northeastern corner of Oregon, where 61 striking railroad workers march to the Union county clerk's office and change their registration from Democratic to Republican.

WHITE HOUSE Secretary Ross says in Washington that telegraphic response to Truman's railroad strike speeches was the greatest following a Presidential action in the memory of executive employees.

Julius Rodler, in charge of the White House telegraph room, says he has "never seen anything like it since I came to the White House in 1900."

Secretary Ross adds that the response has been "overwhelmingly favorable."

FL President William Green denounces President Truman's strike-draft program as "slave labor under fascism."

He adds: "Even the effects of a nation-wide strike on a vital industry could not be as permanently disastrous to our economy as slave labor and the nationalization of industry. Yet these are the inevitable outcomes of the proposed legislation."

THE reaction of the stock market, where people of all kinds buy and sell, is favorable. Stocks generally push forward in price—indicating that both buyers and sellers refuse to believe the country is going to the dogs.

THIS writer's advice, offered for what it is worth, is to sit tight. Refrain from inflammatory statements. Make your decisions from the standpoint of the COUNTRY'S WELFARE—not from any selfish standpoint.

BECAUSE of the menace of the inflationary cycle, with its constant threat of runaway prices, there is widespread fear of the future. At such times, people don't act intelligently. Under the stress of fear, the law of self-preservation takes command and people do things they wouldn't think of doing in less hysterical times.

Food hoarding is an example. Knowing them as individuals, and neighbors, you can't possibly call all food hoarders criminals. They are just PEOPLE responding to a PRIMITIVE urge.

IT is out of times like these that fascism, nazism, communism arise. These "isms," whose rewards for the average run of common, ordinary people are in no way comparable to the rewards of democracy and intelligent self-government, can come to power ONLY when hysteria and near-panic replace clear, intelligent, realistic thinking.

OUR HEROIC DEAD

By CHARLES V. STANTON

On the first page of today's edition of the News-Review will be found a list of Douglas County's World War II dead. This list, perhaps, is not complete. It has been compiled by Dr. C. A. Edwards, former chairman of the Douglas County Selective Service Board, who has had an intense interest in the young men and women from Douglas County who served with our armed forces.

To date the names compiled for the Selective Service Board provide the only available record. Military services have not yet had the time nor clerical help to segregate casualty reports by states and counties. Consequently it has been necessary to appeal directly to the residents of the county for information. The list published today is prepared from names sent in by relatives or friends of the war dead.

If names have been missed, despite the county-wide effort of the Selective Service Board to collect complete data, omissions should promptly be called to the board's attention and the additional information needed to complete the Honor Roll supplied without further delay.

Mingled with our reverence and sorrow as we read the list of Douglas County's hero dead is an intense, burning pride—pride in the achievements of those who died and those who lived. The saga of American heroism was written upon bloody soil throughout the world, and there were few theaters of activity in which men and women from Douglas County were not represented.

As we pause today to honor those whose lives were sacrificed upon the altar of freedom, we must not forget the living, particularly those whose bodies and minds bear the scars of battle. A grateful nation must demand that the best of hospital and medical care be afforded all in need of curative science. To those who return in health we must provide compensation as best we can for the years taken from their lives—years for which there can be no adequate compensation, except as we pay in spiritual values of peace and good will among men.

Flags will be unfurled today, bands will play, parades will be held, sermons will be preached, volleys will be fired, taps will be sounded. But these observances will go unheeded by those whose eyes and ears have been closed to earthly things.

They have joined the vast army of the ages—the army where friend and foe alike have learned the futility of man in striving to gain peace through might. They have learned the lesson living man seems never to learn—that peace is not to be found in earthly state but only in spirit; that when the spirit prevails man can and will live in peace with his fellow man.

Such is the message our heroic dead would bring to us today if they could but speak from their graves. If we could but hear and heed their message this Memorial Day could mark the birth date of permanent peace. But, instead, we sing our praises of the dead, honor and reverence their memory, their deeds, and their sacrifice, while in our finite way we strive to solve the problem of peace, ignoring the Golden Rule formula which, in its simple terms, holds the key that all the complicated schemes of United Nations cannot duplicate.

But though we fail in our efforts to maintain the peace, the sacrifice of our dead has not been in vain, for, with each succeeding war the spirit of man rebels more and more against needless destruction. He is caused to search afresh for the way to the goal toward which he has pressed throughout centuries of civilization. Each sacrifice has been rewarded with a refreshing of spirit in those who lived—in stronger determination that it must not happen again.

And so today we pay tribute to those who fought that this world might be a better place in which to live; tribute to the living and to the dead—heroes all!

LETTERS to the Editor

Where's Biff Type? There have been men in the State of Oregon who would have slapped the face of Wayne Morse; PDK, had he, in their presence, spoken of the President of these United States as he did in Washington, D. C., and Whitney's threat of losing their jobs would not have bluffed them one bit. I'm wondering where these men have gone.

Washington Quarantine Set to Halt Hog Diseases OLYMPIA, Wash., May 29.—(AP)—A quarantine to check the spread of hog cholera and swine erysipelas will be clamped on Yakima, Franklin and Kittitas counties from June 1 to August 1, Agriculture Director Fred Martin said today.

Shipment of all hogs, except those for immediate slaughter, will be prohibited, Martin said, and sales by auction or in public sales yards will be stopped. Written permits from inspectors of the agriculture department will be required before feeder hogs or breeder stock can be shipped. Martin said he thought his department could stop

Laying Flocks In Northwest Culled Heavily in April

SEATTLE, May 29.—(AP)—Heavy culling of laying flocks, to save feed, was reported today in the state-federal agricultural statisticians' monthly summary of the Pacific northwest poultry industry.

Washington's April output was estimated at 97,000,000 eggs, a 4 percent increase over April, a year ago. The number of laying hens was estimated at 5,363,000, nearly 3 percent higher than in 1945. The state's rate of lay, per 100 hens, was set at 1,812, also exceeding last year's rate.

In Oregon, the April harvest was 55,000,000 eggs—the same as a year before but the laying flocks were estimated to aggregate 3,039,000 hens compared to but 2,983,000 in April, 1945. The rate of lay was down, also, from 1,854 per 100 layers to 1,818 last month.

Idaho's April production was estimated at 32,000,000 eggs, compared to 30,000,000 in April, 1945. The number of layers on hand last month was set at 1,692,000 compared to 1,714,000 a year before. The rate of lay was up last month from 1,761 to 1,800 eggs per 100 layers.

Reduction Ordered in Size of Bread, Rolls

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department announced Monday that bakers will be required to reduce the weight of their bread and rolls 10 per cent, effective at 12:01 A. M., June 1.

The purpose is to save cereals for famine areas abroad and to make domestic supplies go farther. The reduction must be made from the weight of such bread and rolls produced on March 15, or on the last prior date when the bread and rolls were made. The order provides exemptions for bakers who, because of equipment difficulties, cannot reasonably comply. Such bakers must apply for exemption by June 10.

Future Peace or War Seen Resting On Russian Action

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 29.—(AP)—The Russians have just about reached the limit of their legitimate expansion for purposes of security, and if they keep on reaching a dangerous situation may arrive, DeWitt MacKenzie, Associated Press foreign news analyst, said in an address here today.

MacKenzie, whose daily interpretive column on world events is published in more than 800 newspapers, spoke at Morris Harvey College's 38th annual commencement program, where he was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws. MacKenzie told the audience: "Britain and America have conceded (much) readily. They have given way to some other demands unwillingly, with the desire of maintaining friendly relations among the Big Three."

"Within recent weeks, however, Russia has put forward demands which indicate that she has ambitions cutting deeply and dangerously into Britain's position in the Mediterranean theater." "That is the position today, and it is a dangerous one. Constantly we hear the question raised whether there must be another war."

"I'm afraid I wouldn't be worthy of trust as a professional analyst of foreign affairs if I should stand here today and assure you that there was no danger of war."

"There is a danger, but I am equally sure that war need not come if all of the Big Three wish to avoid it."

"If (Russia) stops where she is now, all will be well, but if she keeps on reaching, then it will be apparent that there are no limits to her ambitions."

U. S. Intervenes in Reds' Expulsion of Writer

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—The State Department said yesterday the United States has intervened with Russia in an attempt to prevent expulsion from Romania of Ruben Markham, Christian Science Monitor correspondent.

Bucharest dispatches said Markham was still in Constanta, and that his departure has been delayed pending a decision "from a high level."

The Soviet military command in Romania issued the expulsion order, claiming Markham had stated in a "political speech" that war between Russia and the United States was inevitable. Markham denied making any political speeches.

Building Material Main Objective of Emergency Law

SEATTLE, May 29.—(AP)—Building materials are the immediate objective of the National Housing Agency under provisions of the Veterans Emergency Housing Act (the Patman bill) signed by President Truman, said George W. Coplen, regional housing expert, yesterday.

"Under FHA Title VI, as amended," he added, "the FHA may now insure mortgage loans up to 90 per cent of the necessary current cost," including land. Under FHA's regular Title II operations, "appraised value" determines the loan amount."

Coplen also recited that the former limitation of $5,400 for a mortgage loan on a single-family house may be raised under the new act to $8,100 by the FHA commissioner, if he finds it not feasible in a particular area to construct dwellings at the lower prices without sacrificing sound standards. Comparable adjustments are provided on two, three and four-family dwellings. Mortgage interest rates are set at 4 per cent maximum annually, plus 1 per cent for mortgage insurance premium.

"But," Coplen added, "liberalized financing is not the answer in itself. Private enterprise must produce decent housing at rents or sales within the reach of families needing homes."

"Title VI will not be used to sustain current high building costs. * * * The government wants to assist private enterprise to move further into areas of low rental and low price housing for the mass of the American people."

(The Veterans Housing Act provides that priority-assisted housing, built for sale, shall be held for veterans for 60 days while that built for rent must be held 30 days for veterans.)

The forest area of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, is larger than the combined areas of France, Germany, Norway, Italy, Sweden, Belgium and the Netherlands.

Fines Meted for Speeds, Traffic Law Breaking

George R. Rosenbaker, laborer, was fined $25 and sentenced to 50 days in the county jail yesterday. It was reported by Justice of the Peace Hartfield, on the charge of drunkenness in a public street. The sentence was suspended on condition that he pay the fine and refrain from drinking in the future.

"That will be awful hard to do," he told Hartfield, as he was committed to serve out his fine, a day for each two dollars.

William Laney, 81, was fined $10 on a similar charge, Hartfield said.

In five traffic cases, fines totaling $85 were levied: Ella Neavoll, overload, $30; Harold O. Smith, passing with insufficient clearance, $25; Hugh L. English, no clearance lights, $10; Robert Galbraith, parking on a highway, $10; Richard N. Carmichael, no tail light, $10.

The average for more than 92,000,000 accounts in 13,481 commercial and mutual savings banks protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. is $552. It was $368 before the war.
