Uncle Sam, Nation's Biggest Landlord, Collects Almost 200 Million Yearly in Rent

By HOWARD DOBSON
WASHINGTON—As the nation's biggest landlord, the government makes some money and loses some—and provides homes for a lot of people.

Aiming to keep out of the way of private builders and investors, Uncle Sam has stepped in to build and operate homes only when the job could not be done by anybody else.

The government owns or is connected with the management of 856,691 dwelling units. They cost about three billion dollars to build and shelter more than two million persons—a good deal more than the population of Connecticut. Tenants pay about 290 million dollars a year in rent.

This vast enterprise is only a second-cousin to the veterans emergency housing program aimed at setting 2,700,000 homes started this year and next. That is private, not public, housing. Based on Dual Purpose.

The government has become a landlord for two purposes: 1. Originally, to help local communities build housing for those who could not pay enough rent to support private building.

2. Then, during the war, the government built 851,000 homes for war workers and others in war communities who were unable to get shelter any other way. This housing is being sold as rapidly as possible so the government can concentrate again on low-rent housing.

EPHA has on its busy hands approximately 600,000 units of war housing—mostly apartments—in these main classifications:

About 286,000 temporary units not suited for more than a few years' use; 174,000 permanent units being sold to occupants or to private investors; 9,000 units built by the Defense Homes Corporation and also available to private buyers; 51,000 units built with low-rent funds and now being taken over by local communities to operate as low-rent projects; 35,000 trailers serving as

Crescents Defeat Umpqua Chiefs, 6-4; Sporer Off Form

Crescent City, administering a 6 to 4 defeat to Roseburg's previously unbeaten Umpqua Chiefs, broke the tie for first place in the Southern Oregon baseball league in a game at Crescent City Sunday. It was the seventh straight victory for the Crescents. The Chiefs will have their opportunity to get back into at least a tie for top spot, when Crescent City plays at Roseburg August 25.

Bus Sporer, who started on the mound for Roseburg, was not up to his usual form, being troubled by wildness. He walked three batters in the first inning and allowed two hits, which, coupled with two errors, gave the Crescents four runs in the first frame. Sporer had another wild streak in the third, but succeeded in retiring the side with only one run, although the bases were filled by hitting one batter and walking two. The runner, who scored, had previously been placed on base by an error. Crescent City's sixth run was scored in the sixth frame when Clausen, pitcher, and Matson, second baseman, were given consecutive passes. Clausen going to third on a wild pitch and scoring on a fielder's choice.

Baker took over the pitching chores for the Chiefs in the seventh and used his change of pace ball to advantage in holding the Crescents scoreless for the remainder of the game.

Shinn started Roseburg's scoring with a triple in the second inning and scoring on a sacrifice by George Sanders.

V. Baker and DeBerhardi opened the seventh inning with consecutive singles and both scored, after two were out, when Huggins' hard grounder was mis-handled by Hunter at first base.

The Chiefs made a determined bid in the eighth inning, when Virgil Sanders opened with a single and stole second, scoring on pinch-hitter Witcher's timely single. L. Baker, however, hit into a double play, to end the threat, although V. Baker reached first on a single before the frame was closed.

Still fighting for a victory, the Chiefs put potential tying runs on base in the ninth, Shinn leading off with a single, but being forced at second as G. Sanders hit for a fielder's choice. Sanders stole second and went to third on a single by Huggins, who, in turn went to second base, without a play being made on him. Clausen, Crescent pitcher, bore down hard on the next two batters for infield outs to win his victory the hard way.

Roseburg..... 010 000 210-4 10 3
Crescent City..... 401 001 000-6 3 1
