saddened and wised when you get your first bill, for it will be pretty certain to include an item of 10 per cent for "gratuities."

At either a hotel or a billet, it will take you quite a while to get over wondering uneasily what will be your status (having only one pair of shoes and no more obtainable unless you have British points) if he should fail to bring them back.

If, hurrying up the street, your shoes down and notice that your shoes are a sight you'll be in a bad way, for the fundamental American institution of shine stands just "ain't" EXCEPT of late, in places where GIs congregate in large numbers.

HAIRCUTS, like shines, are among the few bargains in these days of postwar scarcities. They cost one and sixpence (about 30c), even at the swank places in the big hotels.

You get a haircut at a gentleman's hairdressing salon. Once in a long walk you will see a plain barber shop, labeled as such, striped pole and everything.

THE barbers like American customers, who are so floored by the price that they come through with a tip approximating the cost of the haircut.

Generally speaking, the price of commodities is high, fully as high as in the United States and often higher, but the cost of services, such as shoe shining, barbering, pressing, etc., tends to be low. Native British are astonished by our addiction to clothes pressing and cleaning.

(It must be remembered that Britain's climate is normally damp and knife-edge creases don't last long.)

AS always in a strange city, anywhere, you rely at first wholly on cabs. As a general average, lurching long rides and short ones and assuming that your necessary contacts aren't scattered TOO far apart, it sets you back about two shillings every time you ride in one.

Two shillings are about 40 cents, and they have a coin known as a half crown that is worth two shillings and sixpence. It must have been coined for cab-riding purposes.

AFTER a while you learn to ride the busses, which are two-deckers and impressive in the extreme—and a highly efficient form of transport.

The fare varies a little with the distance. You tell the conductor (in these days apt to be a conductress) how far you're going and he tells you how much it will be and gives you a ticket to prove you've paid.

The way to ride the bus is to tell somebody where you want to go and ask what number to take. Almost invariably the answer comes right off the bat.

HARVEST PROSPECTS

By Charles V. Stanton

Response to the emergency appeal Sunday for bean pickers to aid in taking up the lag in harvesting saved growers from considerable loss and at the same time added to the amount of canned food which will be made available to the public, J. Roland Parker, county agent reports.

This nation, best fed in the world, owes a great debt to its boys and girls. Without the ready response of our teenagers we would have had a very serious food problem on our hands.

Our local bean crop, as an example, is being harvested very largely by boys and girls ranging from 10 to 17 years. It is the same age group that is bringing in the pears.

Our pear growers, despite the fact that their labor troubles have been fairly well solved, are in a desperate plight and face heavy financial losses.

Canners are not anxious to take pears for several reasons. One is that the ruling on the amount of sugar permitted—about 20 per cent of normal—results in an inferior product.

Prune harvest will start about the middle of September. A few orchards in the southern part of the county may begin picking earlier, but present indications point to a general start of the harvest program from September 15 to 20.

Growers can be of much assistance in solving the harvest labor problem by giving better cooperation to the farm labor office, the county agent says.

YOU don't just climb on a bus if you can and hang on by your eyelashes, as in the States. They let in only as many as there are SEATS FOR, and when the bus is filled it's no dice until somebody gets off.

If (before you get onto the ropes) you just climb on a full bus and if you happen to catch a short-tempered conductress, you'll get told off in words that curl your hair.

It must be that here in London the female of the species is more deadly than the male, for almost invariably the male conductor is courteous itself. Indeed, courtesy is the general rule here—far more so than at home.

Lower Feed Grain Supply Calls for Closer Figuring

Farmers may need to figure the coming year's livestock production programs on a slightly smaller feed grain supply. With the 1945 corn crop the determining factor, August 1 estimates indicate that this year's production of the four principal grains—corn, oats, barley and grain sorghums—will be about 6 per cent less than last year.

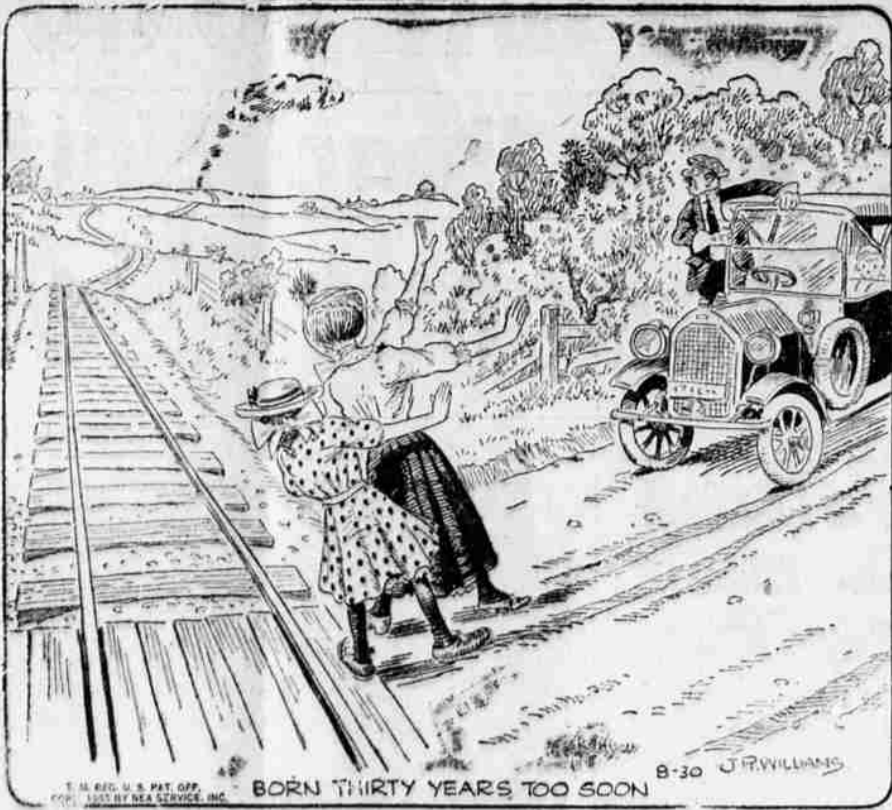

Elliott Roosevelt Loan Probed By House Committee

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Congressmen wound up their first formal inquiry into Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt's business affairs without getting to Roosevelt's own account. And it was not clear yesterday when they would.

Several committee members, while asking that their names not be used, quoted Hartford's deposition as saying that: "The late president was consulted by the grocery chain head before the latter loaned young Roosevelt $200,000. Jones later settled his loan for $4,000."

Oregon's Big Game Heavily Increased

PORTLAND, Aug. 29.—Oregon's total of big game animals is now 332,926, according to estimates made by the state game commission in collaboration with the United States fish and wildlife service.

The big-game total for the nation is now 6,748,000, an increase of 30 per cent over the prewar period. The figure is an estimate made by the fish and wildlife service.
