where in America, just mention OPA and you will be fully accommodated. This session was no exception to the common rule.

WHAT the house did to OPA, PLUS what the senate may be expected to do to what the house did, has been the No. 1 topic of conversation in Washington ever since it happened.

It is a reasonably fair deduction that it wasn't a put-up job. This writer, after talking to a lot of the principals (who are a little scared, now that they have actually "do'd" it, as Red Skelton says) is of the opinion that when the members of the house went into the session that afternoon they had no thought of definitely scrambling the OPA eggs.

As a generator of heat, OPA is at least a close second to nuclear fission.

DON'T be too sure the senate will put the pieces back together into something closely resembling OPA before the house explosion.

The senators get mail from their constituents, too—and the OPA mail that pours into Washington follows a pattern. The proponents of price control are voluble, but hazy. They're like the vast majority of us who are unalterably FOR virtue in the abstract. But they are foggy on details. They are for lower prices as a principle, but let it go at that.

Opponents of OPA are definite and positive. They SPECIFY. The files of every member of congress bulge with INSTANCES of what has been done to citizens and taxpayers—little merchants who have been fined and humiliated because some raw new clerk has overcharged somebody a penny on a can of prunes, etc. (One such complainant told his senator he may have done it, but he wasn't entirely responsible at the moment for details, as he had just got the news that his boy had been killed in Europe.)

The files of senators are full of letters of this sort, just as are the files of the representatives, and the senators are just as human as anybody else. They're likely to soften the harshness of the house bill a little, but they have no love for OPA and OPA-ers—especially the latter.

THE cold, solemn truth of the matter is that in a productive economy as vast and varied as America's the mind of man is simply INCAPABLE of mastering the astronomical task of fixing arbitrarily a fair and just price for every one of the millions of items that are involved in our productive system—which ebbs and flows and shifts from day to day as demand and supply rise and fall and costs vary.

In that fact lies OPA's basic trouble. Street Combed for Jurors PORTLAND, May 1.—(AP)—Surprised Portland shoppers were snatched from downtown streets here yesterday as Federal Judge Fee sent U. S. marshals out looking for jurors to keep his court calendar on schedule.

At Erie, one of the marshals, reported one trim brunette snubbed him and flounced away when he inquired "Are you 21 years old?"

A "PEACE TREATY" PLAN

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Is it feasible to set aside certain areas for recreational development and other areas for industrial development instead of trying to intermingle the two decidedly antagonistic projects?

Such an idea seems to be in process of formation, although not yet definitely organized. It may, however, be the basis for a "peace treaty" between conservationists and commercial fish interests in their war against Army Engineers' and Reclamation Service plans to erect a dam wherever there is moving water.

Don W. Clarke, game director for the State of Washington, has proposed a division of the Columbia River watershed, which would confine hydro-electric development to that portion of the river above the mouth of the Snake River, which would cancel out the proposed Umatilla dam. Here in Oregon, the idea has been advanced to declare the Rogue, Umpqua, McKenzie and Deschutes rivers to be exclusively sports streams and to prohibit further hydro-electric development or construction of dams which would interfere with the fisheries resource.

One of the handicaps to be overcome in putting such program into effect is the matter of sectional and civic pride. If the federal government builds a high dam in Washington, then many people in Oregon feel that this state, too, should have the benefit of federal expenditures on a similar project.

It is not the case of a dam for Oregon and a dam for Washington any more. If Oregon people were properly informed they would realize that three-fourths of the salmon industry operates from their shores and that the "dam for Oregon" at Umatilla spells the death of this revenue, whereas Foster Creek, Rocky Beach, Priest River and other possible sites above the mouth of the Snake will provide Oregon with their industrial power without robbing them of their great salmon industry.

Fish production of the lower Columbia and Snake rivers, from Bonneville to Boise, is reported by Director Clarke to amount to 20 million pounds of salmon annually and runs of 300,000 or more steelheads, producing "recreational fishing over thousands of square miles."

The idea of saving principal recreational areas, while developing sections more practically adapted for hydro-electric and irrigation installations, affords opportunity for serious thought.

Morse Favors OPA but Demands Housecleaning

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Senator Morse of Oregon says the Primary fault with OPA is the way in which it is being administered, and not in the law itself.

Three Matches Slated on Next Wrestling Card

Four of the nation's top-ranking professional wrestlers will appear in a combination mat show at the Roseburg Armory next Saturday night that will give Douglas County grappling followers a well-rounded program of three matches. Don Owen's weekly show will include two 30-minute matches, followed by a relay team event.

Paavo Katonen, Pacific Coast light-heavyweight titleholder, will meet Walter Tinkki Achlu in one of the 30-minute affairs, followed by another between Bob Kennaston, tough ex-army sergeant, and Al Szasz.

Katonen and Kennaston will then combine their efforts against the talents of Achlu and Szasz in the tandem affair. The three-in-one performance, promising to provide some of the hottest scientific and rough-and-tumble wrestling here this season, is expected to attract a capacity crowd.

Katonen and Achlu are both veteran mat performers, but are entirely different in styles and methods. The Finnish matmaster is a rugged workman who specializes in rugged close-to-the-mat competition and strength. Achlu, the greatest Chinese matman in history, knows the ropes and possesses the ability to use against a rougher rival.

Kennaston is an out-and-out villain who resorts to any illegal tactics in gaining his triumphs. He will be meeting a formidable foe in Szasz, the little but dynamic young Hungarian.

Feller Shuts Out New York Yankees on Q-Hit Pitching

Bobby Feller's brilliant no-hit, no-run job against the New York Yankees yesterday should still stand as one of the great spring training feats for all the spring training rumors that Rapid Robert had lost his fast one. Never in the history of the Yankee Stadium had the home club been held hitless and a Yankee team hadn't gone without a safe blow in a game since 1919, when Ray Caldwell, another Cleveland pitcher, did the trick.

Beverly matched Feller goose egg for goose egg up to the ninth when Hayes, Bobby's best tryout, clouted a home run for the final score of 1-0. The Cleveland ace had a close call in the ninth when an error, sacrifice and an infield out moved Starnweiss around to third with two out but Feller rolled out to lift the suspense and loosen a throaty roar from a banner weekday crowd.

Dobson Blanks Boston. Feller's job overshadowed a fine effort by Dobson of the Boston Red Sox who handed Detroit's Newhouser his first setback, 4-0, lengthening his club's American League to two full games. Dobson, an ex-GI, allowed only three hits in racking up his third straight victory.

Scarborough turned in a winning performance for Washington, outpitching Lopat of Chicago, 3-2.

The Philadelphia Athletics out-scrambled the St. Louis Browns, 12-8. The Chicago Cubs knocked the Brooklyn Dodgers out of the National League lead with an 11th inning 2-1 verdict.

Although rain and wet grounds forced postponement of their game with New York, the idle St. Louis Cardinals took over first place by a half game. A Cincinnati Boston series opener also was washed out.

Pittsburgh broke out with three runs in the eighth inning to snap a 1-1 tie and assure the Pirates of a 4-1 nod over the Phillies.

Gen. Marshall Getting Closer to Truce in China

NANKING, April 30.—(AP)—General Marshall, special U. S. envoy to China, arrived today amid new reports he was "getting closer and closer" to effecting a truce between the national government and the communists, now bitterly engaged in Manchuria.

A source close to Marshall said that negotiations on the Manchurian situation were proceeding in an optimistic atmosphere. The source added he would not be surprised to "see results" within a few days.

Seals, Oaks Boost 1st, 2nd Places in Coast League

By WILLIAM WEATHERSBY Associated Press Sports Writer Larry Jensen, ex-G.I., of the San Francisco Seals, had his sixth victory of the season today as the Seals and Oakland Acons stretched their lead over their southern, first-division rivals in the Pacific Coast Baseball League.

Despite poor support from the fielders, Jensen pitched the league-leading Seals to a 4-3 decision yesterday over the Los Angeles Angels, erstwhile challengers now in third place.

The opening of a seven-game series at San Francisco produced the Seals' 23rd win against nine losses and enabled them to maintain a three-game edge over second-place Oakland.

The Oakland Acons had a rugged and lengthy pitching duel with the Stars at Hollywood. But Acorn hurler Stephens proved equal to the occasion by going 12 innings and throwing in the winning run with a single for the 1-0 victory. Erault pitched all the way for the Stars.

Sacramento came from behind for a 4-1 win over the fourth-place San Diego Padres on the pitching of Freitas.

The Portland pennant defenders snapped a losing streak and reduced the Seattle Rainiers to the basement with a 3-1 triumph at Portland. Dobbins, in his first game for the Beavers after switching over from Seattle, paced the Portland attack with a single and a double, batting in two runs. Turner, former catcher for the St. Louis Browns, in his debut for the Beavers drove home the other run.
