quired to keep us militarily strong, is urgently needed to convince the Russians that we mean business. It is becoming increasingly clear that STRENGTH is all that Russia respects.

LET'S not kid ourselves about the supreme importance of remaining militarily strong in the present disturbed state of world affairs. The overwhelming desire of the American people is to be fair and just in our dealings throughout the world.

ANOTHER informed talker (Dr. A. Peters, of Reed College, in Portland) speaks up. Addressing the opening session of the Northwest Institute of International Relations, he says: "America is already fighting a diplomatic war with Russia."

"The people in Europe, millions of them, are waiting for the war to resume—between the United States and Russia. I have talked to them. They expect a clash at any moment. If the present drift in international affairs is permitted to continue, we may stumble into war."

DR. PETERS isn't just a cloistered college professor, spinning theories. During the war he was chief of the morale operations branch of the U. S. Office of Strategic Services, which gave a pretty good account of itself in Europe. It was a branch of the Office of Strategic Services that brought about the surrender of the Germans in Northern Italy without a costly and bloody last-ditch battle.

Don't discount, as hearsay and gossip, his statement as to what the people in Europe are expecting. Europeans, with countless centuries of war back of them, are psychic to such things. Their reactions, therefore, are more trustworthy than ours. We are invertebrate wishful thinkers about war.

THE only excuse for war between us and Russia would be Russian determination to gain peace and security by the process of imposing the Soviet system (Communism) on the rest of the world BY FORCE.

If that IS Russia's purpose, it will mean SHOOTING WAR. No American is going to submit tamely to having communism forced upon him at the point of a gun.

WE common folk are inherently suspicious of diplomats and foreign policies. We have reason to be. Throughout the centuries, foreign wars have been provoked far too often to DIVERT the attention of the masses of the people away from purely domestic messes.

But the attitude of Russia since the shooting war stopped just doesn't make sense according to any rule that we understand. Neither does it make sense to the British, who are far older and more experienced in such matters than we. The attitude of the British government, which is a LABOR government, is worth our careful attention.

It is obvious that the British government is worried by developments, and it is extremely significant that the British labor party is backing up the British government in its tougher attitude toward Russia.

THE VALUE OF WORDS

By CHARLES V. STANTON

A public tennis court is located across the street from our home. This recreational facility, naturally, attracts a large number of small boys, who normally spend more time in loud argument than in the game of tennis. It is instinctive with small boys to argue vociferously in any sport, an instinct which is not fully lost even in adulthood, as outcries from players and fans alike against umpires and referees will attest.

Perhaps we have forgotten our own youth, but it seems that present-day youngsters have become more addicted to profane and vulgar language than those of former years.

It seems that whenever youngsters gather each tries to outdo the other in coarseness of speech. Presence of women or adults appears to be no deterrent. The current fad further requires, apparently, that profanity must be screamed in the loudest possible tones.

Our objections are not those of a prude, nor of a language purist. We served in the first World War as a duty sergeant where one of the prerequisites to wearing the stripes of a non-commissioned officer appeared to be to use strong language upon the slightest provocation, a condition which underwent remarkable change in the late war, when non-commissioned officers were subject to penalties for abusive language toward the men of their command.

To one who has heard profane and vulgar language used by experts, and who, at one time, had some qualifications in that direction himself, the mouthings of pubescent amateurs is ludicrous, if one did not stop to consider the effects of habit and the imposition upon public ears. We know that most of the addicts will improve their habits of speech as they become more adult, but they could be saved much embarrassment if they could be taught early in life that profane and vulgar language is neither smart nor an indication of the "tough" character they attempt to pose, being, at the same time, an offense to many ears.

We love words. Perhaps that is why we use too many of them. Words are such precious things. Words can guide, comfort, appease, direct. They can be the servant or the master. Marshallled into proper order they can express lofty ideas and ideals. They convey the thoughts of the poet and the philosopher. They can lift the spirit beyond the bounds of worldly limits. They can comfort the bereaved and sorrowing. They can lull a child to slumber.

Words springing from the depth of a soul have power to sway masses; to lead into paths of righteousness or into the downward roads to destruction. Words can picture the beauty of verdant hillsides, fertile valleys, quiet lakes, or roaring streams. They form the instrument of communication between men and nations.

Yet words can also be an evil thing. They can sow distrust and hatred. They can create wars. They can destroy the fellowship of man. They can be used by the unscrupulous for selfish gain. They are the tools of the liar and the slanderer.

The Bible and Mein Kampf are both written in words, yet how different is the application of their respective texts.

Words can so influence our daily lives that it pays us to value them, to guide well their use.

Bad Check Racket Topic of Address To Rotary Club

Ten thousand professional bad check passers take an annual tribute of $15,000,000 from unwarlike business men, members of the Roseburg Rotary Club were warned Thursday by Ray W. Clark, manager of the St. Francis Hotel, Portland, who spoke here in behalf of the Pacific Northwest Check Investigators' Bureau.

Clark, a former assistant manager of the Umpqua Hotel, became a charter member of the local Rotary Club in 1921. As a member of the Pacific Northwest Check Investigators' he has joined with city, county and state police, bankers, department stores, hotel, and railroad executives, and other business men in a "Know Your Endorser" campaign.

"Five hundred government checks with forged endorsements are cashed each day," he said. "In a Utah court recently, two juveniles were found guilty of stealing and cashing a government check. The judge prosecuted the merchant who cashed the check, for contributing to the delinquency of minors."

Clark recommended four steps for merchants in cashing checks: (1) be cautious; (2) train employees to be cautious; (3) make notation or description of check passers; (4) ask for proper identification.

Social security cards, liquor permits, driver's licenses are often unreliable as identification, Clark said. One professional operator who crossed $20,000 annually, Clark said, traveled with his own printing press, and printed expense checks drawn on the accounts of well known manufacturing firms. He gained the confidence of hotel operators by posing as a sales executive, and claimed well known local business men in various cities as his sales contacts. "Just know your endorser," Clark warned.

Mr. Taylor Returns—G. Cleveland Taylor has just returned from Jackson County where he has a crew testing gold places property in the Applegate section. During the war, Taylor held a position as mining engineer with the Bureau of Mines. Prior to the war he operated gold mines near Redding, Calif. Mr. Taylor is a U. S. mineral surveyor and has recently been licensed as a professional mining engineer for Oregon. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor make their home at Kohlhaugen apartments, where they have lived for a year or more.

Arrives From Seattle—Mrs. Wilbur E. Hasemeier of Seattle, Wash., arrived last night to visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jerome F. Sheldon, at 814 Hoover St. succeeding Dr. John Kuratli, Portland. Dr. Kuratli urged the group to back the American Dental Association's legislative program, describing it as "constructive and logical." He opposed the Wagner-Murray-Dingell compulsory health insurance bill, now before congress.

Bosox, Brooklyn Both Defeated By Chicago Clubs

(By The Associated Press)

The ever-hopeful New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers today believed they detected signs of a slump by the runaway Boston Red Sox.

The almost-out-of-sight second and third placers, trailing the front running Red Sox by nine and 12 1/2 games respectively, took heart last night when Boston suffered a 9-5 lacing by the Chicago White Sox for its second straight setback.

New York and Detroit both won yesterday, the Yankees routing the St. Louis Browns 6-1 and the Tigers humbling Washington 7-2, to gain a full game each on the league leaders.

It was the first time in a month that Joe Cronin's gang busters had dropped two in a row and only the third time it happened all season.

Dodgers Also Beaten

The skidding Brooklyn Dodgers found home no different than any other place when the Chicago Cubs polished them off 5-1. Proving that he is just as effective under the lights as in broad daylight, 37-year-old Claude Pasenau, who blanked the Brooks with four hits last week in Chicago, limited them to five this time in registering his sixth victory.

The defeat cut the Dodgers' first place National League lead to one and a half games over the St. Louis Cardinals to three over the third place Braves.

With Johnny Sauer's pitching his masterful five-hit pitching with Boston Braves defeated the Cincinnati Reds 4-1. In winning the Braves avenged a recent four-hit shut-out inflicted on them in Cincinnati by Ewell Blackwell, who started for the Reds. Sauer himself started the third inning with the first of his two singles.

Relief Pitcher Lum Harris won his game when he stroked a single with the bases full in the 13th inning to enable the Philadelphia Athletics to down the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

Rain washed out scheduled contests between the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals as well as the Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates.

Oaks Beats Sactos To Retain League Lead by 2 Games

(By The Associated Press)

The Oakland A's look another notch at the widespread rumor that they were suckers for southpaws and posted notice today that a batch of lefthanded pitchers is not enough to throw them off the track of the Pacific Coast Baseball League pennant.

Manager Shelly put up left-handed Al Smith last night to try to halt the steady work of Sacramento Solons who have been taking from the A's, who hunched nine bingles for a 4-1 win. It was the third out of four games in the current series for Oakland.

Shea whiffed ten Solons and scattered eight hits, as his Oakland mates went to work on Smith in the fourth and eighth innings. The San Francisco Seals, in second place, kept the pace at two games behind the leaders with a six-run rally in the ninth inning to down the Portland Beavers, 7 to 4.

Jensen, winning his 14th game of the season, limited Portland to a single hit and no runs until the eighth game, when the Beavers put over four runs, all unearned. Fain's triple was the biggest blow of the Seals' last-inning splurge. The victory gave San Francisco a 3-1 series edge.

Best pitching performance of the league's three games was turned in by Kennedy of the San Diego Padres, who limited the Hollywood Stars to three scattered safeties for a 3-0 shutout. In winning his 11th victory of the season, Kennedy held the Stars hitless through the first four innings.

A scheduled game between Los Angeles and the Rainiers at Seattle was postponed because of rain for the second successive night.

Judo Feud Will Be Renewed Tonight

Judo wrestling comes to the Roseburg Armyory tonight for the second straight week—but not by the choice of principals Walter Achiu and Paavo Katonen.

After Achiu was knocked unconscious by being flipped from the ring by Katonen last week, after holding a one-fall edge, the local commission held up the main event purse and ordered the match to return this week, off-mitted in judo jackets.

Reborn Elton Owen has been ordered to keep the matmen inside the ropes, and the arbiter will call on the services of Joe Lynam to enforce the ultimatum. Lynam will take part in the semi-final event, the popular Redmond Elton Owen wrestling, and tough Bob Kenaston. Both are native Oregonians and both are former Army sergeants.

A three-round boxing exhibition will open Matchmaker Don Owen's weekly mat show at 8:30 P. M. University of Oregon Names New Registrar EUGENE, Ore., June 15.—(AP)—Appointment of Curtis Edmund

Avery of the University of Minnesota as University of Oregon registrar was reported yesterday by President Harry K. Newburn. He succeeds Dr. Earl M. Pallett, married assistant to the president. The State Board of Higher Education has yet to confirm the appointment of Clifford L. Connington, registrar, to associate registrar.

Avery served the past year as director of the Bureau of Veterans Affairs at Minnesota.

Louis Favored in Betting Odds To Again Beat Conn

(By Sid Feder)

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—The boys in the Broadway book-making set are surprised over how much of the smart money likes Billy Conn to dethrone Joe Louis.

They tell you that from a betting point of view, there isn't much "action" yet on Wednesday's fight—although it will probably pick up through the last three days—but what business there is shows the general public is putting its faith and its fortunes in Louis, while a lot of the folks who own the "crazy" dollars are sending it in on Billy. This isn't unanimous, naturally, because there are reports of a single bet of as much as $30,000 on Joe—and that much money has to be "smart."

As a result, the price against the Pittsburgh boy has been pared down considerably from its original 3 to 1, and a whole new line has been chalked up on the slate, starting with odds of $11.50 for every $5 you put up if you like Conn, and $5 for every $12.50 you invest if you're investing in Joe. Here is the rest of the slate:

Louis by a knockout—2 to 5. Louis by a knockout in one round—8 to 1. Conn to win decision, if fight lasts 15 rounds—5 to 8. Conn to win by a knockout—take 5 to 1, if you think he can; lay 6 to 1 if you think he can't.

These prices have all been quoted on bets that actually have been made with the books on this fight.

Back From Vacation—Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Lynes have returned to Roseburg following a 30-day vacation trip in which they visited in 14 states. They visited Yellowstone National Park and spent a few days with relatives in Iowa, Oklahoma and Kansas. Mr. Lynes has resumed his duties as special merchants' policeman.
