Transportation Halt Threatened On Smith River

REEDSPORT — Smith River dairy farmers are worried over a possible breakdown in transportation, due to OPA intervention in service performed by Frank Boye.

Boye, who has the U. S. mail contract on Smith River, operating a passenger and freight service in addition for the benefit of dairymen and the Reedsport creamery and cheese factory, collected charges of 10 cents per cartage prior to the war. Due to extra costs of labor and equipment, he increased rates at various times to a charge of 25 cents per cart. Through his attorney, contacts were made with various federal agencies without objection being raised.

OPA Charges Sustained
The OPA recently intervened, submitting a complaint of excess charges for transportation of farm produce, and a hearing was held before the Reedsport panel of the War Relocation and Rationing board last Monday. It was shown that Boye had attempted to contact federal agencies in an effort to determine his rights, but charges of OPA service regulations were sustained.

A compromise agreement was reached under which the price for cartage was set at 15 cents per cart, and dairymen will pay wages for a deckhand at $150 per month, plus overtime. Boye, however, will be required to return excess charges above 15 cents.

Boye is reported to be considering discontinuing his common carrier business, and giving service only on the mail contract, which can be handled with a smaller boat and at less expense, in which case dairymen and farmers will be required to find some other means of getting their produce to market.

Argument, Sentiment, Comment

By HARRIS ELLSWORTH
Congressman, Fourth Oregon District

Bretton Woods: Thanks to the leadership and statesmanship of Jesse Wolcott, representative in congress from Michigan, the bill to ratify the Bretton Woods International bank and stabilization fund may be considered reasonably palatable. Wolcott is the ranking republican member on the House Banking and Currency committee. He took part in the Bretton Woods conference. The amendments he sponsored, and which were accepted by the committee (only three of the twenty-seven members of the committee voted "no") set up certain checks and safeguards, and provided for periodic reports to congress.

The Bret on Woods plan is not a new deal scheme nor is it the product of a group of visionaries or dreamers. It is a plan conceived in desperation and born of necessity. It may or may not work successfully. It may or may not cost this country quite a lot of money. But it was drawn by world experts in finance and it WILL serve two important purposes:

1. The bank portion of the plan will put a stop to the flotation of phony or questionable foreign loans by the selling of such "securities" to our citizens.

2. The stabilization fund is designed to prevent post-war chaos in international currency districts. With this fund plan in existence signed by forty-four nations, hard-up countries cannot flugge their currency valuations so as to order goods shipped from us at one rate of exchange and pay for them at another rate. Nor can any nation indulge in the barter practice of the Hitler finance wizards.

As I see it, the worst that can be said about the Bretton Woods plan is that "it won't work". Perhaps the best that can be said about it is that it is a serious and well-considered attempt to do something that must be done if possible.

Single GI Slays Thirty Japs, Opens Gap in Shuri Line

BY AL DOPKING
OKINAWA, June 12—(Delayed)—(AP)—Pfc. Clarence B. Craft, (Route 3) Santa Ana, Calif., in a one-man massacre, killed 30 Japanese and drove a wedge that, his regimental commander said, helped snap the Japanese Shuri defense line.

Fellow doughboys, who had a rimside seat to "a fighting performance we hardly could believe," told today how Craft almost singlehandedly wiped out a strong Japanese pocket in 10 to 15 minutes.

Craft, married and the father of a 4-year-old son, made his one-man assault on a 450-foot hill May 31 when elements of the 96th Infantry division were pinned down by intense machine-gun fire.

For 10 days, Japanese from this hill had held up two battalions. Two flanks of two divisions couldn't move until it was seized. On May 31, a company and two platoons assaulted the hill again.

Accurate Aim Deadly
Then Craft went into action. When he reached the hilltop, he began tossing grenades into trenches and foxholes as men from his platoon passed them up to him. He straddled a trench, pouring fire from his Garand down into it. Then he jumped in, mowing down Japanese as they got to him. He knocked out a heavy machinegun and his crew as he strode through the trench. He drove the Japanese he didn't kill into a hillside cave, then sealed it with a demolition charge.

Fifty-eight Japanese bodies, three "knee" mortars, three machineguns, about 80 rifles and ammunition littered the hill when the fight was over. Craft himself fired five clips of rifle ammunition and threw 48 grenades. He estimated he killed 25 Japanese with rifle fire; the remainder with grenades.

SANTA ANA, Calif., June 13. (AP)—The mother of Pfc. Clarence B. Craft, killer of 30 Japanese in a daring foray with grenades and rifle fire on Okinawa, says "he's the most accurate thrower I ever saw."

"Why, I've seen that boy kill fish in a stream throwing rocks at them, at their home in Missouri," said Mrs. Pearl Craft after she and her daughter, Mrs. Cora Lillian Sinner, 21, received the news.

Craft's wife, Betty, 21, said: "I'm not surprised, exactly, but I don't see how he could have done it so soon. You see, this was his first battle."

Committee Named On Power System Plan at Reedsport

REEDSPORT—A committee to consider possibility of installing a municipal power plant to serve Reedsport and vicinity has been named by the Reedsport chamber of commerce and city council following announcement by the Central Lincoln Public Utility district that no additional applications for power service will be accepted. Circulars announced that the PUD system is loaded to capacity, that no additional power will be available until fall and that services, therefore, cannot be extended.

In view of construction of many new homes and industries, the power shortage offers a serious problem to the lower Umpqua community.

Changes have been made by the chamber of commerce and city council that service to the lower Umpqua valley, where extension of the PUD was defeated at the last election, is being curtailed in order to feed more power into the Newport area, where
