Peace Tasks Must be Faced, "Ike" Warns

Nations Cannot Stand Another Catastrophe of War, General Declares

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—General of the army Dwight D. Eisenhower left today for the U. S. Military academy at West Point where 30 years ago he began his triumphant military career.

The supreme allied commander acknowledged he was tired—but still thrilled—by the tumultuous reception given him by New York yesterday.

The former Kansas farm boy, who captivated New York with his effervescence and infectious grin, left the city's millions his belief that when the war ends, two problems must be met.

"They are jobs for men and peace in the world," he said at a banquet last night. "Prosperous nations are not war hungry, but a hungry nation will always seek war if it has to be in despair. We cannot be isolated from the world."

Peace World's "Must"

"Peace is an absolute necessity to this world, the nations cannot stand another world catastrophe of war: I believe that we should let no specious argument of any kind deter us from exploring every direction in which peace can be maintained. I believe that we should be strong, but we should be tolerant. We should be ready to defend our rights, but we should be considerate and recognize the rights of other men."

Problems of peace must be solved "or we will all be lost," the general said.

Isolationism Is Out

Declaring that "we cannot be isolated from the world," Gen. Eisenhower said: "This business of preserving peace is a practical thing. But practically and idealism are not necessarily mutually antagonistic. We can be idealistic and we can be practical along with it."

"You have great hospitals in your city that are filled with wounded men. I call them my wounded men. They came from my theater. I don't want to see any more of them there ever."

Peace Task Cited

Speaking of the Pacific war, he said: "I hope that the rejoicing in which we indulge because of the crushing of the Nazis will never blind us to the task we still have in the Pacific."

"With the enormous quota that you have furnished for the battle lines, you have a tremendous interest in seeing that losses are minimized. Losses are minimized by producing the most powerful machine that you can possibly crowd into a given area of ground to defeat the enemy."

"If you apply on the battle line equal forces, a bloody result is certain. If you apply overwhelming forces, losses for your side are negligible. That is what you

OSC Professor Loses $120 to City Slickers

PORTLAND, June 26 (AP)—An embarrassed mathematics professor from Oregon State college reported to police today he was "taken in" on a coin-matching racket to the tune of $120.

A stranger struck up an acquaintance in the bus depot and suggested they breakfast together said the professor—listed on police records as Sherwin P. Avann. The new acquaintance proposed they match for the breakfast. A third man came along and the three matched for cash.

Avann said sadly he caught on—$120 later.

Red Token Lands Sucker

MILES CITY, Mont., June 26 (AP)—County Commissioner Frank A. Spears tried every kind of fish lure in his kit. No luck. As a last resort, he fished into his pockets and pinned his last hope on the hook.

He caught a fish, a sucker. The bait: A red ration token.

WRESTLING

It's a picnic...Have a Coke

...a friendly way to keep everyone happy

Have a Coke is a friendly phrase right in the carefree picnic spirit. There's friendliness in every sip of ice-cold Coca-Cola. There's life, sparkle and goodness that bring out the sunny side in everybody. Yes, Coke always makes picnic time, or any time, refreshment time.
