JUNIOR GROUP TO BE DIVIDED SUNDAY
SUTHERLIN—Sunday at the local Junior Church group will be divided and two new groups formed. This has been necessary by the growth of the group. Miss Loma Mae Jones, student at Northwest Christian College, will have charge of one group, and Mrs. Newell Morgan will supervise the other group. Miss Jones will take the children up to and including seven years of age and Mrs. Morgan will take those eight years and older.

The purpose of the junior church group is to give children a worship service on their own level that they can understand, enjoy and participate in. For the past several months attendance at the present junior group has been running between 50 and 60; this is too large a group for the individual child to receive the best from the service so the division is being made.

If your child is not attending church anywhere, he will find enjoyment and worthwhile character training in one of these groups. The service is held at 11:00 A. M.; the regular hour for the morning worship service at the church.

Electrifying of All Farms In U. S. in Next 10 Years is Presaged in REA Aid Pace

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—On May 20 the Rural Electrification Administration will celebrate its tenth birthday. Five years of its life have been years, when priorities on materials and manpower brought the fruits of its labors virtually to a standstill. (Contribution of REA-financed systems to the war effort was considerable.)

Ten years ago, less than 11 per cent of all farms in the country were electrified. Today, mostly through self-liquidating REA loans, nearly 45 per cent of the country's farms are electrified (in spite of the wartime slowdown). To date, Congress has appropriated $725,000,000 for REA loans and another $100,000,000 is coming up for the balance of this fiscal year. In ten years, if the present goal is reached, virtually the whole rural United States will have been electrified. The cost will have been something like $1,825,000,000—but not cost to the taxpayers.

Delinquencies Slight
In the ten years of its life to date, delinquencies on repayments of the loans have been well under one per cent.

As for its effect on farming, Sen. Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., said recently: "I venture the assertion that electricity will ultimately revolutionize agriculture more than all farm inventions of the last century combined."

Experts at the Department of Agriculture (in which REA is located) say there are 50 separate uses of electricity in the home and more than 300 on the farm itself.

Huge Market Impends
As Sen. LaFollette and a dozen others have pointed out, each new extension of rural electrification opens up vast new markets for electrical appliances.

REA has estimated that the planned extension for the next three years will create a market for 1,000,000 radios, 1,000,000 electric irons, 700,000 washing machines, a half million refrigerators, a quarter million vacuum cleaners, 400,000 toasters, 200,000 hot plates and 100,000 coffee makers.

Ten years ago, it was Sen. George Norris, the late great Nebraska liberal, who led the fight to put REA on its feet. The fight isn't over, but there definitely is a majority of helping hands in Congress now to carry on the Norris heritage.

America Can Share Food with Europe, Still Eat Better Than Ever Barring Bad Crops Year

WASHINGTON—The drive for a voluntary belt-tightening under the direction of former President Herbert Hoover, in order that famines in Europe and Asia might be averted, probably will still find the United States with the fullest market basket in history.

The "probably" is there because a bad growing season might cut into present estimates of 1946 crops. But if all turns out as the Department of Agriculture expects, we can voluntarily reduce our diets and still eat better than we have in any previous year.

Except for sugar, eggs and wheat, there will be more of virtually everything than there was in 1945 and—except for sugar alone—far more than in the 1935-39 pre-war years.

The sugar shortage, along with the shortages in fats and oils, is a world shortage that the United States can't do much about relieving.

Plenty of Eggs
The President has promised 370,000,000 pounds of eggs and vegetable oils to the stricken nations. This may cut a bit into civilian diets here, but that is only a little more than 5 per cent of the 6.7 billion pounds forecast for this year. Butter, classed as a fat by the Department of Agriculture, probably won't be plentiful on the table this year.

The egg situation is far from anything to worry about. Civilian diets will have an average of 365 eggs apiece this year. While they consumed an average of 390 apiece last year, they only got away with 298 each in the 1935-39 period.

Ample Flour Also
While it is estimated that there will be four pounds of flour less per person this year than last, it still will amount to 157 pounds, four more than was consumed in dinner held at the Lamdin Cafe just south of Cottage Grove, Thursday evening. Following the dinner, the guests adjourned to the Stonaker home for a social evening. Those present were guests, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Stenseth, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cockram, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hartley, hosts, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stonaker, Mr. and Mrs. William Castor and Mr. and Mrs. George Edes.

Conflicting OPA Rules Blamed for Clothing Shortage

NEW YORK, May 2—(AP)—Men's clothing manufacturers halted deliveries on 75 to 80 per cent of all suits being produced, industry spokesmen said yesterday.

They said conflicting OPA regulations make it impossible for them to ship the bulk of their production without incurring heavy penalties.

The Clothing Manufacturers Association of the U.S.A., leading trade organization in the field, asserted that manufacturers "find themselves in a quandary because an OPA maximum average price regulation forbids shipment of goods priced in accordance with another OPA regulation, and therefore shipments have been stopped. Otherwise manufacturers would incur penalties due to the conflict caused by the two regulations."

It was estimated in the industry that shipment of approximately 325,000 men's suits, 80,000 overcoats and topcoats and 80,000 body garments will be held up each week until such time as the two orders are reconciled.

In Washington the OPA said it expects to announce shortly a liberalization of its maximum average price order as it applies to suits, adjusting into account price ceiling adjustments authorized by the OPA in March.

Mrs. E. L. Macklin, Camas Valley, Dies

Emma L. Macklin, 49, died in Roseburg Tuesday after a two weeks' illness. She was born April 22, 1897, at Bonham, Texas, moved to California when a small girl. Most of her life was spent in that state where she was married to Lawrence L. Macklin, June 11, 1920.

For the last six years they have made their home in Oregon, living in Portland until about four months ago, when they moved to Camas Valley. Mrs. Macklin was just issued by the O. S. C. experimental station.

Three spray materials are now available, and are listed in this order: DDT in oil emulsion, nicotine sulfate in oil emulsion, and nicotine sulfate combined with lime sulfur. Nicotine is unusually scarce this year.

S. C. Jones and Dr. Don C. Mote, station entomologists who are authors of the circular, say at least two spray applications are necessary where infestation is severe. The first is applied when 30 to 40 per cent of the blossom buds show green at the tips. Second application is made when all blossoms show green; with a third, if necessary, when stems lengthen and buds show white.
