50 Years Deserve an Encore

Fifty years ago, three sisters married in the same mass ceremony at Dunnington, Ind. All three marriages still survive and, in celebration of their golden wedding anniversaries, the couples plan to repeat their vows at Long Beach, Calif., where this picture was made. The couples are, left to right: Peter P. Kirsch, 73, and Loretta, 68, of Long Beach; John H. Martin, 80, and Ida, 70, of Van Nuys, Calif.; John Pitstick, 73, and Lucy, 67, of South Charleston, Ohio.

Four of a Kind

It was a long step toward easing the beef shortage when that biological rarity—quadruplet calves—were born on the farm of Chas. Lucas and Sons at Dyer, Ky., last April 18. They are shown an exhibition at the Chicago Market Fat Stock Show, wartime replacement of the International Stock Show.

Veteran Showman To Conduct Resort On Lower Umpqua

REEDSPORT—John Bronson, who is improving the resort property on the Umpqua, near Scottsburg, formerly owned by Bill Harris and known as Bill's Fish Farm, is an old-time showman. He was at one time one of the leading motorcycle racing riders and was one of the original motor-dome riders of the country. Mr. Bronson toured the world as an exhibition motor-dome rider and while in the Orient conceived the idea of bringing a ship load of wild animals, birds and reptiles to the United States. He claims records of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will show he imported into the United States, in 1929, the largest shipment of wild animals, that ever came into this country in one ship. On arrival he found the panic was on, banks were closing, and he was about out of funds himself. He finally was able to dispose of his stock without loss to himself.

Have Large Gorilla
For a number of years Mr. and Mrs. Bronson have been traveling the United States and Canada in the show and carnival business and at the present time they have at the Fish Farm one of the largest gorilla in captivity, as well as two of those much advertised prehistoric horses that are found in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. These fully matured horses are but 28 inches high and are perfectly formed. They also have a number of other small menagerie stock wintering on the Umpqua.

When the 1946 show season commences, Mr. Bronson will again go on tour but Mrs. Bronson says: "Not for me; I like my home on the Umpqua and will remain here, while John can make the circuit this year alone." Mr. Bronson is preparing to have piling driven for his new dock and is looking for a bulldozer to root out a larger parking space and picnic grounds on the south side of the highway.

Must Not Overcrowd
If adequate land is not available, pullets can be grown in confinement successfully if not overcrowded. Under such conditions they need about two square feet of floor space per bird during the period they are two to five months of age. This, of course, means additional investment in housing space.

Veterans, newcomers or others planning to build or remodel poultry houses may obtain plans and specifications by contacting any county agent or the state college poultry department. Bennion says many mistakes are made in housing by using plans for poultry buildings not adapted to Oregon conditions.

Any veteran inexperienced in poultry production will find out by working for awhile on a poultry farm whether he likes working with chickens well enough to stay with it, Bennion concludes.

Govt. Acts Against Argentine Lockout

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 15—(AP)—The government took measures today to insure an adequate food supply for the populace as a 72-hour lockout proclaimed by Argentine businessmen in protest against the labor policies of the military regime moved into its second day.

Following announcement that "the government is taking steps necessary to assure a supply of needed articles to the people," government agents began swearing out warrants against businessmen under a wartime law banning speculation.

Housewives of Buenos Aires' half million homes lived on stored food or walked the streets in search of a few small stores which were willing to open and supply new customers. Milk deliveries continued, as did transportation and public services, but food, department and neighborhood stores were closed.

Employers, in order to emphasize that their action was directed against the government decree ordering year-end bonuses and salary increases and not against the workers, generally promised to pay wages for the three days of the closure.

Dairy Trade Firm But Butter Supply Continues Short
Dairy products markets were extremely firm during the week ending January 11, according to the weekly dairy review prepared by the OSC, extension service by the USDA market reports and other data. Milk production is gradually increasing, but with reserves negligible, broad demand for all dairy products continues fluid milk and cream markets ruled very firm with over-all demands still ahead of supplies.

The bureau of agricultural economics estimated United States milk production for December 1945 at 2 per cent above the November total, but 2 per cent less than December 1944. The yearly total for 1945 was estimated at 123,000,000 pounds, an all-time high.

Butter markets throughout the nation were intensely firm with supplies desperately short. Production appeared to have turned the corner, but receipts at terminal markets were at record lows, and only one-third of previous levels. Demands were intense, and only partially satisfied as distribution quotas were closely controlled. In regular trade channels prices pressed allowable ceilings, but over-ceiling operations in illegitimate trade were reported. Reports of sales of one-quarter pounds at 20 and 25 cents were common at New York City, some of which sales were verified. A similar situation prevailed at other markets, with verified sales of 65 cents a pound at Chicago. Retail stores at San Francisco reached an all-time new low as movement in retail channels for the week ending January 5 declined 38 per cent from the previous week and dropped to 26 per cent below last year. Further declines for the next few weeks are anticipated as reserves are practically out of the picture and more cream is being diverted to other products.

Other dairy products, such as ice cream mix, thick cream, canned and dried milk, and casein were all short of demands.

Livestock, Poultry Feed Placed Under Controls

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—A growing shortage of protein feed for livestock and poultry today led the Agriculture Department to re-establish wartime controls over use and distribution of such feed.

Beginning immediately, no feed manufacturer may use more high protein meal in making mixed feed for livestock other than poultry than the quantity used for that purpose in the corresponding calendar quarter of 1945.

In the case of poultry feed, mixers will be limited to the following percentages of the quantities used in the corresponding months of 1945:

January and February 100 per cent; March 95; April 90, and other months 85.

The department said the limitation on poultry feed are in line with the government's 1946 farm production goals calling for 15 per cent fewer eggs and 17 per cent fewer chickens than were produced last year.
