mates of a billion bushels, but the current Washington guess is around three-quarters of a billion.

A few years ago, that would have been good news. We now recognize it as DISTINCTLY BAD.

AT least, we've learned the hard way (which is often the surest way) that an economy of surplus is better than an economy of scarcity.

In an economy of surplus, we HAVE THINGS. In an economy of scarcity, we DO WITHOUT THEM.

ALONG the line of supply and demand, Hal Boyle, AP correspondent, reports that the Berlin black market in watches is practically dead.

Nine months ago in Berlin "Mickey Mouse" tickers were selling readily at 10,000 invasion marks, the equivalent then of $1000 American, and better watches in proportion. Now, Boyle says, they are a drug on the market.

Switzerland, her watchmakers stimulated by these fantastic prices, poured watches into Germany until they are now selling for about what watches are worth.

THAT is supply and demand in action. The law of supply and demand will become operative again whenever production rises sufficiently to supply human wants and needs as governed by ability to pay.

It will be a much better world when that comes about.

BOYLE mentions that Russians were the principal buyers of watches, but doesn't explain why. When questioned as to his willingness to pay these astronomical prices, Ivan was apt to answer that he couldn't convert the invasion marks in which he was paid into roubles to take home, but COULD take watches back with him.

He then often added: "When I get home, one watch, TWO COWS. Maybe two watches, ONE HOUSE."

IF that isn't capitalism, this writer doesn't know private enterprise when he meets it in the street. That may be one reason why the five million members of the communist party who govern 180 million Russians are so suspicious and so fearful of the Western capitalist democracies.

They may be afraid that the Western democracies will succeed in indoctrinating the general run of Russians with capitalism BEFORE Soviet Russia is able to indoctrinate the rest of the world with communism.

That wouldn't be good for Russia's communist rulers.

Oregon Brevities

A special election will be held in Albany June 1 on a school budget which, for the second time in two years, exceeds the 6 per cent tax limitation.

Nearly 800 turkey poults went up in smoke when fire destroyed the barn of Richard Watson, farmer near Yoder.

About 100 townspeople in Oregon City have signed two petitions seeking a pay boost for policemen.

Ashland's newly formed veterans' committee has written to the State Highway Commission and Oregon Historical Society protesting any change in the name of the Applegate Trail, southern emigrant road.

Portland's city council, acting on a plea of a city council of churches group, voted to dismiss within 10 days a policy of denying licenses to enemy aliens.

DO YOU PLAN TO VOTE?

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Are you planning to vote at the primary election Friday?

Perhaps, because there is little competition, you have no interest and have not planned to go to your polling place and cast a ballot. In fact, we find some persons who haven't informed themselves that there IS to be an election this week.

No one can deny, we believe, that we do not have GOOD national government in these critical times. Our government is weak, ineffectual, indecisive. It is prone to gerrymandering. It is more interested in votes than in efficient administration. It is subservient to political pressure groups rather than boldly working for the strengthening of the nation as a whole.

One reason we do not have good government is because so many of our people have not discharged their responsibility as voters. We have not always been careful in our selection of candidates. We have chosen candidates on a basis of personality rather than policies and ability.

But a more essential reason for weakness is to be found in public indifference. We get a large turnout of voters at presidential elections but in primaries and general elections, other than in presidential years, attendance at polls is so light that politicians, often those with private axes to grind, find easy opportunity to slip into office.

A light vote at Friday's election probably could do little damage.

But there is one danger spot on the republican ballot, where Earl Snell, seeking re-election as governor, is opposed for the nomination by Henry Black, Portland.

Governor Snell has stirred up considerable opposition in Portland because of his courageous refusal to call a special session of the state legislature to authorize the Portland school district to hold a special vote on its budget. Time will show, we believe, that the governor acted wisely, but he has stirred up much resentment and it is quite certain an organized campaign will be made by Portland enemies to defeat him for the nomination.

The current issue of Oregon Voter summarizes the qualifications of the two candidates as follows:

> Henry Black, a successful contractor with sound views on many subjects, is afflicted with an exhibitionist complex so extreme that he repeatedly has announced himself as a candidate for nomination as president of the United States. Governor Earl Snell is experienced, conscientious, an excellent administrator, a careful avoider of controversies, of unquestioned integrity; he has done a good job as governor without having involved himself or his state in difficulties such as might have been precipitated by lack of faith in Father Time. Snell has earned party support for renomination and should be re-elected.

Yet there is danger, should the vote Friday be extremely light, that Black might poll enough votes in Portland and elsewhere to beat Snell for the republican nomination.

Only one other contest appears on the republican ballot, three candidates, Lynn V. Beckley, Roseburg; H. M. Shirtcliff, Myrtle Creek, and Sherman T. Smith, Sutherlin, being rivals for the office of county commissioner.

The democratic ballot offers only one contest, Floyd K. Dover, and David C. Epps, opponents for the office of secretary of state. We doubt if either stands a chance at the November election against the incumbent, Robert S. Farrell Jr., who is unopposed for the republican nomination.

But even though there are few contests to attract voter interest, the men seeking office will be more impressed and will do a better job, when eventually elected, if they know that the people who place them in their positions are sufficiently interested to demand, through their votes, that they serve efficiently.

Neglect of the ballot can have only one result — poor government.

Farm Buildings To Get Priority From AAA Office

Prompt action on applications for farm construction under the new veterans' emergency housing program is assured Oregon farmers by E. Harvey Miller, state director of the USDA Production and Marketing Administration.

To make more materials available for veterans' housing, limitations have been placed on the amount of other types of construction that can be performed without approval. The limits on farm construction are:

1. $400 for a farm dwelling.
2. $1,000 for other farm buildings.
3. $6,000 to replace a farm house or other building destroyed by fire, flood or other disaster, if reconstruction is started within 60 days of the date of the disaster.

For construction costing more than these limitations, farmers will file an application with their county AAA committee, Miller said. County committees will review applications, add their recommendation, and forward them to the state committee in Portland for final action. The state committee will notify applicants of approval or denial.

Miller pointed out, however, that only applications for farm dwellings can be considered for such HH preference ratings. Only permission to begin construction can be given to applications for other farm buildings. He added that sawmills are required to set aside 40 per cent of their output for construction jobs carrying HH ratings and that the other 60 per cent presumably is available for non-rated projects.

In acting on applications for farm construction, AAA committees will give consideration to the following standards of essentiality:

1. The proposed construction is essential to maintain or increase food production on the farm.
2. The proposed construction is desirable from the standpoint of 1946 production goals.
3. Present facilities are being utilized to maximum capacity, and the proposed facilities will be fully utilized.

Marketing of New Dairy Products to Follow Merger

Oregon housewives will be seeing a new brand of butter and canned milk on the grocer's shelves as a result of an important merger made this week. Effective May 15, the Interstate Associated Creameries of Portland will be merged with the United Dairymen's Association of Seattle according to the announcement of E. H. DeLong of La Grande, president of the local association.

The recently completed Portland plant of Interestate Associated Creameries will continue to be used as the distribution headquarters for the new organization., which will market its products under the Darigold brand. The company will start immediate distribution of Darigold Evaporated Milk throughout the state of Oregon. Later, distribution of butter, cheese, milk powder, ice cream mix and other dairy products will be inaugurated from the company's Portland plant.

United Dairymen's Association is owned by 44 cooperative dairy associations of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

Strike Vote to be Mulled

PORTLAND, May 14.—(AP)—An executive board of Oregon's 4500 United Telephone Employes will decide tonight whether to take a strike vote in its dispute with Pacific Telegraph and Tlephone Company. Union President Edward T. Healy reported.

Overall output of German factories operating in the U. S. zone of occupation is only 10 to 12 per cent of current capacity.

Assembly to Draw Roseburg I. O. O. F., Rebekah Members

More than 25 members from Roseburg are expected to attend the Southern Oregon Convention in Medford, May 21, 22, and 23, of the I. O. O. F. Grand Lodge and the Rebekah Assembly. Ralph Russell and Mrs. Ethel Bailey, both of Roseburg, will be presiding over the convention as grand master of the I. O. O. F., and president of the Rebekahs, respectively.

Medford is planning sightseeing trips to the nearby pear orchards and the City of Jacksonville, where gold was discovered a few years ago and the streets and yards were dug up in quest of the treasure, for the delegates of the more than 200 Odd Fellows lodges and the 194 Rebekah lodges in the state.

A reception will be held Tuesday night at the Holland Hotel, and awarding of degrees will take place Wednesday night. Election of officers will take place Wednesday morning with installation on Thursday. The Encampment branch and Canton and its auxiliary will be held Monday.

A drill team from Roseburg Rebekah Lodge will seat the Assembly officers, after which a memorial will be given for deceased members followed by another for boys lost in the service. This will be open to the public.

'Don't Die Till You Can't Help It,' Negro Says at 100

CHATHAM, Va.—"Uncle Sam" Lovelace, onetime slave now past the century mark in years, is still sound of wind, limb and philosophy. The elderly Negro says his longevity is "God's providence." He believes that "you live as long as you can and die when you can't help it."

Free of ailments all his life, he does more work than many far younger men are capable of doing. He works from sunup to sundown at woodchopping, feeding his pigs, carrying sacks of feed from the mill nearby or hunting "poke salad" for the hogs.

He lives in a weather-beaten cabin on highway 57, rises at 3 A. M., eats three simple meals a day, works in between, and is in bed by seven.

Born in Slavery

Born in slavery to Nellie Lovelace, cook and washerwoman for "Widow Barbara Wooding," who lived near Chatham, Sam was 19 when Lee surrendered at Appomattox. Until 22 he was bonded to his mother, which meant that she received his wages. Then he set out for himself, bought a mule, a bit of land and started making a crop. All his life long he has made enough in the fall to tide him over until the following fall.

He is pleased with the way his life has turned out. He has his children around him. Mary gave up cooking in Pittsburgh to keep house for him.

When he has a birthday, the white folks help him celebrate, too, and on his hundredth birthday last March 15 there were many gifts.

School Faculty Will Discuss Various Matters

General faculty meeting of the Roseburg schools will be held at the Senior High School this afternoon at 4:15, Superintendent of Schools Paul S. Elliott announced today. Discussion will include matters relative to the closing of school this summer, and signing of petitions for the state school support bill.

A plea for the schools' co-operation in the U. N. R. R. A. campaign for money and food for relief of famine-stricken people in Europe and Asia will be made by the co-chairmen of the drive, W. O. Stradley and Don Forbes. The drive is under the local auspices of the Roseburg Ministerial Association.

Bill to Prop Wool Price Endorsed by Farm Department

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department yesterday endorsed a bill by Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) to provide a support price for wool in line with other basic agricultural commodities.

But a department representative, Lawrence Myers, advised against any consideration for wool prices not given such crops as cotton, corn, tobacco, wheat, rice and peanuts.

Support payments would be financed from duties on imported wool. Senator O'Mahoney said he had been told by Assistant Secretary of State Clayton that no treaty agreements were under consideration which would affect wool.

The law would authorize support payments until the sheep population became stabilized, after which the payments could be reduced eight per cent a year. Sheep have declined 25 per cent in number in the past four years, Myers said.

He and J. W. Jones, secretary of the National Wool Growers Association, testified before the Senate special wool committee. Jones said that his organization also endorsed the O'Mahoney bill, being considered by the committee, but wanted a definite number established as the industry's goal. He sugegsted the 1935-44 average of 46,000,000. He said the growers also preferred that the reduction in payments be five per cent a year instead of eight.

Myers said the Commodity Credit Corporation, which for three years had purchased the entire domestic wool clip, sold nearly a million pounds since last October 27, when it began to offer its stock at a price in competition with lower-priced foreign wool.

He said the domestic stockpile amounted to about 400,000,000 pounds, the foreign stockpile about 113,000,00 pounds.

Adopted Father

KANSAS CITY, May 14.—(AP)—Don Turnbull, secretary of the International Baby Chick Association, is worried about an air trip to Warsaw, Poland—a flight on which he will "chaperone" 55,000 hen eggs.

A rought landing could cause quite an omelet, and a costly one, too. Each one of the eggs, consigned to Poland for incubation by the United Nations Relief Administration, is worth from fifty cents to $1.

H. M. Shirtcliff

H. M. Shirtcliff, candidate for the Republican nomination for the post of county commissioner for Douglas County, has announced that his main activity will be directed toward the planned development of the roads and resources of the county.

Mr. Shirtcliff has been a resident of the Town of Myrtle Creek for the past twenty-five years and has been established in business for that period. During those years he has been able to gain a storehouse of knowledge regarding the conditions and needs of the road system of the county; both from the standpoint of the roads aiding the logging and milling operations and from the view of the people who live along and use the roads in the county.

On the record of activity in community affairs, Mr. Shirtcliff has had 20 years experience on either the school board or the Town Council in Myrtle Creek. He is one of the early members of the Myrtle Creek Chamber of Commerce, and is at present an active member. He is president of the Myrtle Creek Rod and Gun Club
