WEDDING TAKES PLACE AT YONCALLA

YONCALLA — A very pretty wedding took place Saturday morning, at the Yoncalla Church of Christ, when Miss Mary Deloris Vian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Vian became the bride of Mahlon Main, son of Mrs. Vern Williams.

The wedding took place at 11 o'clock under a canopy of pale blue and white crepe paper and banks of ferns. Rev Mr. Belleau, pastor of the Drain Assembly of God performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families of both parties and a few chosen friends. The bride was dressed in a soldier-blue wool suit, with a small hat, and veil and black accessories. She wore a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. George Meyers was matron of honor and wore a pale yellow afternoon dress and corsage of white and pink carnations. Mr. Meyers was best man. The bride's mother and the groom's mother each wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Miss Donna Lloyd and Mona Raper sang "I Love You Truly" accompanied by Mrs. George Taylor, who also played the Lohengren wedding march.

A bridal dinner was served at noon to the wedding party and relatives. In the afternoon a bridal shower was given Mr. and Mrs. Main. A large wedding cake decorated in blue and white and topped with a miniature bride and groom was cut and served with other refreshments, following the opening of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Those present at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Ira Vian, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lloyd and family, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Curtright and family, Wiford Vian, Mrs. Gertrude Kincaid, Mrs. George Meyers, Sr., Mrs. Swearengen of Yoncalla, Mr. and Mrs. Royal Van Worman of Springfield, Charles Van Worman of Broken Bow, Nebraska, Mrs. Christensen and family, Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Williams of Roseburg, Mrs. Baker of Roseburg, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Kirtley and two sons of Drain. Other guests present at the shower were the Long girls, Mrs. Highley, Mrs. Leona McMillan, Mrs. Sam Walkinshaw, Mrs. W. J. Ladd, Mrs. George Edes, Mrs. Fecteau and two children, Mrs. Ray McCallister, Mrs. Tom Wallace, Miss Kay Turpin, Mrs. Roy Dodd, Mrs. Junior Dodd, Mrs. Elsie Mault, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Glen Coons and two children, Miss Thelma and Lorraine Atkinson, Mrs. Bob Roberts and daughter, Mrs. E. Russell and daughter, Miss Clara Miller, Mrs. Ehrlick. Many gifts were sent by friends unable to attend.

Secy. Anderson Issues Advice to Cattle Raisers

DENVER, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson today advised cattlemen pressing for removal of price controls along with subsidies June 30 not to "holler until you're hurt."

However, he warned that if Congress decides it is necessary to hold down the cost of living after that date "it follows almost automatically that food prices must be kept under control as the central, most vital part of America's everyday living."

In a speech before the American National Livestock Association convention, Anderson listed three possible courses of action:

"One, to drop ceilings and subsidies on June 30. If this course is followed, you would have no further interest in ceilings or subsidies.

"Two, to discontinue the subsidy payments and lift ceiling prices enough to permit subsidies to be absorbed in part or in whole. This would mean that you should get about the same return as you do now.

"Three, to continue both subsidies and ceilings, in which case your situation would be the same as it is now."

Urges Culling of Herds

Anderson said there are too many cattle in the west from the standpoint of long-range feed capacity and advised stockmen to cull down their herds "and get rid of flinty-boned old critters" at higher prices than reasonably can be expected in the future.

He pointed out that range conditions have been good for eight consecutive years, "a run of good luck that has occurred only once before in the last 60 years."

"I'm not prophesying a drought," he said, "but the weather isn't going to continue favorable indefinitely."

Anderson defended the administration's public lands policy and refuted claims of livestock men that Forest Service grazing policies "build up the little fellows into competitors for range and forest land."

China Reds Break Truce Is Report

CHUNGKING, Jan. 14—(AP)—The Chinese nationalist government and the communists each charged the other today with violations of the truce in their undeclared civil war, which was supposed to have ended at last midnight.

A spokesman for the central government national military council asserted that despite the "cease fire" deadline at Sunday midnight, the communists today increased rather than ceased their military operations.

The Yenan Red forces were charged with burning villages all along the eastern section of the Lunghair railway, which cuts through northern Kiangsu province to the Yellow Sea and with attacking nationalist-held Anyang on the Peiping-Hankow railroad in northern Honan.

There were hopes, however, that the situation was not as serious as it appeared. Continued operations beyond the Sunday midnight deadline could be attributed to two causes: failure of troops to receive cease fire orders in time, and a desire to derive the maximum possible advantage before the deadline.

Farm Woodlands Source of Poles For REA Lines

Owners of farm woodlands in Oregon have an opportunity to turn surplus second growth into cash by helping supply the immediate and long-term demand for poles of smaller sizes needed by the REA for rural electric line construction throughout the United States, reports Dan D. Robinson, extension forester at Oregon State College.

Douglas fir, red cedar and lodgepole pine are the species best suited to meet this demand, Robinson says, with most to be obtained from fir. Poles 25, 30, 35 and 40 feet long are in demand, with probably 80 per cent needed in the 30 to 35 foot lengths. Pole operators believe farm woodlands can supply about half of the poles obtainable in this state.

Robinson says that if trees for poles are cut with a little care, the thining will improve the remaining timber stand which will then produce better trees to be used later for piling or sawlogs.

The present demand for poles is expected to continue keen for several years and then slack off as new construction is completed, though annual replacements will still require a continuing supply of considerable volume.

Further information on cutting and marketing second-growth timber for poles may be had from any county agent in timber counties. Robinson says it is advisable to contact pole buyers for prices and specifications before starting cutting.
