Jobless Claims Set Highest Mark In U. S. History

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—Unemployment compensation claims hit the highest mark in history last week—596,458 initial claims—Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer of the Social Security board told the Senate Finance committee yesterday.

That was more than 50 per cent higher than in any previous week since the war began, he testified, and about 11 times the number received in the various states for the week prior to Japan's surrender.

Altmeyer told the committee he is "100 per cent in favor of the objectives" of the legislation it is considering to bring the payments to jobless up to a national maximum of $25 a week for 26 weeks through additional federal grants.

Altmeyer told the senators that unemployment compensation claims of all kinds, including waiting period and compensable claims reached a total of 960,913 last week, or three times as high as the total for the week ending August 11.

Reconversion Director John W. Snyder gave his endorsement to establishment of a national unemployment compensation standard.

Snyder told the House Ways and Means committee unemployment during reconversion probably will total six million by the end of the year and eight million by early spring, and that sharp reduction in the living standards of displaced workers is threatened.
