News of 4-H CLUBS

Members of Mr. Dale Busenbark's livestock club held a tour recently and looked over each other's projects. A regular business meeting followed. Motion pictures were shown after the business session.

The Brockway Livestock and Garden club held a tour and meeting July 11 and looked at all the livestock and garden projects and discussed fat stock auction sales and judging of projects for awards in this year's Lions club foods production contest. Motion pictures were shown and refreshments served at the home of Marjorie Zeller at the close of the tour.

4-H club members in the Green area will meet at the school house Friday evening, July 20, to organize a canning club. Mrs. Charles Insley will act as leader for the club. The following 4-H members have expressed their desire to carry the canning project: Shirley and Norma Fisher, Donna and Maxine Farris, Bernice Lounsbury, Karla Henson, Joyce Claypool, Lois Jean Bilger and Wyllys Insley.

Information on awards to be made in this year's Lions club foods production contest has been sent out to all 4-H club members enrolled in dairy, beef, sheep, swine, poultry, rabbits, gardening and canning projects. Projects will be judged during August and September. Awards will be made after projects have been completed in November. A purebred animal or $25 toward purchase of a purebred animal will be first prize in beef, dairy, sheep and swine. A $25 war bond will be first prize in garden, poultry and canning. Nine prizes ranging from $12 in war stamps down to $2 for tenth place will be awarded in each division.

Farm safety is being stressed in a National Farm Safety week July 22-28. 4-H club members are taking an active part in promoting better farm safety. A new project that can now be carried by interested 4-H members is that of safety. In this project the club members take inventory of the accident hazards that exist on their farms, in the home and other farm buildings. They then proceed to eradicate these hazards. That, in reality, is what is being encouraged during farm safety week. In addition, a national 4-H farm safety contest is being sponsored by the General Motors company to encourage 4-
