage room is being completed, new lockers will soon be available and several pieces of new equipment will be installed when the building work is finished.

A caretaker's building at the slaughterhouse is being built with showers and private lockers, to accommodate employees and federal inspectors.

The road and corrals grading is being done by Sitman Construction company and the contracting by James Miller. Local material is being used.

DIAL-LOG

By SUSAN
This being Friday means that it's Double or Nothing time at 10. There's always plenty of entertainment in this half-hour and lots of laughs; in fact we still get a chuckle every time we think of the marine trying to name all the countries in the world at three dollars apiece. That happened several weeks ago and we're still enjoying it.

It's a heavyweight match on the Cavalcade of Sports tonight. Toml Mauriello meets Steve Dudas in a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden; the time, 8 o'clock. No predictions on tonight's fight—the publicity didn't tip us off this week. This is also the night for "Freedom of Opportunity". Nine-thirty is the time of course, and the life story of Milton Hershey will be dramatized.

Here are some advance tips on shows for the weekend: Chicago Theatre of the Air starts a new summer series of concerts and light opera music Saturday at 8, with Bruce Foote and Ruth Slater as singing leads. "Quick As a Flash" will entertain the Abbotts as guest detectives at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. This is the final broadcast for the summer for the Quick As a Flash show. Beginning the next week at the same time, the Abbott Mysteries will be heard for the summer vacation period. You'll get a little idea of the type show they will present when they appear as guests this week. And a last bit of advance info: Beginning next Monday at 7:15 in the a. m., you'll hear "Smile Time", a new production of laughs, music and quick quips. Remember to tune in, won't you?

Beavers Stretch Lead Over Rainiers By 6-to-0 Victory

(By the Associated Press)
Normality, by previous early standards, reigned in the Pacific Coast league today as threats by Seattle and San Francisco were checked last night. The Beavers made it three out of four over the Rainiers to widen their first place margin to two and a half games, while Oakland beat off the Seals' drive to replace the Acorns in third position.

Sacramento evened its series with San Diego, keeping the Padres in the second division, and Hollywood took a 2-1 edge in its games with Los Angeles.

Southpaw Cohen kept the Beavers on the winning side of the ledger as he blanked the Rainiers 6-0 with eight scattered hits.

The Acorns went on a hitting spree to win their first game of the week from San Francisco 11-7.

Fletcher racked up his 10th win of the season for Sacramento as he shut out San Diego 4-0.

Hollywood's 9-8 decision over Los Angeles was a 10-inning affair.
