G. I. Joe, Discarding Military Uniform, Finds Empty Store Shelves in Search for Civvies

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—G. I. Joe, waving his discharge papers and ready to go places in civilian life, is finding it difficult to get all dressed up.

The ever increasing number of servicemen who are doffing their military uniforms aren't finding much of a choice in men's clothing, say retailers and manufacturers.

The discharged servicemen, most of them wanting to buy complete new outfits, are given preference by retailers, but the demand for men's clothing is greater than at any time in the last year and stocks in stores are depleted almost as soon as new shipments are received.

E. J. Cahn, president of B. Knuppenheimer & Co., national distributors of men's clothing, said the supply of men's clothes was at an unprecedented low throughout the country because of various reasons—lack of materials, strikes and manpower shortages.

Retailers and manufacturers said the clothing shortage will begin to ease early in 1946 but surely will not meet demand until late spring and possibly next fall.

They described the shortage of wool as acute and the shortage of lining and trimming materials also is holding up suit production.

Suits are not the only item of scarcity for the servicemen returning to civilian life, the merchants said. The supplies of shirts and shorts for men are equally scarce.

Cahn suggested that, until the shortage is passed, discharged officers have their uniforms remodeled instead of altering them in mothballs. Civilians also should take old clothes out of mothballs, repair and wear them until the situation eases, he said.

Another manufacturer disagreed, however, and said many might resent being told to remodel and wear military uniforms.

Well Dressed Duck
MILTON, Wash., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Mark Wyland is looking for a duck wearing a white handkerchief.

He said he bagged the duck on a hunting trip and knotted his handkerchief around its neck to ease the carrying chore. When a flock of ducks flew over Wyland dropped his bird to take a shot and the "dead" duck got up and flew away, handkerchief and all.

Martinelli Beats Grey Mask; Mr. X Conquers Porter

Angelo Martinelli took all the head-butts the Grey Mask crashed his way on the headliner of the weekly wrestling program at the Roseburg armory last Saturday night and defeated the hooded neanie two falls out of three. Dishing out some rough stuff of his own in retaliation, Martinelli survived three head-butts to capture the first fall of the bout with a surf board hold in 17:57. The Mask used his cranium so effectively in the second stanza, however, that he flattened Angelo in to near-inertia and subdued him in 8:42 with a Boston crab hold. Both crappers, using about everything banned in the book of rules, battled viciously in the third and deciding round, which ended in 6:14 when Angelo downed his foe with a haymaker and applied a body press. Upon regaining his feet, the Mask turned on both Angelo and Referee Elton Owen, downing both with head butts and knocking through his fists until they managed to overcome him.

Mysterious Mr. X Wins
The crowd of around 500 was introduced to another masked grappler, bearing the title of "Mysterious Mr. X." Pitted against Tex Porter, who substituted in the semi-finals for Herb Parks, reported injured, Mr. X fought very clever, and at all times aggressive, opposing speed and science to Porter's dirty tactics, and winning the bout with two straight falls.

Properly speaking, the first round did not end in a fall but in a referee's decision, coming in 18:34. After kicking Mr. X through the ropes and onto the floor, Porter thrice prevented him from regaining the mat by breaking past the referee and using his feet on his opponent. Then Owen jumped out of the ring to the side of X and raised his arm as a token of awarding the round. The masked unknown made quick work of the second and final round, battling Porter in the latter's style, then applying an airplane spin to take the fall in 5:17.

Gaels Wins 7th Straight; Fresno State Victim, 32-6

FRESNO, Calif., Nov. 13.—(AP)—St. Mary's dazzling Gaels, cream of the Pacific Coast football crop this season, humbled the Fresno State Bulldogs 32-6 before 16,000 spectators here yesterday.

It was the unbeaten Gaels' seventh consecutive triumph.

Not until Coach Jimmy Phelan went in his regulars, Herman Sedener and Co., did the razzle-dazzle St. Mary's attack begin to click. The stubborn Bulldog line held the vaunted "Singing Saints" scoreless for the first 25 minutes of the game and allowed only six points during the entire first half.

St. Mary's will close its regular schedule against the U. C. L. A. Bruins at Los Angeles Saturday.

A victory for the Gaels will enhance their chances of a bid to the Sugar Bowl.

Assault Case On Trial Before Jury

Alex Steve West, indicted by the grand jury on a charge of armed assault, went on trial today in district court opened for the regular November term. West is accused of stabbing and seriously injuring Fred J. Hayes, May 14, in an altercation at Canyonville.

Testimony presented before the court indicated that both men had been drinking. Each party claimed the other provoked the attack. West claimed that he drew the knife in self defense against a knife, a larger man.

The jury selected to hear the testimony included W. A. Rydard, Nonda Anderson, Gordon Burnett, E. J. Crawford, Cleveland Miller, Ruth Plumer, Otto Olson, Lula Townsend, Albert W. Cochran, Eva Kinsel, Eva F. Ware and Rena Helbig.
