SPEAKING of interior cities, Interior Secretary Krug reports in Portland that Henry J. Kaiser wants to increase the capacity of his Spokane aluminum reduction plant.

Krug adds: "It is up to the Bonneville administration to decide whether it wants to devote that much of its power to the production of aluminum."

SPOKANE is an interior city—like Roseburg. A dozen years ago, no industrialist would have thought of locating a huge heavy industry there—some port city would have been chosen.

For that matter, no one a dozen years ago would have thought of aluminum as a material for general use. Now we're hearing every day of some new use for aluminum.

This is a changing world, and the big rewards will go to those whose minds are capable of adaptation to change.

SPEAKING of change, the president of the American Institute of Accountants, in an address in Portland, proposes that industry make a financial accounting, showing results of business operations, to employees.

Labor, he adds, should have information which it feels it needs in order to carry on properly its negotiations with management.

THE type of business man whose mind is incapable of adaptation to change will court apoplexy when he hears of this proposal.

Still, it ISN'T unreasonable. Whatever progress we make toward better things in this country will come about as a result of CO-OPERATION between industry and labor.

If industry and labor can do nothing but fight, the future will be dark indeed.

SWITCHING from the domestic to the international picture, an "authoritative source" in New York (who might be Baruch himself; you never can tell about these "sources" who don't want to be quoted by name) suggests that the United States is willing to trade its atom bomb for a WORLD GOVERNMENT (or a security system, to use a less terrifying term) that can and will keep the peace.

It wouldn't be a bad trade, at that. We can't keep the atom bomb a secret which we alone possess. Soon or late, others will get it. Scientific research can't be walled in by international borders.

EVEN world government (which we all fear as the devil fears holy water) would be cheap at the price it brought peace. WITHOUT PEACE (with atomic warfare hanging over us like the sword of Damocles) there can be no real prosperity, no real happiness, no real progress in the foreseeable future.

WITH PEACE—if accompanied by some measure of understanding and willingness to live and let live—the horizons of opportunity for human happiness and human welfare are LIMITLESS.

HAIL TO RODEO WEEK!

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Well, this is Rodeo Week and here we are all decked out in what is supposed to resemble "western" attire. We feel about as conspicuous and out of place as a dolled-up Christmas tree on the Fourth of July.

We can't say that a brilliant red shirt, trimmed in blue and with yards of silver braid, plus a synthetic sombrero that would fold around our ears like an alpaca shawl if we permitted it to get wet, is particularly suited to our style of beauty, or lack thereof, but at least it draws plenty of laughs.

Now, on the other hand, the gals around our office, with their fancy shirts, jeans, fiesta hats and bright scarves make this dingy old dump look like a dude ranch, and we'd swell our chest in pride, just lookin' at them, if it wasn't for bustin' the buttons off this shirt we're wearin'.

But we're learning things. No sooner had we appeared in this 10-gallon hat than we got bawled out for not having it "creased proper."

In our ignorance, we didn't know there's a lot of rigamarole connected with a sombrero. For instance, guys who come from Texas put in a crease and a couple of dents; a Californian wears his hat flat on top, Mexican style, or with a full crease, and a waddie from Montana or Wyoming pinches his hat up to a full peak.

The only thing we can figure about our own hat is that it must belong to the United Nations. It's most gratifying to observe the way in which Roseburg residents have entered into the pre-rodeo festivities.

It's most gratifying to observe the way in which Roseburg residents have entered into the pre-rodeo festivities. A great deal of ingenuity has been shown in combatting shortages of western clothing.

Roseburg's annual rodeo, under sponsorship of the Sheriff's Posse, is only one year old, yet already it shows promise of being Southern Oregon's biggest show.

The Sheriff's Posse has endeavored to provide much of interest, in addition to the big arena shows Saturday and Sunday. Free street dancing, Friday, a street parade Saturday morning and a dance at the Armory Saturday night, sponsored by the police reserves, are among scheduled activities.

Judge Fred Wright of Reedsport will hold court Friday evening at Jackson and Oak streets to hand out pioneer justice to those who fail to measure up to posse costuming standards. Court revenue will be used to defray cost of the new fence around the rodeo grounds, built to protect the property from vandals, who caused hundred of dollars worth of damage during the past few months.

As for the performances Saturday and Sunday, rodeo fans may be assured of the very best. In addition to professional performers, spectators will see local and visiting mounted groups and numerous feature acts well worth the cost of admission.

So, here's to more and better rodeos, with the hope that our synthetic sombrero doesn't get wet!

LETTERS to the Editor

Sutherland's Major Needs Cited in Urge For Adequate Budget

The Sutherland city council met Thursday night in special session and, like most meetings at this time of the year, the city budget was the main topic of the evening.

The Sutherland city council is faced with a job as its most councils—that of doing something with nothing. There are always a few taxpayers who, it seems, cannot cooperate with the council in making city improvements because it costs a little extra money.

The Sutherland city council is faced with more things to be done than any other place in the state because of the rapid growth of the city, which is well over 300 percent in the last five years. The council is faced with the shortage of water as the main thing in any city. Without funds to expand, they are forced to put in small pipe one year and then to replace it the next with a little larger pipe; to put gravel on the street, one-inch deep where it needs six inches and let others go with none.

Surveys and future planning cannot be done without funds for engineers, as those who do this kind of work do not work free as do the council members. We must let the water flood the town because there are no funds to clean out the ditches and survey new ones.

Deugh Nut Touch

EVANSTON, Ill., June 15.—(AP) The thieves who have been stealing a food shop's doughnuts for the past two weeks escaped a policeman by fleeing with their loot into the nearest trees.

William Rogers, a doughnut maker, called police after a food shop complained someone had been breaking into the cardboard boxes of doughnuts he delivered to its doorway early each morning.

Patrolman William Larson stood guard, but before he could intervene, four squirrels popped open one of the boxes and one made off with a fat cruller.

ARMSTRONG, Minn., June 18.—(AP) "Bubbles", Postmaster Odean Olson's police dog, carries the mail for his master. Daily at 5:15 P. M. at the sound of the Milwaukee Railway mail train whistle, "Bubbles" leaves the postoffice for the station.

Slight Oversight

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 18.—(AP) Deputy Sheriff Lloyd E. Cote has discovered why one of the tires of his car had been making a bumping sound. An absent-minded mechanic had left a 15-inch tool inside the casing.

Housing Program Barriers Being Probed by FBI

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP) Attorney General Tom Clark yesterday said the government is making a nationwide investigation of what he termed "trade restraints in the construction industry which are retarding the housing program."

The FBI is conducting the probe for the Justice Department's antitrust division, Clark told reporters today. "The investigation also encompasses reported abuses in allied fields, including mortgage interest rates, and reports of black market dealings in lumber. It is the prelude to an all-out effort to eliminate the bottlenecks which are largely responsible for the housing shortage and are delaying the erection of new homes."

Meanwhile, Housing Administrator Wilson W. Wyatt said after a White House call that small home construction is under way at a really terrific rate. Wyatt told reporters the extent of the progress would be reflected in a report he hopes to have ready soon, by the end of the month at the latest.

While asserting the shortage is so great that the public finds it hard to realize the accomplishments, he said the figures will show widespread building. His big worry, he said, is the price of the homes that are going up.

The months ahead, he said, will continue to be critical. While lumber production is up, Wyatt continued, no building material is plentiful.

He estimated lumber production now at a rate of about 34 billion board feet annually.

Assistant Attorney General Wendell Berge, who heads the antitrust division, contended "the whole construction industry has

Jobless Claim Ratio in Oregon Recently Halved

Oregon had the highest rate of unemployment in the nation last February, but the ratio of jobless claimants to covered workers has been cut squarely in two in the last few months.

A table published in the Social Security bulletin, just received by the State Unemployment Compensation Commission, shows Oregon at the top with a rate of 12.9 per cent against a national average of 7.3 for the week ending February 9. By the last week of March this state's rate had dropped to 11.6, same as California and just behind Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Latest available Social Security Board figures show the national unemployment rate down to 6.4, while Oregon's rate has dropped to 6.3, according to the commission's statistical division. Initial and continued claims last week totaled 19,925 against 313,737 covered workers last year.

This state's peak civilian claims load came in the week ending March 2, 1946, when 42,321 asked for compensation. Claims for veterans readjustment allowances and self-employment benefits were not included.

Former shipyard and aircraft workers continued to account for more than two-thirds of all claims, the commission announced, pointing out that more than 80 per cent of 5,188 out-of-state claimants were from this group.

Mr. Hood Search on for Scout Head, 3 Charges

TIMBERLINE LODGE, Ore., June 17.—(AP) Forest service guards were searching the south slopes of Mount Hood today for a scout leader and his three teenage charges, believed lost during a climb yesterday.

The four, all of Portland, are Howard J. Richards, the leader; Virginia Wilks and Jean Clark, girl scouts, and James Earl, boy scout.

A Mazama climbing group saw the scout party resting near Crater Rock yesterday noon and reported the four said they were going to descend instead of continuing the climb. Weather on the mountain was foggy, cold and windy, the Mazamas said.

Rangers said the group may have wandered toward Little Zig Zag or Sand Canyons, rugged areas where others have been lost.

The Wrong Cop

KANSAS CITY, June 17.—(AP) A woman approached a policeman in a bank here and asked him about a loan.

He explained she would have to talk to one of the bank officers. She replied she already had, and had been told to "talk to the cop." He was the only one she had seen around.

The bewildered policeman checked up. It developed she had been told to see George Kopp, a vice president of the bank.

Slain Owner's Widow Now Runs Jap Black Market

By MORRIE LANDSBERG TOKYO (AP)—A 30-year-old widow wearing a western-style dress—and an occidental air of assurance to match—has moved in as queen of Tokyo's black market.

Yoshiko Matsuda claims the high office in the underworld by right of succession. An ex-member of her husband's mob rubbed him out recently and made her a widow.

The defunct husband, Gichi Matsuda, was the boss of Tokyo's underworld up until the time he announced that henceforth the black market would be "legitimate, ethical and business-like."

Those who didn't want to live under his new ukase of honor among thieves could go back to honest toil, he said—in effect. One, however, forthrightly decided that bumping off the king of the black market could be counted as an honest day's toil.

The killing caused great consternation in Matsuda's unbragging empire, whose main place of business is right out in front of Shimbashi railway station in downtown Tokyo.

Widow Will Carry On Oriental aplomb was quickly restored, however, among Tokyo's estimated 5,000 black marketeers who had banded together as an association under the benign patronage of Matsuda.

They voted to make Mrs. Matsuda the new ruler of the association, and she accepted with alacrity.

In an interview in the room where the last rites were performed for her husband, Mrs. Matsuda—flanked by flowers and funeral wreaths—declared: "I will try to do what my husband failed to do."

Eventually, she said, the black market could go legitimate, buying and selling at equitable prices.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Matsuda added with confidence, she would handle both her "association" members and rival racketeers, even if she was the first female ruler Tokyo's tenderloin ever had.

Meanwhile, also, the 5,000 members will keep right on paying her a total of 1,500 yen ($100) daily for rental, cleaning and protection—that is to say, "vigilance" service.

"I'll get along," said the queen.
