anelles, will be next in turn for a seat on the international hot spot.

MEANWHILE also — Plans for the atom bomb test in the Pacific, which were detailed when Stalin made his obviously significant declaration of faith in the principles of UNO, appear to be back on the trolley again.

There is fearsome speculation in the dispatches that the A-bombs used on the test fleet MIGHT set up a chain reaction that would BLOW UP THE WHOLE PACIFIC OCEAN.

EVERYBODY shudders. Pondering these probably related developments in the news, it occurs to us that down through the centuries diplomacy has SELDOM spoken in frank and open language such as sincere private individuals employ when they are trying to straighten out a bad tangle, but OFTEN has spoken in the professional mumbo-jumbo of battleship displays and weapon tests.

Whatever bluffing of the other fellow you may manage to accomplish by such displays of power is pure coincidence—thus saving face all around.

SINCE that is the traditional manner in which these things must be handled, let us hope that it all works out so that everybody's face is saved and nobody is too badly hurt or humiliated and that a way is found whereby we can all live together without TOO MUCH shooting.

THAT is what we little people here in America want. This writer is about as certain as he can be of anything that it is what the little people of Russia want.

ALL of which points to a great lesson:

If the little people of all the countries of the world would be brought to the point of sincere and simple understanding of each other, unfogged by propaganda and unpoisoned by greed and personal ambition and personal desire for power, there would be fewer wars.

YOU probably read the other day former GI Joe McCarthy's views on what is wrong with our military system. McCarthy was formerly editor of Yank magazine.

He says the trouble with the Army is that it makes too many distinctions in its social life. He adds that there is no complaint (among enlisted men) with the way the Army runs its business during working hours "It's when the men turn to their social life," he concludes, "that all the trouble starts in."

No one who has seen our military SOCIAL system in operation can doubt for a moment that McCarthy has put his finger on a sore spot. If this sore spot could be cured, there would be less need for the draft as a means of keeping the Army and the Navy up to its NEEDED strength.

CURBING WILD DRIVERS

By CHARLES V. STANTON

A 16-year-old youth is minus his driver's license and $5, imposed as penalty for whipping his car around in the center of a busy street in the business district in order to chase a fire truck. His reckless maneuver, endangering lives and property, was performed before the eyes of a city policeman who had to wait for completion of the unorthodox turn before proceeding to the scene of the fire, where he took time out from directing traffic to cite the youthful offender to appear in the city recorder's court.

The night preceding this arrest, two teen-age drivers, handling cars loaded with youngsters, played a game of automobile tag over several blocks of the business district. They banged over curbs, raced through filling station driveways, proucted wherever the notion overtook them, barely missed collisions, frightened the few scattered pedestrians on the street at the late hour, and escaped before police, summoned by irate observers, reached the scene.

Constant complaints are received concerning the antics of a few high school youths who make a race track of the Oak Street bridge, create a bedlam of honking, backfiring and engine racing in the hospital zone, and conduct themselves otherwise as irresponsible drivers.

On the other hand, the majority of high school students are sane, careful drivers. Many of them are as critical of the reckless driver as are adults.

We cannot place blame upon youthful drivers as a group for the outrageous antics of a small minority. The majority of young drivers, we believe, are cautious and responsible. But the few who break laws promiscuously, and are a constant menace to life and property, bring reproach upon all. There is a natural affinity between a red-blooded American youth and a jalopy. The mechanical genius which marked American participation in the late war was created, in large measure, through training and experience in principles of mechanics gained by maintaining, repairing, tinkering, and altering automotive wrecks, brought back to life by juvenile inventiveness.

Oldsters, prone to rant about speeds at which youngsters drive motor vehicles, should realize that, barring mechanical failure, the youthful driver, zipping along at 60 m.p.h., due to his quicker reactions and his familiarity with the age of speed, generally is less dangerous than the beyond-middle-age driver plodding along at 30 m.p.h.

But the youthful driver who persists in using a motor vehicle as a plaything, who laughs at traffic laws, who endangers life and property by his "show-off" tendencies, is a menace who should be curbed for his own good as well as that of society.

But he is hard to reach through existing law. "If the parents could be put in jail, instead of the boy, we would be able to handle the situation much more satisfactorily," a Roseburg policeman commented. "But we don't like to throw 16 and 17-year-old boys into jail, even though they deserve it. They usually escape with a light fine, upon a promise not to do it again, and the next day are right back at their old tricks."

The officer is correct, we believe, in his contention that parents should be forced to assume responsibility in such cases. Investigation of flagrant traffic law violations by youthful offenders reveals widespread parental laxity. Home training in moral and social responsibility could provide the most effective curb on youthful recklessness.

Another powerful restraint could be furnished by the majority group of youthful drivers, if they would realize that the unrestrained license taken by the few irresponsibles brings reproach upon all collectively. Youth has, in many cases, far better and more efficient deterrents than are provided by law, when inclination to use those peculiar methods in Roseburg High School undertook to clean up reckless driving by the few offenders from their own group, they would need no help from the police and we would have no further repetition of such wild exhibitions as have been prevalent recently.

District No. 4, Theta Rho Girls Club of Oregon, held its convention Saturday at Creswell, Oregon, at which time Miss Marilyn Mathews, Roseburg, was elected 1947 president and Jackie Small, of Eugene, was elected vice-president. The 1947 convention will take place in Roseburg.

Mrs. Madelyn Rossner White, Dayton, state president of Theta Rho Club board of control of Oregon, was present and delegate Roberts, Wave Anderson, Wanda Andrus, Barbara Ogle, Shirley Spencer, Gavle Parr, Dolores Wagener and Betty Reid, Rebekahs attending from Roseburg were Mrs. Lester Spencer, state president of the ladies auxiliary; Mrs. Fred J. Herman, advisor of the Roseburg club; Mrs. Mabel Wilson and Miss Ina Farnsworth. The Roseburg girls participated in the morning program by giving the response to the welcome address. A potluck luncheon was served at noon. The afternoon's program included routine club work, questions and answers, address, invited reports of clubs and committees, memorial ceremony in charge of the Roseburg club and closing regalia and dime drill. Margey Satter, Creswell, is the retiring 1946 president of District No. 4.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS HAS INTERESTING MEETING

Roseburg Bethel No. 8 of Job's Daughters met at the Masonic temple Tuesday evening with Honored Queen, Alyce Harvie, presiding. Fathers of members and Masons were special guests for the evening. Norma Jean Elliott gave an appropriate report on the book "Life With Father." A discussion on Grand session was held and about 20 Roseburg members plan to attend. At the close of the meeting light refreshments were served by Mrs. D. L. Taylor, Mrs. Paul Helweg, Mrs. George Trappala and Mrs. Harold Bellows. Mrs. A. J. Young and Mrs. W. C. Holmes poured. The next meeting will be April 2 at 7:30 o'clock at the Masonic temple.

Plywood Official Addresses Lions

Jackson Beaman, secretary and assistant manager of the Umpqua Plywood plant, was guest speaker at the weekly Lions Club meeting. Mr. Beaman stated that the Roseburg plant was one of the 33 mills that make up the Douglas Fir Plywood Association. He also stated that the association is spending $45,000 annually on research to find uses for by-products of the plywood industry. Lions Club pins and certificates were presented to Les Irvin, Joe Spouta, Charles Brundage, E. A. Nicholson, Cecil Love, Bernard Sisk and William Miller. Carl Felker was appointed as temporary representative on the Red Cross hospital advisory committee until the return of Dr. Campbell who is to be the permanent committee member. Guests at the meeting were E. A. Partin and Clifford Smith.

Oaks, Solons Win Opening Games Of Coast Ball League

(By The Associated Press) The Oakland Oaks and Sacramento Solons shared the inaugural game of the Pacific Coast League today, but they were alone at the top of the first 1946 standings only because two opening games were washed out.

Sacramento took a bow before home fans with a 2-1 victory over Los Angeles on Kampouris' two-run homer in the second inning, and the Oaks in a night game collected a 3-1 win over Pepper Martin's Padres at San Diego. The same clubs play today, while the Seattle Rainiers and the Seals at San Francisco and the Portland Beavers and the Stars at Hollywood rained out yesterday, try again with hopes for better weather. It will be a night game at Hollywood.

A storm off the West Coast, however, brought predictions of rain for most of California. Fletcher, Solon right-hander, started the season right, allowing Los Angeles only three hits in the Sacramento game, which was called in the sixth inning on account of rain and darkness. Oakland rapped out 11 safeties from Olsen's offerings. Gassaway turned in a five-hit performance for the Oaks.

Back From Portland—Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Ream and daughter, Betty Joyce, have returned from Portland, where they spent the past week visiting at the home of Mr. Ream's sister, Mrs. John Service. Leave For Portland—Sgt. and Mrs. Roy V. Dunagan left Friday for their home in Portland, following a honeymoon at Bandon and a stop-over here to visit the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Attorney and Mrs. Paul Geddes, and family, on East Douglas street. Back From Bend—Miss Cynthia Sue Turner returned to her home on South Main street today, following the week of spring vacation at Bend, Oregon, visiting Miss Winona Fishback, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Len B. Fishback. The Fishbacks formerly resided here. Leave For Corvallis—Mr. and Mrs. William G. Loomis left this morning for Corvallis, where the former is a senior at Oregon State College, following the week of spring vacation spent in Roseburg visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Loomis, and other relatives and friends. Mrs. Patterson Leaves—Mrs. T. F. Patterson, who has made her home in Roseburg for a number of years, left Friday for Portland to visit her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sorley, before going to Baltimore, Maryland, to reside permanently with her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Woodworth, and family.

Kiser-Ross Bout Tonight Promises Plenty of Thrills

A rough-and-tumble meanie vs. cleanie battle is in store for wrestling fans tonight at the Army as Jack Kiser and Terrible Tony Ross tangle in the main event of the weekly show. A preliminary match between Sgt. Bob Kenaston and Bill Rayburn will start at 8:30 P. M. The Kiser-Ross affair promises to provide plenty of fireworks. Kiser is determined to erase the stigma of his defeat at the hands of Ross in his last appearance here about three months ago. He wants revenge and asked for the bout against Ross to prove that the Terrible tag can be eliminated from the Ohio villain. Ross expressed immediate willingness to meet Kiser in a return go. "He's asking for it and he'll get it unless he has really improved since the last time I met him," Ross said. The Rayburn-Kenaston battle will also provide plenty of fireworks. Kenaston, since his release from the Marine service, has been breaking havoc with his rough-house ring tactics. Rayburn put on a creditable show here last week although he lost a close match to Frankie Clemens.

Joe Kahut Flattens Millard in Round 2

PORTLAND, Ore., March 30.—(P.—Woodburn, Ore.) Light heavyweight, Joe Kahut, 179, scored a two-round knockout over Buddy Millard, 176, in a 10-round main event of a boxing card here last night. The clincher was a lightning left hook to the stomach that spilled Millard flat on his back. He was dragged to his corner after the count ended. Duane Hoag, 129, Portland, took a ten-round decision from Burt White, 128, Los Angeles, in the semi-windup. Johnny Archuleto, 128, Portland, knocked out Jimmy Ogden, 128, Portland, in the second round.
