6 Mystery Killings Thought 1-Man Job

TEXARKANA, Tex., May 6.—(AP)—Sheriff W. E. Davis of Miller County, Ark., said he believed the man who stood at a window Friday night and killed Virgil Starks, 36, and seriously wounded his wife, is the same man who has killed four others here in the past few weeks.

Sheriff Davis said the motive obviously was not robbery, for money was lying in plain sight on a living room table.

He said Starks, 36, was quiet, unassuming, and "did not have an enemy in the county," which, he said, he believed ruled out the suicide angle.

Officers said they believe the killer had planned to attack the woman after killing the husband.

The sheriff said the killer stood at the window and cold-bloodedly shot Starks in the back as he sat listening to a radio program. He said the man then stood at the window waiting for Mrs. Starks to return to the room.

Dressed in her nightgown, Mrs. Starks returned and found the body of her husband. She ran to the telephone and was shot in the head twice.

In observance of Music Week, the Treble Clef Club, composed of 60 members of the Junior High Girls' chorus, presented an outstanding concert Friday night, under the direction of Mrs. Gladys Monger.

Bonneville Law Changes Asked to Promote Research

PENDLETON, Ore., May 6.—(AP)—Bonneville Advisory Council was on record Saturday with a request for amendment of the Bonneville act to permit a "broad program of industrial and basic research" by the power administration staff and through grants-in-aid to other regional research agencies.

The council made public here a resolution which cited the following points:

1. "Limited research and development activities have resulted in transfer of war-born industrial plants to private business to insure continued operation" for the benefit of the region.

2. "This operation has resulted in financial returns to the federal government above the pay-out program as presented recently through an outside audit."

3. "No business or public utility can progress... without investing a portion of its income in research and development."

4. "Benefits of such research will be reflected in further strengthening the financial structure of the entire enterprise."

5. "The advisory council of the Bonneville Power Administration—to be made up of citizens of the Pacific Northwest with no official connection with the administration except their earnest desire of seeing consummated an intelligent development of the resources of the area—go on record as strongly favoring an amendment... creating an adequate and broad program of industrial and basic research..."

Copies of the resolution, prepared by President A. L. Strand of Oregon State College, will be forwarded to congressional delegations of the four Pacific Northwest states.

Minimum Pay for Women Law Faces Court Test

OLYMPIA, May 6.—(AP)—The 65-cents-an-hour minimum wage for women, scheduled to become effective June 3 was challenged in Thurston County Superior Court today by more than two dozen Washington firms.

The regulation, framed by a state department of labor and industries committee, would give women the highest minimum wage in the nation and limit them to an eight-hour working day. The committee is respondent in the action.

the FEED BAG
No. 16 Published Weekly by the Douglas County Flour Mill, Mfgs. of Umpqua May 6, Vol VIII and Sunrise Poultry and Dairy Feeds. 1946.

People Are Swell.
Due to circumstances beyond our control, we are forced to go on a rationing system. We are limiting each and every customer to five sacks of feed or feed deliveries. In the hopes that everybody will be able to get by until things change for the better, we are asking that our customers co-operate with us in this program.

The response we get is encouraging. It proves that most people are really just fine in every way. The percentage who wish to hoard, or get a little the best of the deal is surprisingly small. The vast majority ask only that they get their fair share, and that is what we want to give.

The only way any one can get a truck load all at once right now, is to bring in some grain and let us furnish what you lack. As we told you last week, we still have some concentrates, but our difficulty is grains. (A very unusual situation.)

So if you have grain, or if your neighbor has some he will sell or loan you, bring it in. In this way you can help yourself and at the same time help somebody else who doesn't have any and can't get it. Several growers have already accepted the proposition we offered last week and will be fixed up for feed and free from worry for considerable time.

Don't Waste Anything.
As the slogan makers say "Don't be a heel: eat the heel." That will save empty um-loaves of bread each for empty um-loaves of foreigners. The grass right now is very rich and nutritious. Save it. Turn the chix and poulets out into grass. It will save lots of scarce feed. Also sell feed for them. If you can't turn them out cut the grass and carry it in to them. There is 62 times as many vitamins in growing green grass as in all the vitamin pills in Doc Jones' drug store.

Get Rid of Worms.
One fine way to waste effort, money and feed is to keep worm-infested livestock and poultry. Mother Nature has a way, when it doesn't interfere, of keeping everything in balance. Too many earwigs—the earwig parasite gets busy. They multiply, then starve, and the 'wigs come back, and so on.

Man gets too many pigs, too many sheep, too many chickens in one place, and the result is parasites. (Wild animals and birds keep scattered.) Perhaps the most common parasite killer-offer is intestinal worms. They get numerous enough to kill their hosts, too, if unmolested. Even if they don't kill your sheep and poultry, they remove the profits.

One large hog roundworm can lay two hundred thousand eggs in a day. (If a chicken could do that!) One large chicken worm is said to lay up to fifty million eggs in its short life. Isn't it lucky thing someone discovered P. T. Z.?

P. T. Z. has proved the greatest worm exterminator ever discovered. At the Douglas Flour Mill we have it in most any form necessary to help you raise better livestock and poultry. For instance, the large pills for sheep, in bulk for hogs, in mixed mash for chickens and turkeys, and mixed with salt in a "pasture mix" which can be left on the range, and does an excellent job keeping grazing animals in the best of condition. Ask the boys at the Mill for PTZ in the form you prefer.

Would Love To.
On a crowded car:
Suffering male: "Ma'dam, would your mind getting off my foot?"
Fat Lady: "Why don't you put your big foot where it belongs?"
S. M.: "Don't tempt me, Lady. Just don't tempt me again!"

One good approach to good public relations is to do the right thing by everybody as far as we are able and can afford it.

Wife: "Here's a bottle of hair tonic, dear."
Hubby: "What's that for?"
Wife: "It's for your office girl. I notice from your coat that her hair is coming out rather badly."

Isolation Breeding
The poultryman's biggest problem is so-called paralytic. It is supposed to be spread from bird to bird by the virus, which means that so far we have no cure nor preventive treatment, since we haven't been able to isolate and study the virus. It is also supposed to be spread through an inherited tendency by way of the egg.

But apparently, according to the latest scientific information, the most common manner of spread is from older birds to chicks during the first few weeks of the chick's life. It is now claimed that if chicks can be completely isolated from older birds until they are four weeks or more old the disease will affect very few chicks in later life.

A strange thing about paralytic is the fact that symptoms sometimes don't develop until many weeks or months after the chick is exposed, or contracts the organism. The fact that the chick is much more likely to contract the disease during its first two weeks, but may not develop paralytic symptoms until sometimes five or six months old is puzzling, but true. Resistance increases rapidly with age.

It is suggested that in brooding chicks, one person take complete charge of the chicks, and not go near the old birds, and another take extreme care to stay away from the brooder house until the chicks are at least a month old. If this is impossible, a complete change of clothes, "special" footwear will help. All possible precautions will certainly pay well, as it is discouraging to see otherwise perfectly healthy pullets become completely helpless with paralytic.

Prisoner: "I wasn't going fifty miles an hour, Judge — not twenty — not even ten — in fact, when the officer came up I was almost standing still."
Judge: "Hold on, here, hold on, before you back into something. Five dollars and costs."

Flies and Bugs.
Are you going to have a fly-less summer this year? It can be done quite easily and economically. Also, no spiders and no cobwebs. The answer is DDT, and the place to buy is the Douglas Flour Mill.
