hazily in this country as an over-abundance of money. Because we have been taught to think of MONEY as EVERYTHING, we have come to think of inflation as something not TOO undesirable.

Most Americans are inclined to think to themselves, if not to say out loud: "Inflation is bad, of course—everybody says so. But let's have A LITTLE of it. I can USE SOME MORE MONEY."

THE truth is that more money alone WON'T CURE INFLATION. Providing more money without more production is a good deal like trying to put out a fire by pouring gasoline on it.

The sober economic fact is that the way to cure inflation is to get production started in a BIG way. Once we are able to get all the things we want, we'll stop running around trying to bid up prices of things that are SCARCE.

AMERICA'S capacity to produce is IMMENSE. It swamped our enemies during the war. It can SWAMP INFLATION quickly enough if it can be got going full-speed on wanted peace-time goods.

Another money wrench in the wheels has been the theory (toward which Mr. Bowles has seemed to lean) that inflation can be controlled solely by holding down prices by law.

When it is unprofitable to produce, people just won't produce. BUSINESS has no friends in the present government, but the lessons of the existing STAGNATING deadlock in industry have been so plain as to force recognition even in Washington of the fundamental fact that employers and workers constitute a TEAM and that both horses must PULL TOGETHER if the wagon is to be got out of the mudhole.

Recognition of this fact brought forth the new wage-price formula that is to be administered by Mr. Bowles. The HOPE that lies back of it is that by providing INCENTIVE for both horses we can get them to pull together.

A SPORTSMAN PASSES

Charley Miller, newspapers throughout Oregon will refer to him as one of the state's leading industrialists and business men. But in our own mind we can never associate him with the field of Big Business.

Had Charley Miller commanded his passing, it could not have been more in keeping with his exuberant personality, for only a few hours before he was stricken with a fatal heart attack, he had succeeded in taking a large steelhead from his beloved Umpqua river.

His business deals involved millions of dollars. He was financially interested in numerous industrial enterprises throughout Oregon as well as in many major firms doing business on a national scale, yet he seldom spoke of these connections, his many business problems, his numerous financial successes.

He knew intimately every good fishing spot of the Pacific Northwest. He had a cabin on nearly every principal stream in Oregon, and to them he took his friends to share his hospitality and recreation.

In our imagination, as we fish the waters of the North Umpqua in future years, we shall envision in the dancing lights above sparkling waters, celestial flies cast by Charley Miller, Zane Gray, Major Lawrence Mott, and others of the Fishing Great, whose last earthly thoughts were centered on the stream.

There it is in black and white! We have been doing a lot of wishful thinking that perhaps we could get some relief on newspaper soon. But, apparently, it is not to be.

The current newspaper shortage is a definite bottleneck in speeding prosperity. Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers must depend upon advertising to reach the consuming public, which has a great backlog of savings.

But how can newspapers cope with the situation on existing newspaper limitations? Here in Roseburg, for instance, we had 52 new business and industrial firms last year—that's an average of one per week.

We are stymied very definitely from producing the kind of a newspaper we are equipped to present—the kind of a newspaper Douglas County wants and should have.

We had hoped for relief before summer, but, apparently, "it just ain't in the cards."

"General" Coxe Would Aid Vets in War on Cab Limit

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—"General" Jacob S. Coxe, of Coxe's Army fame, today prepared to give aid and guidance to a new "army" in taxicabs.

The man with the gates-ajar collar, who led a maren of unemployed on the capitol 50 years ago, when there were no taxicabs, said he would be glad to "help the boys if they want me to."

The boys are some 350 veterans driving here from Chicago with their families to seek relief from a city ordinance limiting the number of Chicago cabs to 4,000, most of them controlled by two companies.

The "general," who was put in jail when he tried to explain his non-interest bearing bond idea from the capitol steps back in '94, arrived a few days ago to renew the same campaign.

His idea is that Congress has the constitutional right to print interest-free bonds to back up all the money needed for everything.

Obviously then," Coxe said, "all war debts, lend-lease obligations and everything else could be settled, and everyone would have plenty. And having plenty, there would be no reason for war."

He testified about his idea before the House ways and means committee when William Jennings Bryan was a member, and he hopes to appear before the same committee again when the next tax bill comes up.

Truman Urges Benefits For Philippine Vets

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—President Truman today signed a bill cancelling out $51,786,811, 923 in appropriations voted by Congress during the war. But in so doing, he sharply criticized a provision in the legislation denying Philippine Army veterans major benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

Mr. Truman said in a statement he realizes there are "practical difficulties" in applying the GI benefits to the Philippine veterans. But, he added, the legislation does not "release the United States from its moral obligation to provide for the heroic Philippine veterans who sacrificed so much for the common cause."

He said he had directed Secretary of War Patterson, Veterans Administrator Omar Bradley and Philippines High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt to draw up a plan to remove the difficulties involved in making payments to Philippine Army veterans and to submit it to him not later than March 15.

Labor Dept. Seeks Jobs to Halt Increasing Idleness

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The Labor Department launched an attempt today to beat back a rising tide of unemployment it expects to leave 6,000,000 jobless by June 30.

The United States Employment Service will attack the problem by asking employers to list all job vacancies with USES.

Latest census bureau figures place present unemployment at about 3,000,000. USES Director Robert C. Goodwin estimated yesterday that of 8,000,000 discharged members of the armed services, 6,000,000 looked for work and 3,300,000 registered with USES.

Bowles to Up Supply of Low-Cost Garments

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Chester Bowles, new economic stabilizer, told the House banking committee yesterday that OPA is nearly ready for action to increase the supply of low cost clothing by about 50 per cent.

"We are working on a plan to make profitable the production of low cost garments, such as shirts, shorts and pajamas," he said. This will involve some price adjustments within the industry, and also a priorities system intended to channel cloth into the low-price garment field, Bowles said.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh Bird's-Eye View of America A fellow took an aerial photograph of our town, and it makes the place look like Utopia. Folks argued that the new firehouse would never look well beside the old Town Hall. But they harmonize perfectly from the air. One side of the railroad tracks looks as good as the other. All the different landmarks blend in nicely with surroundings. From where I sit, there's a lesson in that photograph. A community's made up of different elements—people as well as landmarks. Some vote one way, some another; some enjoy a glass of beer and others don't. You might think there was a lot of reason for friction. But it's all in your point of view. Get up high enough—see the community as a whole—and those little discords blend together into what we call America—a free, harmonious land. The differences only look big to people who see them from too close! Joe Marsh Copyright, 1946, United States Brewers Foundation
