that has given the employer.
 There is also the tradition of feudalism. We must remember that here on this very soil, in feudal times, the worker was a serf, TIED to the land he tilled, wholly at his master's mercy.
 So, you can see, bitter memories
 cluster around this term "TIED cottage."

It is generally expected that the new labor government will do away with the system. Employers wonder how, without it,
 they will be able to "handle"
 their labor. This writer's guess is that it will go—and go quickly,
 another relic of the past overwhelmed by the swelling tide of new thinking that is sweeping
 this island.

THIS Evesham area is regarded as distinctly "advanced." For example, if a small holder wants
 to clear out, he can sell his lease
 and his property, such as growing crops, to a neighbor and move on without saying "by your leave"
 to his landlord. That isn't the general rule, this writer is told (with England's feudal tradition,
 landlordism is an institution here
 that we Americans find it hard to understand).

Also, if a tenant has fruit trees
 or asparagus, or some similar long-term crop, the trees and the roots are HIS PROPERTY, and if he sells his lease and moves,
 or is disposed of, he has to be recompensed for them. That also isn't the general rule—elsewhere,
 if the tenant moves after putting out an orchard or an asparagus
 patch it is just too bad, and he loses them.

This Evesham right of the tenant in such matters has been upheld by the courts recently.
 (More evidence of the spread of new ideas.)

EVEN among these small holdings, with their tiny areas,
 MECHANIZATION is taking hold. Mr. Hall has a garden tractor (one of these little affairs
 working from a traction wheel in front and guided by handles like a plow). It is made by a well-known American manufacturer,
 and its owner thinks very highly
 of it indeed as a sturdy dependable tool. "I've 'ad it for 'te years," he says, "and in all that time it's never 'ad so much as a new bolt or a new nut. It stands up and tykes it year after year."

RAMBLING AROUND

By Charles V. Stanton

Release of workers in shipyards, aircraft factories and other war plants, coming simultaneously with lifting of gasoline rationing, has filled highways with families returning to their homes or seeking new locations. Roads are congested with jalopies heaped high with household furnishings and personal possessions as the hordes of war workers from industrial centers gets under way.

The present condition is but a mild sample of what is to come. We can anticipate a vast movement of population continuing over a period of years. Predictions point to a mighty tide sweeping westward to the Pacific slope in the postwar era.
 Recently we picked up a soldier hitch-hiking his way south from Camp Adair. We learned that he came from New York city and was seeing the Pacific coast for the first time. Given a 30-day furlough, he struck out to view as much of the coast as his limited leave would permit. He volunteered information that he is greatly intrigued by the West coast and plans to bring his family out this way as soon as he secures release from military service. He has been using every weekend pass to visit Oregon cities, and was on his way to California, foregoing a trip back to his home—with his wife's telephoned consent—during his furlough, in order that he might search out their prospective postwar homesite.

This soldier is only one of many thousands making like plans. Brought from the Midwest, South and East to Pacific coast camps for training, great numbers of men fell in love with the Far West and plan to join our communities as soon as circumstances permit. Thus we can prepare for a great influx of young, stalwart men, filled with ambition, whom it will be a pleasure to welcome into the fast-growing coast area.

Removal of gasoline rationing has filled highways with more than families making their exodus from war production centers. A state policeman told us a traffic count he conducted during his patrol showed three out of four cars on the highway to be from California. Highway traffic certainly has returned to normal in a hurry. Of the remaining one-fourth of cars counted, half bore Washington licenses, with the balance from Oregon and miscellaneous states.

Here in Roseburg, ability to "fill 'er up" has added to the downtown traffic and parking congestion. Persons who have been walking to and from work, or shopping only at intervals, are rapidly returning to the prewar habits of parking the family bus downtown during the daytime, or driving the two blocks to the neighborhood grocery. Growing congestion furnishes further proof of Roseburg's rapid boost in population and renews attention to the urgency of facilities for off-street parking, wider streets and traffic controls.

Speaking of traffic controls, a word of commendation is due the city council and street department for the new "Stop" signs erected to replace the "fire busters" previously set in the center of streets at intersections with arterials. The new curbline signs are attractive and a decided improvement.

We've had an idea in mind for a long time that the city of Roseburg could improve the traffic situation materially if it would remove all power and light poles from the main streets and cut sidewalks back two feet on each side. Wires could be placed underground or run over the roofs of buildings. Street lights could be hung from brackets fastened to buildings. Presence of poles along sidewalks now wastes at least two feet of space, so sidewalk capacity would not be reduced, while addition of as little as four feet to street width would be of great benefit in traffic movement. It's just an idea. It may not be worth a hoot. Maybe someone has a better plan; if so we'd like to hear about it, for, certainly, wider streets are an absolute necessity.

Gardner, where he worked for the Gardner Mill company, then owned by the late W. F. Jewett. Ox teams were used in the woods in those days, but Mr. Baldersee's career also included the days of skiffs. The first skyline system in the Northwest is said to have been used by him. After the early days he became a private logging contractor and did business as the R. G. Baldersee Logging company.

No young men are learning it. If you want a thatched roof repaired, you have to hunt up an oldster, who will probably be in his late 70's or maybe his 80's.

NEWS OF OUR MEN...WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Mrs. John Kelly, now residing at Bandon, has received word that her son, Lt. James A. Peterson, expects to be home before Christmas, after three years spent overseas. A graduate of Roseburg High school, Lt. Peterson was commissioned while attending Oregon State college. He participated in the North African and Italian campaigns. A brother, Eugene B. Peterson, also a former resident of Roseburg, serving with the Navy, has been trained as an aerial bomber. He is a member of the crew on the bomber piloted by Lieutenant Robert Snoddy of Roseburg.

R. G. Baldersee, Pioneer Douglas Logger, Dies

EUGENE, Aug. 28.—Funeral services were held Wednesday for Robert Grant Baldersee, 80, pioneer logger who for 60 years was well known in development of the industry in Oregon and Washington. Mr. Baldersee died Monday at his home here.
 Mr. Baldersee came to Oregon at the age of 12, having been born at Magnolia, Ark. His logging career was launched at

DAILY DEVOTIONS DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

"And they continued steadfastly." The early Christians had the grace of constancy. They were steadfast in their loyalty to Christ and His teaching and to the Christian fellowship. They continued steadfastly in prayer. They continued steadfastly in the temple. They were not "off and on" Christians; they were steadfast. Every Lord's Day found them together. When the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all together in one place. They were steadfast, meeting every day and waiting for the promise of their Master to be fulfilled. Jesus had been steadfast for them. He steadfastly set His face toward Jerusalem. He would not be turned aside. Our redemption depended on it. If He failed we would be lost. He has given us an example of an attainable ideal. Let us not fail Him. Let us beware of the enemies of steadfastness, indifference, indolence, careless company, the downward pull of evil desires. Paul's admonition "Be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding," is good advice for these days.

Deadline Set for Beef And Dairy Payments

August 31 is the deadline date for two current production payments—beef cattle and dairy. It's the final date for filing application at the county AAA office for milk and butterfat sold during the months of April, May and June, and also the last day for making application for the 50 cents a hundredweight payment on beef cattle sold in the period May 19-June 30. The beef payment is made on animals owned for at least 30 days and sold to a licensed slaughterer for not less than $14.95 a hundred.

Bloodhound Finds Lost Man, 101, in Brief Hunt

HAMPO, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Sol Mendelson, 101-year-old retired merchant missing since yesterday morning, was found in the woods today by a bloodhound after an all night search by his children, grandchildren, great grandchildren, police and firemen.
 Mendelson told police he had gone for a walk in the woods yesterday and lost his way. Within 15 minutes of starting one of the dogs found Mendelson sitting on a rock. Mendelson said he was "hungry and mosquito bitten."

Peacetime Buying On Installment Is On Way Back

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Peacetime installment buying practices are apparently on the way back in.

It was learned today that relaxation of the government regulation fixing specific down payments on numerous purchase items, and otherwise limiting the practice of "buying on time," may be effected within two weeks.

The regulation went into effect in the fall of 1941. It was the seventh point of the late President Roosevelt's general stabilization program.
 It provides for a down payment of one-third at the time of purchase and stipulates the remainder must be paid in 12 months for a long list of items including such commodities as bedding and linens, bicycles, boats, clocks, stoves, furnaces, jewelry, cameras, most musical instruments, radios and washing machines.
 For time purchases of furniture and pianos, 20 per cent must be paid immediately and the remainder in 12 months.
 The regulation also placed controls of loans made to purchase such commodities or services and provided that charge accounts must be paid by the 10th day of the second month following the date of purchase.
 Whether the regulation will be abandoned entirely or merely modified depends on decisions of officials charged with maintaining a stable economy.

Timothy grass was named for Timothy Hanson because he introduced it into the Carolinas.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
Songs for a Better World

We were sitting around the embers of Ed Crummit's barbecue last Saturday night, finishing our beer and hot dogs, while Ed strummed the guitar... picking out old, friendly songs.
 Soon everyone was singing. The harmony wasn't too good... but the spirit was—a spirit of friendship and good humor.
 And it made me think how music—music of the people—overcomes barriers of prejudice and intolerance. A Yankee folksong or an English carol or a Southern melody—they all speak a common language of the heart... bind folks together... help us forget our grudges.
 From where I sit, music can help to make the whole world kin. Maybe we ought to have a lot more of it... informal sings around the fire, and in the home. And it's sure true that a mellow glass of beer fits into the picture. It just naturally goes with that kind of music.
 Joe Marsh
