Allies Acting to Knock Out Japan Speedily, Fully

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Writer

Extension of General MacArthur's Pacific army command to include Okinawa and other Ryukyu islands, in preparation "for the final conquest of Japan," has a double significance: It increases the stature of one of the great commanders of history and it demonstrates that the allies don't intend to linger unduly over an attempt to force surrender by bombing and blockade.

We may take this to be an echo from the Potsdam conference, I believe. America and Britain are determined to force the issue against Japan.

It must be a matter of extreme satisfaction to MacArthur thus to stand before the Mikado's inner fortress, actively preparing to storm it unless the enemy offers early capitulation. Harking back to the general's cry "on to Tokyo!" when he proclaimed the fall of Manila on February, and to other notable orders-of-the-day, one sees the fire of the crusader, whose mission is to smite Jap aggression and barbarity hip and thigh.

Strafed Worse Than Germany
Now this doesn't mean there's no chance of Japanese surrender short of amphibious invasion. Capitulation is possible before invasion although we can't go so far at this juncture as to say it is "probable."

The little island kingdom of Japan, which is exceptionally vulnerable to bombing, already is enduring an aerial bombardment which exceeds anything that Germany, or any other country, ever underwent. That continued at the weekend despite a fierce typhoon. The firmly built cities are being crushed by the avalanche from the sky. And this assault-coupled with naval bombardment—is increasing as the allied forces are augmented by fresh contingents from Europe.

Total Ruin Faced
Nippon's navy has been rendered impotent. Her air force is a ghost of its former self. Her war industries are being wiped out. Her railroads and other communications—which never were good—neither war supplies nor essential food-stuffs can be moved to meet requirements.

The main Japanese islands are almost completely blockaded. To the already formidable naval and air blockade, now has been added the blocking of all important harbors by fields of mines sown by airplanes. Japan is to all intents cut off from the outside world. And she not only is dependent on that outside world for much of her food and most of her other supplies, but she no longer can ship war materiel to her forces on the continent and on the Pacific islands which she still holds.

The American-British-Chinese ultimatum of July 26 to Japan gave the alternatives of immediate unconditional surrender or "prompt and utter destruction." Those two adjectives, "prompt" and "utter," perfectly describe MacArthur's military operations. He will do his part to implement that ultimatum.
