In the Day's News

BESIDES, as compared with the problem of Turkey and the Dardanelles—which has come to the surface yet—Iran is a mere side-issue.

IN this country, we're dawdling with our own military problem. Pacifist talk is even beginning to be heard here and there.

That is a bad mistake. Until we find out whether or not UNO is going to work, we'd better STAY STRONG.

No other course is safe.

FRANCO Spain bobs into the news again—in a rather interesting way.

POLAND completely under Russia's thumb announces her intention to bring the Spanish question before UNO.

FRANCO is BAD, and we have no use for him.

If Franco is thrown out, WHO WILL TAKE HIS PLACE? It's a fair guess at the moment that if Franco goes out a communist regime will come in.

A HOT spot is nearing in Japan—their first election under the occupation set-up is to be held Wednesday.

In Tokyo Sunday, there was a "demonstration" in which, the dispatches inform us, "at least 10,000 COMMUNIST-led demonstrators swarmed into Premier Shidehara's courtyard, broke windows, injured eight Jap policemen and raised Red generally.

What the communists usually want in countries they don't control—where they are the "outs" wanting "in"—is CONFUSION, the more of it the better for their purposes.

RUSSIA, by way of keeping her hand in, lodged a vigorous complaint the other day as to our arrangements for this election—charging, among other things, that we have been so remiss in our duties as to have made no plans to THROW THE ELECTION OUT if it didn't go "the right way."

Obviously it seems silly to Moscow to throw elections wide open, so that JUST ANYBODY who happened to get a majority of the votes cast would be IT.

MAYBE it is. Only time can tell as to that.

This complaint about our way of handling the election the Japs are to hold serves to illustrate the wide gap between our institutions and Russia's institutions.

Buddies. HIAWATHA, Kak, April 10. (P)—The John Warren family moved to town from the country and brought their dog along, but left their cat behind.

After keeping the dog tied up for several weeks in the new surroundings, the Warrens released the dog and it immediately disappeared, returning a few days later with his feline pal.

The two had grown up together and were inseparable.

PRODUCTION IS ZOOMING

By CHARLES V. STANTON

The general public is inclined to scoff at the recent report by Reconversion Director John W. Snyder, who told Congress that production in the United States is at a higher level than ever before in the nation's history, including the war period.

A veteran, unable to find sufficient civilian clothing to permit him to shuck his uniform, has a hard time believing the glowing report of the reversion director. The same is true of the housewife who finds household management extremely difficult with shortages of linens, towels, shoes, clothing, foods, soap, washing machines, etc.

Yet, surprisingly, we find a bureaucrat, for once, telling the truth. Independent reports show production to be zooming. But goods have not yet reached the retail market. One reason is that a large segment of our production is engaged in the task of making tools and machinery to be used in the manufacture of consumer goods.

Do you remember how in the last election campaign we were fed doleful propaganda about the tremendous unemployment situation forecast for the postwar period, and how only the Nuclear could save us? Well, whether it's because of the Nuclear or in spite of it, our propaganda prophets seem to have missed the boat entirely, for there is a worker shortage throughout the entire country.

But all-time production and full employment are not what they seem. From Director Snyder's report and statistics furnished by the manufacturing industry we would naturally be led to assume that all of our problems are being solved.

Actually, production must be vastly increased before it can catch up with consumer demand. We have lived in a period of shortages for the past 20 years. We had, first, a shortage of purchasing power—years of depression when people lacked money with which to buy durable goods.

In addition, our population has grown, new families created through marriage, new homes established, etc. Thus we have an abnormal consumer demand, which has been building up for a score of years. It will take production levels far higher than even our present record rate to meet this demand.

A high rate of production, particularly with a shortage of labor, means continued high wages. High wages, in turn, will sustain buying power. Thus there is in prospect a continuation of prosperity and inflationary conditions for a number of years.

Propagandists would have us believe this optimistic outlook is entirely due to government controls. Manufacturers, on the other hand, point out that regulations and restrictions are retarding development of high levels necessary to meet consumer demand, and, at the same time, are resulting in inferior products and excessively high living costs.

Industry in the past has demonstrated marked ability to meet changing conditions, consumer demand, etc., and has thrived best in periods of keen competition. The question we must now face is whether industry and business can best achieve higher production levels, required to meet demands accumulated during 20 years of scarcity, under time-proven practices of free enterprise and competition, or under a program of artificial scarcities, controlled inflation, and government regulation.

Extra Good Mat Program Offered Roseburg Fans

Matchmaker Don Owen will provide Douglas County wrestling fans with an action-packed evening of legalized mayhem Saturday night at the Roseburg Armory, where four top-flight grapplers engage in a three-hour program of mat hostilities.

First part of the evening will be two regulation 30-minute matches, followed by a three-fall team match, and Owen promises the fireworks will be more colorful and brilliant than last week's five-man "battle royal."

Jack Kiser will meet Bob Kenaston, ex-Army sergeant from Gold Hill, in the first 30-minute tilt. Anthony Martinelli, the popular mid-western Italian, will meet Bruno Angelo, the villainous "Bru" in the other one-fall engagement.

Kiser and Martinelli will then team against Angelo and Kenaston in a full-length tandem tussle. Owen is offering unusually large purses to the winners of all three matches, and the matmen are certain to go all out in their victory campaigns.

Owen claims that the four matmen are the most dynamic performers now appearing in the Pacific Northwest and that he was able to book them only because Roseburg has become one of the best grappling spots in Oregon. Large attendance, like last week's capacity crowd, means larger purses; larger purses means the availability of the best talent.
