individual house on one or another of his plots, but this is improbable. He will be more likely to live in a multi-family house in an adjacent village, walking back and forth.

HE may rent from anybody—a deceased Lord Somebody—or other, or a farmer who would rather rent his land out than to work it. In the Evesham area the corporation of Worcester under a law passed back in 1914, has bought several thousand acres of land and rents it to these small holders. Cash rent is the rule.

They can BUY, but in this area less than 5 per cent own their land. Lack of the money with which to pay for it is normally given as the reason for non-ownership. They can buy on long terms, 20 years or more, but there just doesn't seem to be enough left over to meet the payments.

LET'S consider an individual (to know people you have to be able to think of them as persons; you can't KNOW people in the mass).

His name is Hall, certainly a good old English name. He is a SKILLED farmer, in his way as highly skilled as Mr. Bennett, the owner of Lower Wick, or Captain Bomford. He grows vegetables, as most of them in the Evesham small holder area do, and he knows every variety and every strain; he comes near to having personal knowledge of every plant. He will say: "Look at this marrow plant; I've taken a dozen marrows off it already, and look what it has left. It's a good one."

He has three holdings, totaling 11 acres. He is lucky. He has an individual house on one of them. He and his family, including his wife's two sisters, do ALL the work. He makes a comfortable living, according to his standards. He is happy and contented.

He is AMBITIOUS, as proved by the fact that he has THREE holdings. The beauty of the Evesham system is that it leaves room for ambition.

WE come now to something that touches an American oddly. Mr. Hall, around 50, or maybe a little less, relates that he started as a farm worker, but is now a "MASTER man." As he utters the words, his shoulders unconsciously square a little, his chin lifts, he stands a bit more proudly.

There is no posing; it is all utterly unselfconscious. But there is music in his voice as the words pass his lips, deepened music.

This term "master man" is a strange one to American ears. This writer seeks enlightenment at the first opportunity, and learns it means that Mr. Hall is his OWN MASTER, that he takes orders from no one, that he steers his own ship; if it goes on the rocks it is HIS fault.

Unconsciously one's mind goes back to a picture already printed there, within this day. On several occasions on these larger farms workers when spoken to by their employer have answered respectfully, using the word "sir" and TOUCHING THEIR CAPS when the conversation ended.

INSTANTLY, when that picture recurs, you understand that squaring of Mr. Hall's shoulders, the momentary deep, singing tone in his voice.

THIS writer is told that except on the farms it is becoming

VICTORY COUNCIL ENDED

By Charles V. Stanton

Cessation of hostilities and surrender of enemies in Europe and the Pacific brings to an end an organization which, in our opinion, is entitled to far more credit than it has ever received. The Roseburg Victory council was organized for the duration only and now ceases to exist. It was formed for the exclusive purpose of aiding in successful prosecution of the war. There is no definite measure to the results it has achieved, but it is evident, beyond any question of doubt, that a most valuable contribution was accomplished.

The Roseburg Victory council consisted of a group of Roseburg business and professional firms and individuals who united to sponsor advertising pertaining to the war effort. Through weekly contributions of funds, this group, setting an original pattern for community cooperation, has attracted nation-wide attention.

The early days of the war clearly produced one outstanding requirement—the need for funds with which to sponsor advertising on behalf of emergency activities.

The American people are advertising conscious. When the public must be reached, the most effective way of presenting the message is by advertising. Men placed in charge of both military and home-front activities quickly realized the importance of advertising. In fact, for the first time in history, the Army and the Navy, prior to Pearl Harbor, had been using paid advertising in newspapers to gain recruits, realizing such outstanding results that recruiting through paid advertising is expected to be followed in peacetime, when men are needed for either or both services.

Declaration of war ended paid advertising campaigns by the military services, but there arose a program of local sponsorship. The federal government began asking business men in every community throughout the nation to sponsor advertising. Upon newspapers was placed the task of soliciting merchants, industrial firms, professional men and others to carry government messages in their advertising space. In many communities sponsorship of war-aid advertising was handled entirely on an individual basis, each advertiser paying for space in his local paper to present campaigns connected with the war effort.

But Roseburg merchants, badly handicapped with manpower shortages, had sufficient problems without daily solicitation by a newspaper advertising salesman peddling government ads. On the other hand, the News-Review didn't have the salesmen. So, out of necessity, the Roseburg Victory council was born. Starting with 75 firms and individuals, membership has been almost constant throughout the war period. The Roseburg plan was widely copied throughout the nation. Special certificates of appreciation were sent out to members from national war bond headquarters, in connection with one of the early war bond drives. An Honor Roll program originated and sponsored by the Roseburg Victory council attracted high commendation at national headquarters and its pattern, only slightly modified, was used in connection with the last bond campaign.

Through the Victory council alone 14,180 inches of paid advertising appeared in the News-Review during the period of the war in support of war bond sales, recruiting for the various branches of service, Red Cross campaigns, and numerous other activities. Victory council advertising was equal to 86½ full pages, or the equivalent of complete issues of the News-Review daily for more than two weeks.

Members of the Victory council during the war period contributed $5,055 to the advertising fund, which was expended under the direction of the retail merchants committee of the Roseburg Chamber of Commerce.

The Victory council, of course, cannot be credited exclusively with sponsorship of war-aid advertising, for there has been much individually contributed space, particularly by national advertisers and chain store groups. But we believe it is more than mere coincidence that Douglas county consistently held one of the top spots in war bond buying until the last campaign when, because of the newsprint shortage, the News-Review was unable to publish all the war bond advertising the Victory council was prepared to sponsor. It was the only campaign in which Douglas county failed to place in the upper bracket.

The Roseburg Victory council, in our opinion, made an important contribution to the war effort. Its members, we believe, have a right to feel very proud of their participation. For their cooperation in relieving the News-Review of the task of constant solicitation, a job we were unable to handle, we are extremely grateful. We feel that every Douglas county citizen should take pride in the cooperative program so successfully undertaken and maintained throughout the period of the war by this organization.

highly unusual for a worker to touch his cap (caps are much more common here) when spoken to by his employer, but it is perfectly obvious to an American that in the English system the employer is a very, very big man in his establishment, not one with whom the lowlier workers could possibly fraternize, certainly not one who could be addressed casually as Tom, or Bill or Pete.

NOTHING you see here strikes you, as an American, with an odder or more jarring bump. It comes to you suddenly that the English farming system is CLOSER TO FEUDALISM than the industrial system, with its unions and its labor movements, and hence is slower to abandon this touching of the cap.

Pondering on this, and on the kindred phenomenon of extreme respect that CUSTOM decrees must be shown to the employer, you find it easier to understand the UPHEAVAL of the recent election.

As this writer has so often said, because he feels it in his bones, there are DEEP STRINGS here.

Mrs. Forrest M. Booher Of Kelly's Korner Dies
 Mrs. Forrest M. (Erma Jane) Booher, 43, resident of the Roseburg vicinity for the past ten years, died suddenly at her home at Kelly's Korner Monday.

She was born at Toledo, Ohio, March 23, 1902, and came to Roseburg from Los Angeles, Calif. She was married to Forrest M. Booher at Roseburg, June 20, 1944. Mrs. Booher has been employed by the Douglas County Poultry company for several years.

Surviving besides her husband, Forrest M. Booher, she leaves a daughter, Dora Reece.

Funeral services will be held in the chapel of the Douglas Funeral home Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Concluding services and interment will follow in the Masonic cemetery.

Hager, Lipscomb Will Battle For Mat Title Here

The junior light-heavyweight wrestling champion of the Pacific Northwest, now held by Jack Lipscomb, will be at stake in the main event of the weekly card at the Roseburg armory next Saturday night.

Tex Hager

day night, when Lipscomb takes on Tex Hager, now a permanent resident of Roseburg. Hager earned a crack at the title after his victory here last Saturday over Georges Dusette, who lost the title previously to Lipscomb.

Outweighed by his opponent 10 pounds, Hager will rely on the speed, agility and football tactics, that have brought him to the top ranks of the game, to subdue the "Hoosier Hot Shot," one of the meanest of the "meanies."

The supporting match will be announced Friday.

Lead of Beavers Cut to 3½ Games

The Seattle Rainiers were within three and a half games today of the leading Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast league. They defeated Oakland 10 to 8 last night while Portland was losing to Los Angeles 5 to 4. San Francisco downed Sacramento, 14-4, and San Diego dropped Hollywood 7-2.

Portland was definitely outplayed in losing to the seventh-birth Angels, who got 10 hits off two opposition pitchers and were errorless afield. The Scraps got all their runs off Mossor, scoring three in the second on doubles by Russell and Kretner and single by Viers and Otero. They counted twice more in the third on Kretner's second two-bagger.

The Beavers pushed over two in the third and two more in the fifth but got only one man on base in the last four innings. Adams was the winning tosser.

Registration of Motor Vehicles in Oregon Upped
 SALEM, Ore., Aug. 22.—(AP)—There were 408,306 motor vehicles registered in Oregon on August 1, a gain of 3,400 over the registration of a year ago. Secretary of State Farrell, said yesterday.

Registration fees this year up to August 1 totaled $3,454,443, compared with $3,345,292 in the similar period of last year.

Geneva Likely Site of World Security Group
 LONDON, Aug. 22.—Geneva, home of the League of Nations, appears to be winning favor among diplomats in London as a possible site for permanent headquarters of the United Nations Security organization.

One allied official said today that the site now depends primarily on Russia. If the Russians agree, the United Nations may move into the palace constructed for the League at Geneva.

Lend-Lease Flow From U. S. Nears Its Conclusion

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Lend-lease, a 45-billion-dollar pipeline to victory, is closing down.

President Truman has decided to end the mutual aid program under which this country has poured more than $40,000,000,000 worth of weapons, food and equipment to bolster the Allied fight against the Axis.

In return, some $5,000,000,000 has been channeled up as reverse lend-lease.

With victory now won on all fronts, letters of notification already have been drafted to advise foreign purchasing missions here that they will have to make some other arrangements for future supplies.

Presumably, this will bring a heavy demand for loans from the recently-expanded export-import bank. Capitalization of that federal lending agency was increased from $700,000,000 to $3,500,000,000 shortly before congress recessed.

Presumably, too, the action will lead to an early decision by this country on which goods it wants returned and which are to be left with the recipients for some future settlement.

London Faces Problem
 Even before Mr. Truman's decision to terminate lend-lease operations became known, an influential London financial magazine took note of the fiscal problem Britain will face in the immediate post-war period.

The publication, the Economist, suggested in effect that Great Britain obtain a $6,000,000,000 cash grant from the United States to permit her to pay off her foreign debts at about 50 cents on the dollar, with a note for the balance.

The United Kingdom has been the chief recipient of lend-lease aid. From inception of the program last March, 1941, to last April 1, latest date for which figures are available, she received goods valued at $12,775,000,000.

New Superintendent of West Point Announced

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former commander of the 101st airborne division, has been appointed superintendent of the United States Military academy at West Point, the War department announced yesterday.

He assumes his new command September 1, succeeding Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby, who takes an important assignment with the engineer corps at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Taylor, 44, is a native of Kansas City, Mo.

Infant Stolen From Crib, Mother Reports

SEATTLE, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Paul C. Helmick of Lake Kocheelus, near here, reported to officers last night that her 16-month-old boy had disappeared from his crib, apparently taken by an intruder.

She reported she had put the child to bed about 8:45 and he was gone when she looked at his crib 45 minutes later. She said she had heard no unusual sounds.
