DAILY DEVOTIONAL

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

"And he dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven." If there were dreams to sell what would you buy? Well, there are dreams to sell. This dream of Jacob's about a ladder reaching to heaven was for sale, and Jacob bought that as he wrestled with the angel, and as in humiliation and penitence, he sought the brother he had wronged. That was the price he paid. Paul's dream of a man of Macedonia was the vision of a continent that could be won for Christ by hard work, and Paul proceeded to buy this dream. What about your dreams—dreams of a better world, a Christian home, a happy community? They will remain but dreams unless you buy them and pay for them with careful planning and hard work. Men of God, you must have dreams. But do not allow them to remain dreams unless they prove a curse rather than a blessing. Translate them into action, as did Jacob and Paul. And they will bless you, and through them you will bless the world. He whom a dream hath possessed knoweth no more of doubting. Again, "If there were dreams to sell what would you buy?" Great men make their dreams come true.

Mrs. Lydia Wimer Passes Away at 90

She moved into Douglas county in 1882, residing at Myrtle Creek, and later went to Crook county and finally settled in Linn county in 1920. Her husband, James W. Wimer, to whom she was married in Josephine county in 1875, died in 1903.

Chemistry Helps On Perspiration Stains in Summer

Summer garments that hang unworn in the closet because of underarm perspiration stains can sometimes be reclaimed. These stains will often come out with ordinary washing or dry cleaning, but a little elementary chemistry first will sometimes help restore color, says Miss Lucy Lane, extension clothing specialist at Oregon State College.

Body perspiration is usually acid, so counteract these stains with an alkali, she explains. Dampen the spot with water and hold it for a few minutes over the fumes from a bottle of ammonia water. Or—for cotton, linen, and other materials that do not water-spot—dilute the ammonia water to half strength, apply a few drops directly to the stain, and rinse thoroughly. Ammonia water affects some dyes, so have white vinegar handy to stop the action of the alkali if the fabric begins to change color.

Perspiration stains that have been allowed to "set" for a few days may become alkaline. So if an old stain fails to respond to the ammonia water treatment, reverse the process and use vinegar—a mild acid. Miss Lane adds. Sponging with vinegar sometimes restores color, though an old stain is more difficult to remove than a fresh one.

Attractive suggested: Yellow perspiration stains on white material will sometimes vanish when bleached in the sun after washing with soap and water. For stubborn stains, sponge with hydrogen peroxide. Or quickly dip the stained spot into a solution of two teaspoons sodium hydrosulfite to one pint water and rinse immediately—but test the cloth for color-fastness to this bleach before using.

Perspiration odors sometimes can be removed from garments that are not yet ready for the laundry or dry cleaner. Sponge the spot with warm water to which a few drops of vinegar have been added. Sprinkle with powdered pepsin, working the pepsin into the cloth. Then let stand one to two hours, keeping the spot moist. Brush off the powder and rinse well.

How to be a good neighbor

Actually it is really very simple. Being a good neighbor is mostly being... thoughtful, considerate and helpful.

The same is true in being a good party-line telephone neighbor. When you're sharing a line with one or more neighbors, all of you get the most out of your service when you...

- Space your calls instead of making an extended string of them.
• Talk only as long as you have to on each call.
• Replace the receiver properly when you finish talking.
• Make certain, if you are using a dial telephone, that the line is clear before you dial.
• Ask your youngsters not to monopolize the telephone. Thank you.
