supply of wheat go around at home, and to be able to SPARE MORE for the hungry peoples of continental Europe.

Rationing is RATIONING in Britain, where they have a curious idea that laws are intended to be observed and not circumvented.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN tells his press conference that U. S. commitments for the shipment of grain abroad (to feed hungry people) for the first six months of this year WILL BE MET.

"The very fact that housewives today often find it hard to buy a loaf of bread," he says, "is evidence of the success of our famine emergency program."

"The bread the housewife can not buy means that much more for hungry children abroad."

CHALK up on the GOOD side whatever bread you do without so that hungry people elsewhere in the world may have a little more. (There isn't enough food in the world to give them what they need. The heat we can do is to keep them a little farther away from starvation.)

IN the House of Representatives a move to withhold UNRRA money from nations that refuse to permit American correspondents to gather and tell the news gains powerful support.

It is directed, of course, at Russia, whose censorship is still rigid. To us in America, it seems reasonable enough. If we are to dig up cash with which to feed other peoples, we ought at least to be told what is being done with it.

What seems reasonable to us, however, may seem utterly unreasonable to Russia — which obviously has little or no understanding of how American minds work. In this total lack of understanding of each other lies the GREAT danger in American-Russian relations.

WE newspaper people can't see how Americans and Russians are EVER to understand each other if Russia continues to censor sharply all exchanges of news between the two peoples.

Nazarian-Angelo Bout Promises to Be Rough—Plus

Potentially the roughest and bloodiest wrestling show in Roseburg wrestling history is due to night at the Armory as Bruno Angelo, villainous Canton, Ohio, villain, tangle with Mike Nazarian, the mean Armenian, for the mythical championship of the meanies.

The two main eventers rate as the toughest of the current crop of meanies now touring the Northwest circuit. Angelo came here from Ohio after establishing himself as the scourge of the ring in that area. Nazarian's most recent stand before coming here several weeks ago was in Southern California, where he wrestled before large crowds. The Armenian rates as slight favorite over the Italian.

The main event will be supported by two outstanding preliminaries. The semi-final, a one-half, 30-minute affair, will pit Joe Lynam, popular winner of last week's battle royal, against the bearded Mel Peters. In the opener starting at 8:30 P. M., Joe Szabo will tangle with Billy McEuin.

Natural gas pipelines in the United States now total approximately 220,000 miles, as against about 141,000 for oil pipelines.

"CANYON PASSAGE" PREMIERE

By CHARLES V. STANTON

Elaborate preparations are being made at Portland for the world premiere of "Canyon Passage," the Oregon-written, Oregon-produced outdoor epic, written by Portland's famed author, Ernest Haycox, and filmed almost entirely in Southern Oregon.

The premiere of "Canyon Passage" has been arranged for July 13 and, under the capable management of the Oregon Advertising Club, a gala celebration is in prospect.

We have been slightly irked by the Ad club's publicity campaign, our provincial pride having been touched by the fact that although Ernest Haycox' stirring story is laid almost entirely in Douglas County, and a major part of the filming was in the Diamond Lake area, which, as some people may not know, lies entirely in Douglas County, despite the fact that main entrances are from Medford and Klamath Falls, Douglas County has had little recognition in publicity sent out from Portland headquarters. Of course, Diamond Lake and Mount Bailey have been mentioned lightly while Jacksonville, where the saloon brawling was photographed, is widely advertised.

Of course, we're willing to have all the brawling credited to Jackson County, but, if we correctly remember the Haycox story, the Jacksonville area was locale for only incidental events of the plot, while almost the entire action transpired in Douglas County.

We want the world to know that the glorious scenery of "Canyon Passage" lies in Douglas County.

Much of the forthcoming picture was filmed along Clearwater River and along the shores of Diamond Lake, where original log buildings constructed many years ago by forest service crews were utilized. One of the structures which theatergoers will see as the chapel in the film, was one of the first built on the Umpqua National Forest by V. V. Harpham, who recently was retired after long service as forest supervisor.

To Douglas County residents, "Canyon Passage" will furnish a great deal of accurate historical detail. Ernest Haycox is not one to "needle" his stories. He engages in extensive research in order that his facts may be correctly presented. "Canyon Passage," which has its locale in Cow Creek Canyon, is a true picture of early days, and the only dispute locally with the author's portrayal concerned the "Aaron Rose" ferry mentioned at Roseburg in connection with the wagon train route between Scottsburg and Canyonville, old-timers contending the ferry location was misplaced by a few miles, and that it was not operated by Aaron Rose, the founder of Roseburg.

Naturally we're quite interested in "Canyon Passage," seeing that it is our particular locality in which the story action is portrayed, and, therefore, we're a little intolerant of failure by publicity writers to climb on the Douglas County booster band wagon. Our provincial pride has been slightly offended.

But there's so much to be told about "Canyon Passage" and Portland's world premiere that we can't expect the publicity writers to think of everything—and then, too, maybe they're not familiar with how easily our pride can be touched by simple omissions.

Anyway, the world premiere of "Canyon Passage" at Portland, July 13, is to be a gala affair with a pioneer parade, personal appearance of titian-haired Susan Hayward, feminine star of the show, who is flying from Hollywood, with three plane-loads of movie celebrities; a barbecue sponsored by Medford members of the Oregon Advertising Club, in cooperation with John S. Day, owner of the Blue Moon Ranch, and many other interesting and entertaining events.

Oakland's Holder Clouts 3 Homers in Rout of Rainiers

(By the Associated Press)

A fourth-inning pitch worth a mere single was what worried Oakland leftfielder Holder today.

Every other ball he tied into last night boomed over the fence for three home runs in four times at bat.

His teammates joined him in the rout for an 18-run assault and a 13-2 shellacking of the Seattle Rainiers.

Holder opened the Oakland attack with a 340-foot blow in the first inning, repeated in the third, slumped to the point of singling in the fourth, homered again in the fifth, and by that time the third Seattle hurler to see service had had enough.

In winning the lopsided victory the Oaklanders were unable to shake their challengers for the league lead, the San Francisco Seals, a game behind. They turned in a 10 shutout of the San Diego Padres.

Liska Beats Angelinos After 10 straight losses since he pitched a no-hit game two months ago, Liska came back last night to hurl the Portland Beavers to a 6-3 decision over the Los Angeles Angels. He allowed nine hits and enough bunting for three Angels runs in the seventh. The Beavers exploded a four-run attack in the second inning off a Conger, who retired in the last half of that frame. The game evened the series at 2-all.

The Hollywood Stars profited from errors for a 6-3 victory over the Sacramento Solons, making it four in a row.

Kahut Scores 3rd Round Kayo Over Jack Hughes

PORTLAND, June 29.—(AP)—A fight fan's dream was dealt up in Portland last night when every bout on a boxing card ended in a knockout, with Joe Kahut capturing the climax by putting away Tiger Jack Hughes of Los Angeles. The Woodburn slugger and Hughes each weighed in at 182 for their scheduled 10-rounder.

Ted Williams on Way to All-Time Batting Record

(By the Associated Press)

Ted Williams, generally acclaimed as one of the all-time hitting greats, appears well on the way today to become the first player ever to lead the American League in batting.

Not even Williams' immortal predecessors, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Jimmy Foxx, could accomplish the feat.

The clouting kid from Boston struck his 20th home run yesterday to wrest the leadership from Detroit's Greenberg as the league-leading Red Sox routed the Washington Senators 12-1.

Keller's 17th home run with one aboard broke up a tight 1-1 pitching duel between the Yankees and the Athletics' Mar. child to give the Bronx Bombers a 4-1 victory.

Brooklyn's three and half game National League lead remained in status quo as the Dodgers whipped the Boston Braves, 3-1, while the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals trounced the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1.

The Phillies made it 10 victories in 26 games as they eked out a 7-5 decision over the New York Giants in a 10-innings affair, but could not move into fifth place as the Cincinnati Reds, occupying the top berth in the second division by a half game, defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-3, also in a 10-inning contest.

Figuratively speaking, the eyes of the world will be turned toward Bikini Atoll . . . but literally, through the wonder of radio, the ears of the world will be tuned to the same spot.

Remember the six-way parlay tonight at 8:00 . . . and be sure you dial 1490 before 1 o'clock on Sunday so you'll get the complete broadcast. Approximately three hours after the atom bomb is dropped at Bikini, Exploring the Unknown will be on the air with a dramatic explanation of test and its background, with Clifton Fadiman as narrator. Just about everything has been told about the atom bomb, within security limitations, but Exploring the Unknown at six o'clock, will come up with several hitherto unpublished facts on the subject.

By the way . . . Exploring the Unknown won the Peabody Award again this year as the best educational program being aired in the nation. It's good family listening. Educational, yes . . . but sugar-coated with drama so that it's very entertaining, too.

All Sunday afternoon shows are listed with a question mark due to the uncertainty of the big broadcast time. Final broadcast on the subject is at 8:00 o'clock Sunday eve . . . a review of events, plus a pick-up from Bikini.

Special note for Monday! State and Local News and National News take the noon to 12:15 spot one time only. Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Services will be broadcast from 12:15 to 1:00. Broadcast originates before a joint session of the House and Senate.
